Why Our Stock Houses Are Winning

Ever visited any of Ford's assembling plants? Great, isn't it, the way that overhead traveling affair delivers and takes away the parts at just the right time?

Ever been in a two-man wagon shop, and seen them working on a special job?
Which, to you in comparison, is the modern way of doing things?

Is that wonderful little Ford engine any less powerful, simply because it is put together in a systematic way that makes it possible to turn out thousands of cars instead of dozens?

Are the roof bars on one of our houses any less good, simply because we run ten miles of them through at a time, instead of a few hundred feet?

Isn't it so, that one man or group of men doing the same thing day after day, can best do that thing?

If our men, therefore, make up all the materials for our stock houses by the mile instead of by the few feet, doesn't it stand to reason all of it is more uniformly high grade?

Isn't it also so, that materials so made can be made at a lower cost than by the old way?

It's as plain as day that when you buy our stock houses, whether commercial or private, you not only get the highest quality, but the lowest price possible for such quality.

This house shown is one of our 11-foot stock houses, 50 feet long, the materials for which were furnished to C. W. Wiley of Seattle, Wash.

It's one of several stock widths for private places, circulars of which we will gladly send you.

PAPER WHITES

True to type and up to size

We guarantee that the bulbs we offer are up to size. We further guarantee that the prices offered below are not in competition with 12 ctm. bulbs offered at lower prices and sold for 13 ctm.; yet they are packed 1250 to the case as 13 ctm. We positively want to discourage the purchasing of 12 ctm. bulbs by any importer.

The French dealer prefers not to sell this size, as it deprives him from having larger bulbs the next season. Twelve centimeter bulbs do not bloom more than 25 to 35 per cent. However, we know of quantities of this size coming to this country this season.

In obtaining your bulbs from reliable concerns, you have the assurance of getting bulbs true to size. We cannot offset foreign competition of undersized bulbs, as our prices are based on deliveries of "up-to-size" bulbs.

We herewith quote you, for immediate delivery, French bulbs at the following prices:

Paper Whites, 13 ctm. and up, 1250 to case @ $22.00 per 1000
Paper Whites, 14 ctm. and up, 1000 to case @ 24.00 per 1000
Paper Whites, 15 ctm. and up, 900 to case @ 27.50 per 1000

Yellow Paper Whites, (Grand Soleil d'Or), very scarce.

WIESBADEN-AUKAMM

Wiesbaden, den 25. April 1920

TO MY CUSTOMERS IN AMERICA:

Those who are in the market for high grade Cyclamen Seed, I wish to advise you that I have perfected the finest strain of Cyclamen Seed I have ever offered, as for the past four years I have devoted my attention to improving my varieties. Cyclamen offered by me this season are all true to name and selected only from the best and healthy plants which in turn give very good results.

I have paid strict attention to my Salmon and Red shades particularly for the American trade. My seed will be offered by the American Bulb Company, who are my sole agents, and none is genuine unless purchased through the American Bulb Company. It is with pleasure that I recommend to all florists who are growers of high class plants to try out my seed. I hold recommendations from the best growers in the world.

Yours very truly,

White Helps Florist Increase Business

MAX SCHLING, florist and landscaper, is able to make prompt deliveries and to take care of his ever-increasing landscape business through the efficiency of his White Truck. The truck covers a great part of New York State, New Jersey and Connecticut, taking men and materials out on landscape jobs during the spring and summer months.

In fall and winter, the truck makes deliveries from the Schling store on Fifth Avenue to all parts of Greater New York and Long Island.

"The White is surely dependable," writes Mr. Schling. "It has solved our delivery problem by being ready for duty at all times, making long or short trips faster, better and more economically than any other means of transportation."

Leading florists in all parts of the country have adopted White Trucks as standard delivery equipment because comparative cost records show White Trucks not only do the most work, but they do it for the least money.

How Do You Buy Moss?

By the bale? Certainly.

Every bale of moss looks the same. But the eye is deceptive.

There is the "supposed-to-be" standard size bale of moss, 44 x 14 x 14, and the "Rando Brand" bale of moss, which is 48x14x16. Naturally, there is a slight difference in price, but the "Rando Brand" bale contains over 20% more moss than you would get if you buy the "supposed-to-be" standard size 44x14x14 bale. When you are ordering moss consider price, quantity and quality.

Because we have our own swamps—because we harvest, dry, prepare and bale our own moss, you will find, by placing one order for moss, that you receive all of these when you specify "Rando Brand."

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

GAINING FAVOR FOR GLADIOLI

In gaining favor for flowers in general, the only practical method is to feature each genus or race of flowers in its season. Though the main principles of publicity are applicable to all flowers, there are special details of publicity for each type of flowers, including gladioli.

By MRS. A. H. AUSTIN.

AS THE season approaches when millions of gladiolus blooms go to waste annually, the question arises, "In what ways may the retail florist use the flowers so they will be brought to the attention of possible purchasers?" When people stop at our gladiolus field to admire and purchase blooms, declaring they never saw anything so lovely and they don't see why they cannot find such beauties in the city, and when we know that the florist near their city home, whose store they pass daily, is using the same varieties, from the same field and possibly even from the same row—then we wonder if that florist has put our flowers under the table. We have even gone so far as to "walk in upon" our florist quite unexpectedly, departing well pleased but still wondering. The fact remains that the field visitor has discovered something varying from the usual landscape, something that especially attracted his attention. It may be only curiosity that prompts him to stop, but he becomes interested and seldom leaves without purchasing.

Unusual Uses.

Now, what about the retail florist? Has he something in his window or is he doing something varying from the usual, which will attract the passerby to the extent that he may be led eventually to become a purchaser? As appreciation of anything is measured by knowledge of it, so does the demand for gladioli depend upon the extent to which the public is educated in regard to the beauty and uses of the flowers, and there is such dire need for this educational publicity that I would suggest, first, that much of the surplus stock be used in some rather unusual way along the line of advertising, in which the retail florist through his work may gain the attention of the buying public.

A Gladiolus Pageant.

When this flower is on the market in greatest abundance, amid summer's dull demand, I would suggest that the retail florist plan and carry into execution a gladiolus pageant in his city. Of course, in such a great demonstration as this might be made, he should be ably assisted by the commission florist and the grower. Being a member of the S. A. F. would insure suitable advertising through the usual channels, directing the public mind to the fact that August is the month of gladioli, in the same way that June is the month of roses.

In speaking of pageants, who can question the advertising value of the raisin day pageant in Fresno, Cal.—the value even in Fresno, itself, where everyone knows all about raisins? With organization and judicious advertising, even far-off Ohio caught the echo and is helping swell the demand. Likewise all who ever witnessed Pasadena's rose pageant, or Portland's wonderful displays, have mentally resolved that roses shall be theirs.

In this gladiolus pageant of autos and floats, I would advocate the free distribution of many blooms, one spike to a person, tossed to the bystanders by pretty flower girls. Each float could be of special, descriptive design. One might represent a wedding, another a garden party, another a luncheon, etc., all with appropriate decorations of gladioli and with people taking the parts. Of course there would be expense connected with it, but this would be one of the first steps to get the public interested in your work.

Mrs. A. H. Austin at Work with Her Favorite Flower.

Special Sale.

Another step toward getting the public into your store would be to have a banner on each float advertising the fact that for a short time gladioli would be sold at extremely low prices.

This sale might be for one to three days and would immediately follow the pageant. But during the sale the prices should be made so reasonable that the most humble home could have the flowers in quantity and the occupants of the home would thus be given the opportunity to become acquainted with gladioli in all their variety of form and coloring. The memory of those flowers would linger long and create a desire for more, regardless of price. Be ready for your sale by having gladioli made up in every conceivable form. During the sale, attention should be called to the different designs and their uses, and suggestions should be made as to various decorations.

Harmonious Color Schemes.

Emphasize the importance of harmonious color schemes by selecting and showing varieties that may be combined either by the blending of colors or in striking contrast. For instance, show the velvety purple gladiolus, Baron Hulot, arranged in contrast with the deep gold of Gladiolus primulinus, or yellow or creamy blooms of the larger varieties.

Point out the pansy-like effect in the blending of the lavender and purple of Baron Hulot with buds of white intermingled with buds of purple and open blooms of the solid Lily White. With the addition of the large, wide-open white gladioli for the center, in combination with this last blending of purple, lavender and white, and the interspersing of valley or baby's breath and the usual greens, could anything be richer or more suitable for a casket cover?

In making a gladiolus piece of any design, the usual greens should be used, as well as small flowers, such as valley and baby's breath, and in some instances a few of the sword-like leaves of the gladioli.

The Primulinus Hybrids

If a basket of flowers is called for, try the primulinus hybrids in their pastel shades. These graceful little flowers may be had in various colors now and should become especially valuable in design work as well as for basket use.

In a wreath in which cattleyas and white roses are used, there are gladioli in similar beautiful shadings that may be used with good result.

A blanket formed of the large, creamy blooms of Niagara and small primulinus types in the same color or shading slightly, in shower form, with narrow ribbon of the same tint, would be highly effective.

In any design in which lilies are used, there are gladioli resembling them that may be partly substituted, of course adding the needed greens, with fine flowers and appropriate chiffon or ribbon.

A wreath of good size, consisting of large, wide-open gladiolus blooms and small tip blooms, the gladiolus foliage being combined with smilax and Asparagus plumosus and softened with fine flowers, might be a little out of the usual.

Mother's Corsage Bouquet.

Mother's box of flowers last May was so pleasing that she looks longingly at the windows. Perhaps an old-fashioned bouquet, made of gladioli of various colors and having a collar of fancy paper, might bring tender memories. But no, mother is not old-fashioned. She really wants the latest fad in a gladiolus corsage bouquet. Don't send a bunch of America, Mrs. F. King and Augusta to her; she remembers when they were introduced, and it seems a long time ago. There are newer varieties that make up beautifully in baskets or otherwise, using the large and small varieties, and they make a pleasing change, although the old standbys also are lovely.

The auto vase should be encouraged and gladioli suggested.

Don't show cold gray and white photographs of brides' bouquets; have half a dozen real ones made of gladiolus buds, many of which closely resemble the rose, while their diversity of color is much greater. Better yet, a real young lady, not a wax figure, dressed as a bride, carrying her bouquet and posing in the window at intervals, would show off the flowers well and make a good impression.

Initiating the Young Man.

If a young man chances to stop and gaze fixedly at the bouquet, you may be sure he has something on his mind. Possibly it is the first time he ever really noticed one, and if it interests him to the extent that he enters your store to inquire about that "bo—er—er—those flowers in the window," explain to him as you show the bouquet that it is made up of gladioli, which are the popular and suitable flowers for his needs and—lest he forget—that bridesmaids use them, too.

A bride's bouquet made of the large, opening buds in the soft, melting pink shade of Gretchen Zang, combining baby's breath with the green and showering it with white buds and Zang tip flowers, would win a customer every time.

A bouquet of white gladioli combined with the pink of Panama would be equally beautiful, but for Mother's corsage, on this occasion, use the pure, opalescent mauve variety, Herada, combined with white buds and veiled with baby's breath.

Suggest that the porch should breathe its word of welcome with gladioli and that the large, stately varieties of brilliant coloring are most suitable for this purpose. With their stalks well filled with water, gladioli stand both wind and strong sunlight better than the average flower.

After the sale is over, continue the window attractions, varying from the usual baskets, vases, etc., by using something seen less frequently. It might be better, occasionally, to try to attract mainly one class. Let us try the boys.

A Boy's Window.

Using a black background, have large jars of light-colored gladioli and a boy, one of the Tom Sawyer kind. A boy with light or red hair would be best. Have him dressed in light-colored clothing and wearing a somewhat battered straw hat with a gladiolus spike in it, and with another gladiolus in his suspender buckle. Get him interested in removing the gladioli from the jars, bunching them in lots of twenty-five and placing them in bushel baskets, using at least two baskets. America would be an especially good variety for this attraction, as the large lavender-pink blooms would contrast beautifully with the black background. Have a conspicuous sign in large letters:

AMERICA BY THE BUSHEL.

And in smaller wording:

Gladiolus America, per bunch, ...
Gladiolus America, per basket, ...

When a basket is full, remove it as if sold and replace it with an empty one. Refill the jars also. Keep everything moving, for the whole expression of this window would be quantity, quality and brisk business. The boy would be sure to have a crowd of envious admirers and Dad would be called upon to take at least one bunch home to Mother. Many of his chums would follow his example.

Get people watching for something new in your window. A young girl in the center of the window, posing as if measuring a particularly tall gladiolus spike with a yardstick, would be an interesting attraction.

What About Birthdays?

I venture to say that if people were really in the habit of observing birthdays with flowers, the demand would be such that instead of gluts there would not be flowers enough to go around. Now, birthdays come every day and so must be gone after every day with some form of advertising.

Begin with Father's birthday and devote a window or a portion of it entirely to display that would be appropriate for the average man. I have observed that most men not especially interested in flowers are more quickly attracted by the bright ones. So Father's birthday table in your window should be decorated with bright or somewhat striking flowers. A centerpiece of the wine-red of Mrs. Watt would be beautiful and perhaps would be happily retrospective. A bunch of the variety Mrs. Frank Pendleton, Jr., loosely arranged, would be pleasing for his den, library or office.

For the boy use large, bright gladioli and plenty of them. Perhaps have four or five bunches partly surrounding the birthday cake—an imitation one—so that when he tells the boys about it he will be sure to include the flowers.

The little girl's birthday corner in your window might have a small, fancy basket of delicately colored flowers. She likes to imitate older people; so make a tiny corsage for her, using the small varieties, and don't forget an even smaller basket and corsage for her dolly's birthday, too.

Keep up the birthday corner daily, one class at a time—Father's today, Mother's tomorrow, etc.—and not omitting the sweetheart. It might be well to mention a few of the more expensive varieties that could be substituted for the ordinary ones for the last-mentioned purpose, because "he" wants "her" to know that her bouquet is not a common one. And if one of those exclusive people, who consider gladioli beneath their notice, should happen along, casually mention that those 5-to-25-dollar-a-bulb varieties are hard to get.

Learn the names of the varieties and teach them to your customer; he will be more interested and can place his order more intelligently.

Studying the Customers.

The more progressive florist, no doubt, has endless suggestions that he can make in trying to arouse his customers' interest, for no one should enter the florists' business with the sole idea of selling flowers. The florist has a profession wherein he should study his customers; he should become a judge of humanity to the extent that he may know by intuition what suggestions to make for the greater happiness of mankind. His heart must be in his work, for his is the sacred mission of dispensing, through flowers, comforting sympathy, good cheer and all that goes to make up happiness and the betterment of life.

A short time ago a lawyer's child remarked to me, "Papa's business is so unhappy," but the florists' business is one of love. And, after all, love rules the world.

MINNIE LILLEY OF MARION.

Not Marion, O., but Marion, Ill., claims among its residents the bearer of the calla lilies in the illustration on page 16, who bears as well the name of her aunt, who has made it well known in the trade. The aunt, Mrs. Minnie Lilley Copeland, was, like the personage of Marion, O., earlier connected with the newspaper business. But when her husband, James P. Copeland, in 1901 sold the Marion Leader, flowers, not politics, engaged the couple's attention.

Now Mrs. Copeland not only operates the Marion Greenhouses, doing a retail business, but her six years of proprietorship since her husband's death in 1914 have so fitted her for responsibility that she not long ago purchased the wholesale range of George C. Beal, at Creal Springs, Ill. Business at both places is thriving under Mrs. Copeland's energetic administration.

PITTSBURGH, PA.

The Market.

The flower market has been exceedingly brisk during the last week. Quantities of gladioli have been arriving daily. Asters are also making their first appearance. The supply of carnations is limited this season. Roses have been fairly good.

Various Notes.

The report of the Texas State Florists' Association convention failed to record, among the firms represented in the trade exhibits, the display of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. The company was represented by Hiram A. Frishkorn, who reported the convention a wonderful success.

T. Malbranc, of Johnstown, Pa., visited Pittsburgh and reported that he had just returned from the Georgian bay district, where he spent two weeks houseboating and fishing.

Reports have been heard that the roads for touring from Pittsburgh to Cleveland are poor. Florists who motor from eastern territories by way of Pittsburgh to Cleveland are cautioned to avoid the usual road by way of Youngstown through Darlington. Any tourists passing through Pittsburgh are cordially invited to call on the McCallum Co. or the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. and obtain directions for points farther north.

Jake Gerwig and Gus Wentz, of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., are spending their vacations on a two weeks' fishing trip in northern Pennsylvania.

Sam Chapman, bookkeeper for the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., returned after two weeks of touring through Ohio. He reports that the roads through Ohio are in fair condition.

G. S. Brown, of G. S. Brown & Son, Vandergrift, visited Pittsburgh last week. He stated that one cannot depend upon express or parcel post shipments, and when in need of something special, would better call for it.

From all indications the florists of Pittsburgh are going to be well represented at the Cleveland convention.

Considerable attention has been given to the most artistic displays of fruit and cut flowers at the shop of the McClements Co.

It is reported that neither G. Wessnauer, of Sewickley, nor Raymond S. Rainbow, of Fair Oaks, Pa., will take a vacation this year.

H. J. Hook, auditor of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., left recently on his vacation for Atlantic City, N. J.

H. A. Frishkorn, salesman for the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., is reported well again after undergoing an operation on his throat. H. J. H.

WICHITA, KAN.

During a storm Saturday, July 31, hail completely demolished the glass in the ranges of C. P. Mueller, W. H. Culp & Co. and others. It is considered the most disastrous storm in the history of the city. Mr. Mueller and Mr. Culp are taking their losses philosophically and are on the job making repairs. Both firms carried hail insurance. The stocks of carnations and chrysanthemums show considerable damage. J. A. L.

SUGGESTIONS ON F. T. D.

I should like to call attention to a condition existing in the trade today, relative to telegraph delivery service, that causes the displeasure of the public. The condition is especially evident in Texas. The complaint is that members of the F. T. D. do not fill orders on time.

A gentleman not long ago came into our store to give us an order for another city and insisted upon our getting a reply from the florist in the other city that the order would receive proper attention. This, of course, made it necessary to charge him for the extra message. This gentleman asserted that telegraph delivery for flowers was, under ordinary conditions, worthless. Can this opinion be allowed to gain strength? If it does, what then?

On the question of substitution my opinion is that when a customer gives an order for roses, carnations or any other special flowers he should also name a substitute, even for funeral designs and sprays, so that something may be used if the florist who receives the order cannot supply the customer's choice.

I also think that we should not send a telegraph order to a florist for a dozen roses at $3, when in the other city they may be worth $6, but should make the order read, "roses to cost $3." Also, when a telegraph order runs from two to six months without being paid, I think that the discount should not be allowed.

Matters such as these should be brought up and discussed at the meetings of the large trade associations, especially at the convention of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association, to be held at Indianapolis next October.

Mrs. Annie Wolfe Brigance.

HYDRANGEAS LOSING FOLIAGE.

In reply to O. O. B., who received advice concerning trouble with his hydrangeas, from which the leaves were falling, in the July 15 issue of The Review, I should say that the fact that they became covered with a web strongly suggests its being the work of red spider. Allowing the plants to become dry would cause the loss of their leaves, but would not account for the web being on them. In the summer of 1918 I saw nearly a houseful which were covered with red spider and lost their leaves. These plants had been grown in the house all summer, while plants planted outside were not affected at all.

H. T. Corfield.

REMOVING PUTTY.

The following suggestions may be of help to greenhouse owners who are rebuilding during the summer:

We have been doing a good deal of greenhouse reconstruction work this summer and have found our biggest problem to be the cleaning of the putty out of the bars where it had been bedded under the glass. We used everything that was to be thought of to remove this putty, but in vain. Finally we tried Prestolite gas, which comes in tanks, and used a small burner to heat the putty; this brought it out easily and clean.

This method darkens the wood with the heat. So we took our power circular saw, removed the saw and put in its place a round wire brush one foot in diameter. Running this at high speed, we passed the bars over the brush and got them looking as clean as new stock.

Now our houses are up, with two coats of paint, and look as good as new.

Philip J. Goebel.

USINGER'S UTTERANCES.

Mr. Lamont has joined A. J. MacKinnon, Flint, Mich., and the firm name will be MacKinnon & Lamont. Mrs. MacKinnon and her son have been confined to their home with sickness since June.

Mr. Freyling, of the Wealthy Avenue Floral Co., Grand Rapids, Mich., has completed the Italian garden at the entrance to his office. This has been instrumental in getting several commissions for landscape work, which proves the adage, "To sell anything, you must be able to show the goods."

Arthur Crabb and Eli Cross, Grand Rapids, Mich., after a busy morning, were arranging for a fishing date. The size of the catch is not known. Mr. Crabb has been busy with funeral work and June brought its quota of wedding work. Mr. Cross reports that his greenhouses are ready for fall. Business has been good through the summer months.

J. A. Bissinger, Lansing, Mich., and Mrs. Bissinger are in California. They are expected to return in September.

The Lansing Floral Co., Lansing, Mich., was busy with funeral work all summer. Several landscape jobs have been finished. Miss Fenore, of Grand Rapids, is now managing the store.

Harry Saier, Lansing, Mich., reports a good season in all departments. The seed trade has been unusually heavy.

NEWARK, N. J.

Gladioli are now arriving freely and asters are increasing in number. Because of the scarcity of other flowers and the fact that they do not keep well, ferns are now being used more than at any other season for window decorations. Flowers are much cheaper than they were, but they are slightly above the usual midsummer prices. Several florists report an unusual amount of summer funeral work.

Fred Philips, of Philips Bros., who spent the month of July at Allenhurst, on the New Jersey coast, has returned, and his brother, Frank, has gone to the same place to spend the month of August.

Fred P. Wolfinger reports that there is much funeral work at present, but that, as usual in summer, other lines are a little slack.

FRESH SOIL FOR MUMS.

We are just stirring up the soil in the chrysanthemum benches for the first time this season and find that the soil is infested with small grubs. We should like to know if we may expect serious trouble and if there is any way known to destroy the pest. B. G. C.—Minn.

You certainly may expect serious trouble with your chrysanthemum plants if planted in soil infested with grubs. I should suggest that you clean out the benches and fill with fresh soil, at the same time giving the inside of the house a thorough cleaning. We have so many pests to contend with that it does not pay to take chances with the crop by doing things in a haphazard way.

I have inferred from your letter that the soil now in the benches has been carried over from some other crop and it was intended to use it for the chrysanthemums without changing it. I am not in favor of doing this, believing that, if for no other reason than that of keeping the insect pests in check, it pays to give plants fresh soil each year. A dressing of fresh, air-slaked lime will help to check the grubs, but to apply enough to kill them will also be harmful to the plants.

M. P.

MILLEPEDES ON MUMS.

I am sending you a sample of worms that are in the ground and are cutting my chrysanthemums. They start at the bottom under the ground and make a hole in the side of the stem and eat out the center of the stem. Is there anything that I can do to stop them?

H. E. R.—Mich.

The worms are known as millepedes and attack roots and stems of plants. They are generally brought into the soil through the manure. I should suggest that you purchase the best grade of florists' tobacco dust and scatter a little of it on the ground around the base of the plants where the worms are working. Late in the day is the best time to put on the dust and, as it is washed away by watering or syringing, make other applications while any of the insects remain. Soot worked into the surface of the soil will also check the worms. Slug Shot used in the same manner as the tobacco dust is another good remedy.

RETAIL STORE MANAGEMENT

WHAT THE LEADERS IN THE TRADE ARE DOING

POETRY FOR PUBLICITY.

Retail florists have so extensively made use of the various verses on the "Say It with Flowers" published in The Review from time to time that trade poets have been encouraged to further efforts. All is to the benefit of the trade, of course, for the spread of the slogan means more advertising for florists. And for attracting immediate attention, it is the opinion of some retailers that the verses they have included in their advertisements have been quite successful.

Robert N. Lister, at Assinippi, Mass., mingles with his ability as a grower a facility for verse. The latter has had greater opportunity for exercise since he has been laid up of late. He thinks there would be opportunity to supply verses for florists' advertisements at a fee, just as copy-writers work in advertising agencies. His slogan poem is as follows:

"Say It with Flowers."
When fortune smiles on busy mart
And you would fain to friends impart
Congratulations from the heart,
"Say It with Flowers."

"Say It with Flowers."
When you would whisper soft and clear
Words fashioned for a lady's ear
"Say It with Flowers."

"Say It with Flowers."
Or should that day of joy arise,
The sweet bride sees with tender eyes
The opening of her paradise,
"Say It with Flowers."

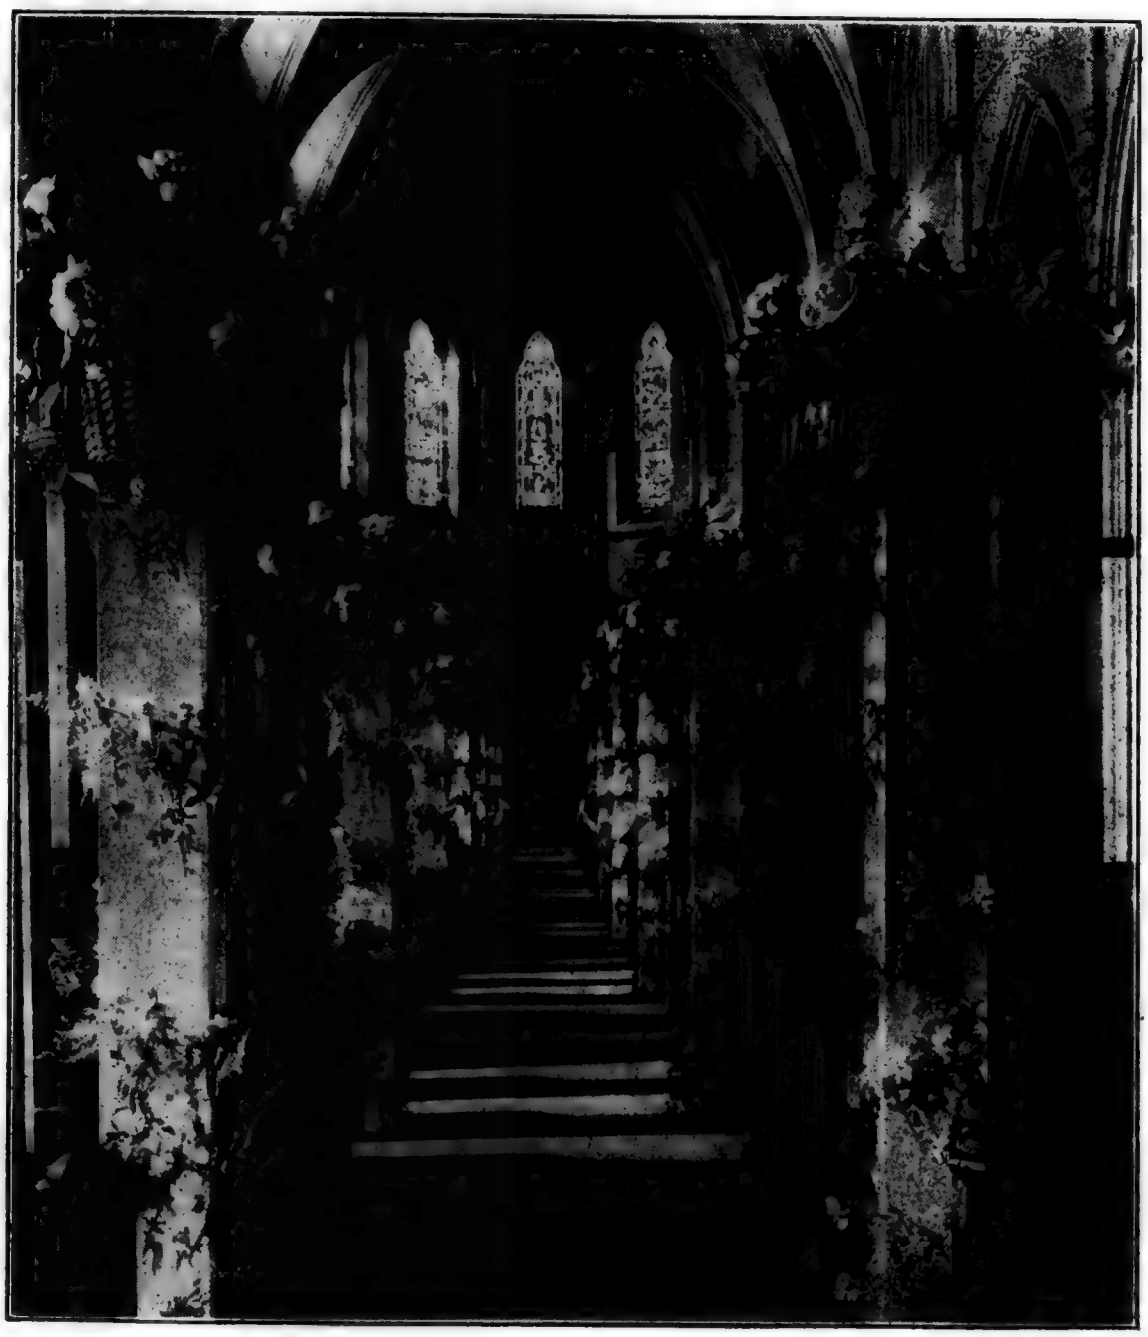
"Say It with Flowers";
When sorrow's dismal tale is said,
When all the joys of life are fled,
Words make poor shift to mourn the dead;
"Say It with Flowers."

As a specimen of the form of verse the florist might use to emphasize various uses of flowers, Mr. Lister submits the following:

SAY IT WITH FLOWERS.

General Daniel Cupid attacks the forts of love;
He lays a barrage on the front
And bombs it from above;
He climbs the heights, he scales the walls,
Takes trenches, works and towers;
The fair foe then capitulates,
For Dan is armed with flowers.

STEAMER ORDERS BOOMING.



This summer has seen an increase in steamer orders to antebellum proportions. The exodus to foreign parts of those who have been at home acquiring war-time profits in several previous seasons is so large that all vessels which sail are booked full weeks beforehand. Every Saturday half a dozen big liners leave New York harbor, carrying more than 5,000 passengers, of whom at least a third are cabin passengers, possible recipients of steamer flowers. These large passenger lists, combined with the country's general prosperity, make this season a banner one for seaport florists and for those who advertise their facilities for telegraphing flowers to the ports of departure.

No previous summer has seen the demand for flowers in general so strong as it is this year. Part of it may be due to the continued cool weather in many places, but more of it doubtless comes as a result of the fact that people have been buying more flowers than usual the past year and can afford to buy more than they have before. No matter what the analyst finds at the root of this condition, the florist who is not worn out with making money during the winter—there are not so many—is ready to take advantage of the present opportunity to make the period of the dog days as profitable as some colder ones. Steamer flowers offer this opportunity not only to seaport florists, but also to those in other sections of the country who push telegraph business.

FOR WEDDING AT CHURCH.

Changing the solemn appearance of a church to one of brightness and joy was effectively done by Coombs the Florist, at Hartford, Conn., for a wedding recently. It was accomplished by erecting large white pillars and using a profusion of flowers. The effect achieved, as can be seen from the illustration on this page, was quite different from an ordinary wedding decoration.

Along the center aisle of the church large white pillars were connected by strings of asparagus and pink snapdragons interwoven. Upon the tops of these pillars were large green baskets, which were filled with pink peonies and ferns. Entwined around the pillars were more snapdragons and asparagus. These pillars were placed at intervals the whole length of the aisle, leading up to the front of the church, which was banked with palms and ferns.

RETAILERS' OPPORTUNITIES.

At Cleveland.

I often wonder whether retail florists generally attach the importance they might to the annual trade exhibition of our society. I do not mean by this, that they do not attend it, for we have always a big following of retailers at these conventions. What I really mean is, why do not more retailers make it a point to be in attendance, to see what is presented for the advancement of their end of the business?

There is another advantage in attendance now, one which did not exist until within recent years. Retail florists at our conventions now like to meet others of their kind there, florists from the different cities where, perhaps, many orders are required to be filled in the course of a year. The exchange of orders by telegraph results in business which in volume is most remarkable. Our trade exhibition furnishes a splendid opportunity for florists anxious to do business of this kind to meet others equally anxious. It is like killing two birds with one stone. I hope many of the eastern retailers will give thought to this, for I really believe that their western brethren better realize our convention possibilities.

Refresh Both Business and Health.

There are many subjects on our program this year of interest to retail florists and we shall welcome a larger representation from retail ranks. August is the best time of year for a retail florist to take a vacation and the convention furnishes a splendid object for a journey to Cleveland, in itself a city worthy a visit by any florist. Lay down your cares for a few days and arrange to be in the convention city on the opening date, August 17. Enjoy the hospitality of your Cleveland brethren and return home refreshed with the feeling that you have made a trip productive of benefit to your health and of increased interest in the business you have chosen for your life's work. You need not go alone; take your wife along with you, for she, perhaps, needs a change as much as you do and, likely as not, shares your worries and counsels you in the conduct of your business. We are a happy lot at our conventions; come to Cleveland and enjoy meeting with us. A. L. Miller, Pres.

CONVENTION DETAILS.

Meetings to Be in Hotel.

The secretary of the society arrived July 27 in Cleveland, where he will remain until after the convention. His first day was devoted largely to a conference with Vice-president F. C. W. Brown and Director H. P. Knoble, at which various details in connection with the gathering were discussed.

While every effort has been made to arrange for the holding of the convention sessions in the exhibition hall, conditions render this impossible and it has been decided to hold all meetings in the ballroom of the Hotel Hollenden, only three short blocks away in a direct line and less than five minutes' walk. The second floor of the Ninth Garage will be used for the trade exhibition, instead of the third floor as originally planned, and the change is advantageous, as floor arrangements provide for a better display of exhibits.

Exhibits not yet forwarded should be shipped consigned to the exhibitor, in care of the convention of the Society of American Florists, Ninth Garage, St. Clair avenue and East Sixth street, Cleveland, charges prepaid. An arrangement has been made with the garage management to store any shipment that may arrive before the convention, at a nominal charge.

Everything points to a most successful convention, especially in point of attendance. The entertainment to be provided will be quite in keeping with the importance of the gathering.

On arrival at the convention hall, members should register at the secretary's office. This is most important. Cards for admission have been issued to all members in good standing. Members not yet in good standing for 1920 can facilitate matters if they will send in their checks for the $5 annual dues now, so as to receive their cards ahead of the convention. All cards must be shown at the entrance gate.

Any exhibitor having an exhibit or part of an exhibit which it is desired the judges should pass upon, should send in to the secretary a description of it as far in advance of the opening date as may be convenient.

Great difficulty is found in the way of procuring office desks for exhibitors, but flat tables will be provided in place of them to the extent possible. Arrangements are being made to supply horses and table tops suitable for use as exhibition tables, which, it is expected, may obviate the necessity of meeting high charges of carpenters and others.

Copy for signs should be sent without delay to the secretary, in care of the Hotel Hollenden, Cleveland, so that the signs may be in readiness at the time of staging exhibits.

Publicity Campaign.

We have been fortunate in securing as a speaker at the convention session Wednesday afternoon, August 18, which will be devoted mainly to the publicity campaign, S. R. Latshaw, advertising director of the Butterick Publishing Co., publishers of Delineator, Everybody's Magazine, Woman's Magazine, Romance and other well known publications. He is an expert in publicity and in institutional advertising and a noted speaker. He returned recently from a trip to the Pacific coast, where he made a study of association advertising, even sitting in some of the board meetings of these associations. He is well known in Cleveland; the secretary of the Cleveland Advertising Club recently wrote to the secretary of the advertising council of the Chicago Association of Commerce, who was in quest of speakers, that Mr. Latshaw had made the biggest hit of any of the speakers last year who spoke before the club. This gentleman and Major O'Keefe will be a pair of speakers at this session whom everybody will be delighted to hear. John Young, Sec'y.

AT PLEASANT HILL, MO.

When the florists of Kansas City, Mo., accepted the invitation of the Pinehurst Floral Co., Pleasant Hill, Mo., to hold a picnic at Pleasant Hill July 5, the visiting tradesmen were not only shown a good time and given good things to eat, but were treated to a wonderful display of flowers. Chief among this display were some 3 to 9-inch cyclamen plants, which were highly commended. These plants were the results of the labors of William Day, who has charge of the Pinehurst range and has been growing cyclamens for the last twenty-five years. The illustration of these plants on page 21 shows the growth of the plants at the time and gives assurance that Mr. Day will have an excellent Christmas crop.

Nor was this all that the Kansas City florists saw at the range. Some excellent specimens of Asplenium Nidus were featured in one house. The illustration on this page shows 15,000 Mrs. M. A. Patten begonia plants, which filled three houses. Some notable Pandanus Veitchii were also seen.

That this firm looks forward to a continuation of the large demand for flowers is evident from the assertion of Manager P. A. Manson that 45,000 carnations were benched July 10 and over 50,000 rose plants, principally Premier, Dunlop, Butterfly, Crusader and John Cook, are in fine shape and everything points to one of the largest cuts of roses ever placed on the Kansas City market.

Reproduced herewith is a photograph of the officers of the Pinehurst Floral Co., grouped at their round table, discussing, perhaps, the why and wherefore of gluts, or maybe they are planning another picnic for the city folks. The firm, which was established May 1, 1914, to succeed the Kellogg Flower & Plant Co., has been steadily growing and is now one of the foremost wholesale concerns in the west. The officers are: President, Tucker Smith; vice-president and treasurer, Earl Parker; secretary, Harry Blake, and general manager, P. A. Manson.

The Market.

Summer trade has been rather quiet, but there have been a few busy days when the forces of the various stores were kept hustling.

The crop of summer roses is getting smaller each day and the flowers are smaller and the stems shorter. Gladioli are plentiful and are used a great deal. Carnations are small and are used only for funeral work. Sweet peas are in their prime and the market is flooded with them; consequently the price is low. White sweet peas have been much used for July weddings. Lilies of the valley can be had only in small quantities.

Various Notes.

Baskets of garden flowers in combinations such as calendulas and bachelor's buttons, coreopsis and larkspurs, crimson ramblers and gypsophilas are much in demand for hospitals and funerals and for use as gift baskets.

E. P. Wilson is planning a camping trip in the Adirondacks the latter part of August.

Herman Zahn, of H. E. Wilson's force, will leave August 7 for Conesus lake, New York, to spend his vacation.

Harry P. Merritt, of Irondequoit, is still cutting Pink Delight carnations.

E. C. Armbrust and Mrs. Armbrust are spending their vacation at Bayview Beach, Keuka lake, New York.

Miss Pansy Dean left August 1 for Canada, where she will spend part of her vacation; later she will go to Flint, Mich.

Thomas Sullivan has returned from his vacation.

The rain and electric storm July 24 did a great deal of damage to outdoor stock.

The park commission has asked for the help of the citizens in exterminating the tussock moth, which has done much damage in this city recently.

C. H. A. CONVENTION.

August 10 to 13, 1920.

Well, Jane, I've just decided that we'll go to the convention.
It's held in Hamilton this year, a place I'd like to see,
And they're working there like Trojans, Groves and others; their intention
Is to make a pleasant outing for folks like you and me.

It's a lovely little city, nestled right beside a mountain
On the one side, on the other circled by a splendid bay;
Just the spot to have the rare good time on which I'm countin',
And when the week is ended we won't want to come away.

They're coming from all over. From New York comes John and Max,
Mr. Brown from far Vancouver at the coast.
Paul will be there from Chicago, Fraser comes from Halifax,
Every live man in the business you will find there at his post.

So, Ma, get your work completed, be in readiness to start;
Put a feather in your bonnet—"poor the heart that ne'er rejoices"—
I'll get Dobbin extra fed up, clean the harness and the cart,
Must be all dolled up to meet 'em—those fat coves in their Rolls-Royces.

For some coming have their millions—made it in the business, too.
Perhaps they'll tell us how they did it when we meet.
Then when we get home again, we'll try what we can do,
For to be a moneyed magnate must be very, very sweet.

Billy Gammage says he's coming down from "London in the bush."
That's the city where our president keeps a store.
I've never met the latter, but they say he's full of push
And is boosting the old C. H. to the fore.

So we'll bury all our troubles for a few short, happy hours,
And go and get real chummy with them all;
August 10 if nothing happens we will meet the men of flowers,
At "Hamilton the beautiful" in the Royal Connaught hall.

TATE'S TIPS

GROWERS' INSURANCE.

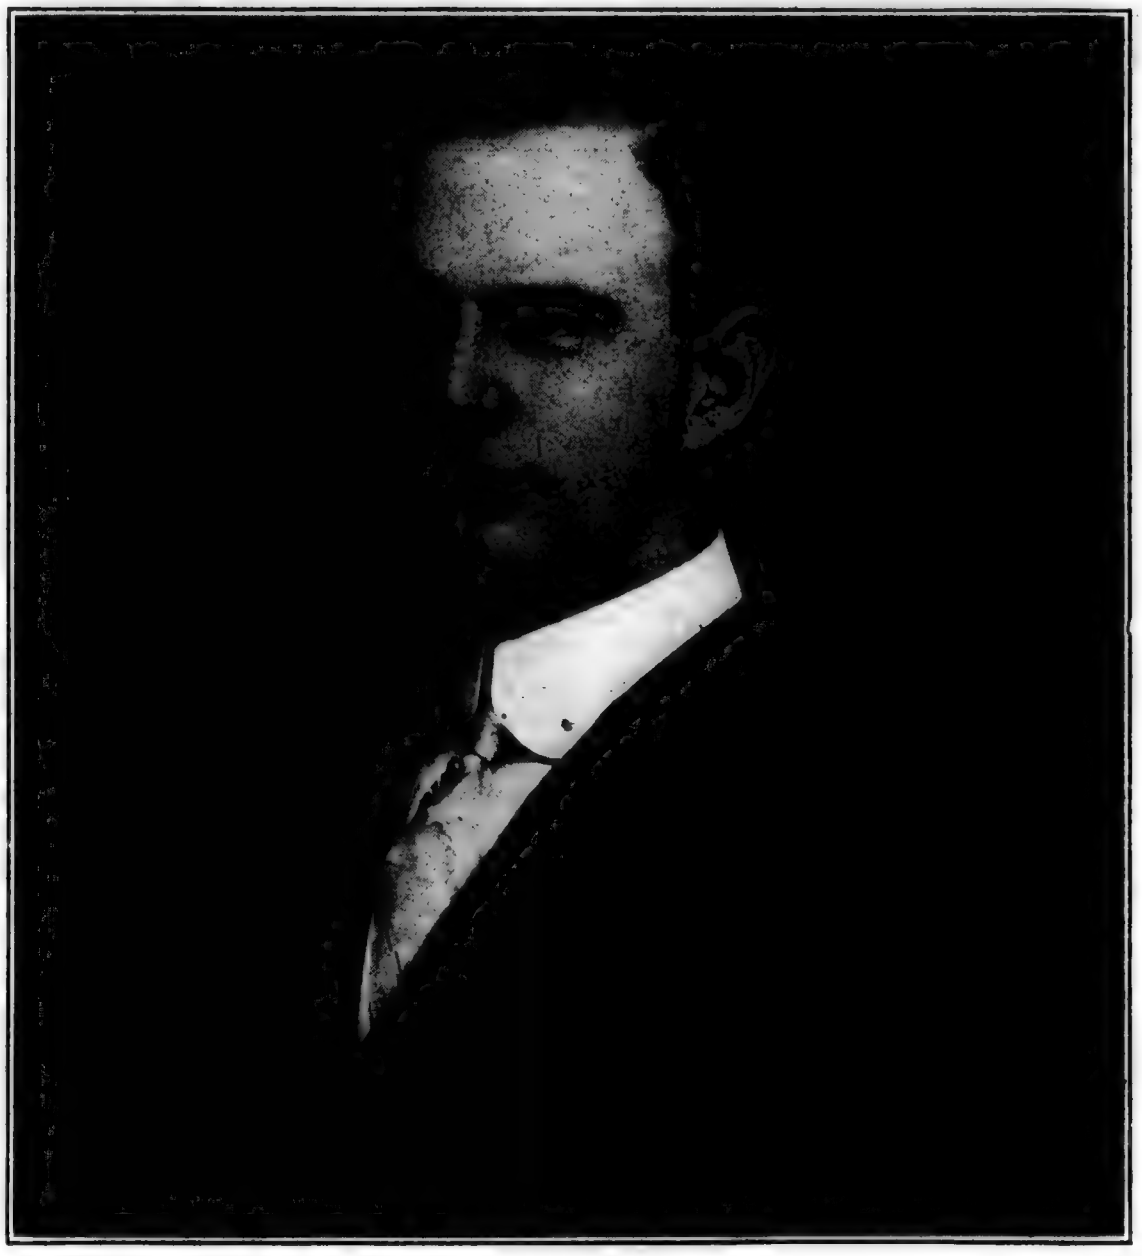
In National Organization.

On behalf of that committee of growers who have been working so untiringly in their efforts to perfect the organization of the National Flower Growers' Association, I want to urge upon every grower of flowers the importance of his presence at the S. A. F. convention in Cleveland. This is a duty you owe to yourselves, to your business and to the trade in general. In making this appeal I am speaking not only to those who at this time feel that a vacation is due them and have arranged their itinerary so that the convention will be part of it, but also to those growers who have not been in the habit of attending the convention. These I urge to make it a matter of business this year and, with those men who have so faithfully performed the preliminary work, put your shoulder to the wheel and launch this new association like the business men that you are; though not generally known as such in the business world, yet you have brought the florists' business with limited capital up to what it is today. There is not a grower in the country but can look upon the industry in which he is engaged, not much over 50 years old, with pride. You have done noble work in those fifty years; you have laid a splendid foundation. Now comes the superstructure; this can be just as imposing as you choose to make it.

Like Fire Underwriters' Function.

Did you ever stop to think that your business is just as hazardous as the fire insurance business, and perhaps more so? On first thought this might be considered a rash statement, but just sit down for a few minutes and think it over. Take, for instance, a man with a range of roses. His eggs are in one basket. What protection has he, aside, perhaps, from fire and hail? Now let us consider for a moment the risk he carries himself. If he is visited by fire and happens to carry insurance, in most cases it will be only on the range, but even if his stock is covered, what becomes of a year's work? If a hail storm comes, he is paid for the glass that is broken, if he is fortunate. Then there are wind and rain storms to be considered. Take last winter, for example, with its protracted spell of cloudy weather; then think of the risk in disease and pests that you have to contend with.

The fire insurance business is looked upon as one of the most hazardous in the business world. But because the fire insurance business is hazardous, that does not prevent it from being one of the strongest and best paying businesses in the country, and what has made it so? Organization! In every large city you will find a board of fire underwriters, whose business it is to regulate the business for the district and who, by throwing every safeguard about the risks carried by the various companies, keep the premium down to a minimum. Remember, too, that the large majority of the legitimate companies are members of the board of fire underwriters and that their rates are uniform. What the fire underwriters are to the insurance companies, the National Flower Growers' Association will be to the florist.



The day has come when haphazard methods in the business must go; competition is becoming keener and margins are no longer what they used to be. In these days of modern efficiency the business must be conducted on scientific business principles and the man who does not realize this is doomed. I am not a calamity howler. I have been giving the whole question much deep study and I am going to give you some figures on the cost of production of cut roses, compiled by the manager of one of the most up-to-date ranges in the middle west, based on a range of 100,000 feet of glass.

Rose Production Costs.

The cost of 100,000 feet of glass, pipe-frame construction, complete with boilers, smokestack and service building, is about $135,000; add for ten acres of suitable land on a railroad, $5,000; reservoir and well, $4,000; four dwellings, $12,000; incidentals, $5,000, making a total of $161,000. This will give us a complete range ready for work; to this we must add 36,000 rose plants, $9,000; two automobile trucks, $3,000; 1,000 feet of hose, $250; tools, insecticides and fertilizers, $2,000, totaling $14,250. Add this to the previous total and we have a total investment of $175,250. We now have a complete range stocked; the next question is labor. This expert says that the following can handle such a range: One foreman, $2,400 a year; two rose growers, $3,600; five additional helpers, $5,000; two firemen, six months each, $1,800; additional labor, $2,000, or a total of $14,800 for labor. Then comes coal; 1,500 tons at $4.25 per ton, if it can be had at that price, will cost $6,375. Ten per cent on the gross investment of $175,250 gives $17,525. Add these two items to labor and we have a total of $38,700.

Now we get down to brass tacks. The varieties of roses most in demand today are Ophelia, Columbia, Russell and Premier. Your average per plant will be about fifteen salable roses; on 36,000 plants, 540,000 roses, provided you have favorable weather conditions. These cost you 7½ cents each the day they are cut in the range. The commission man gets fifteen per cent to sell them; this will add to the original cost about 1¼ cents each, bringing the total cost of production up to about 9 cents for each rose produced.

Now, remember that this calculation is based on a new, efficient range, modern in every respect. How about some of the ranges that have become dilapidated? How about the small fellow who has not the modern facilities? Get out your pencil and do some figuring on your own account; look the situation squarely in the face. Then go to Cleveland; look up some member of the committee and ask him to keep you posted on the meetings of the new association. You will hear things in comparison with which this is but a fairy tale. Tate.

HEADS SWEET PEA SOCIETY.

The presidency of the American Sweet Pea Society is an office which marks the incumbent as one of no mean reputation in the horticultural world. In the eleven years of the society's history the list of the men who have held that title is not long, but it is extremely select. It includes the names of Harry Turner, W. Atlee Burpee, William Sim, Lester L. Morse, William Gray and George W. Kerr as those who have served in the past, Mr. Kerr ending a service of three terms in that office.

To the post so honorably filled in the past succeeds this year William A. Sperling, one well fitted to lead the society after the keen personal interest he has taken in it since its inception in 1909. As secretary of the widely known seed house of Stumpp & Walter Co., New York, Mr. Sperling is familiar to, as well as familiar with, the trade in general. The society receives additional impetus in its forward course by his election.

KANSAS CITY, MO.

The Kansas City Wholesale Cut Flower Co. received its first asters last week. The company also has a large supply of choice roses, new stock. The roses are especially good for hot weather and showed no ill effects from shipping.

Valkenburg, who has been in charge of Vaughan's Nurseries, at Western Springs, Ill., for fifteen years, has signed a contract for three years as general manager of Rock's Gardens and will assume full charge next week. He also has taken an interest in the company. They are cutting 1,000 gladioli a day, also asters, scabiosa, buddleia, ageratum and zinnias.

T. J. Noll, general manager of the T. J. Noll Floral Co., gave a talk on "Prospects for Next Season's Business" at the convention of the Texas State Florists' Association at Fort Worth.

S. Bryson Ayres has been cutting sweet peas all summer. He has taken the glass out of one house and the plants are practically outdoors.

Roses are being planted in the new greenhouses at Longview Farm.

M. F. Carter, manager of the W. L. Rock Flower Co., has returned from Nevada, Mo., where the Seventh Regiment was in camp two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Cane, of the Peterson Floral Co., are spending the summer at their country place, near Little Blue, twenty-five miles from town. Mr. Cane drives in every day and Mrs. Cane is in for two weeks, as Miss M. Durkop is on her vacation.

Miss Mary Zeigler, of the W. L. Rock Flower Co., is visiting her sister at Oklahoma City. Arthur Mohr is spending his vacation in Denver. Mrs. M. Brown is back after two weeks' rest at home.

Tucker Smith and P. A. Manson, of the Pinehurst Floral Co., were in Kansas City July 29. Gladioli are sold clean nearly every day.

The Lippman automatic refrigerating machine of the T. J. Noll Floral Co. is being installed. Mr. Noll has had a pipe installed to supply drinking water.

W. L. Rock will attend the Cleveland convention.

Mrs. E. H. Hedges returned July 31 from a week's visit at St. Joseph, Mo.

Miss Mamie Klein, of A. Newell's shop, is home after two weeks' vacation at Colorado Springs.

When the Fidelity National Bank & Trust Co. moved into the building at Ninth and Walnut streets, officials found a barren space between the street and the Ninth street side of the building. They utilized the spot and made it a place of beauty. The bank custodian's duties now include grass cutting, and he is the only custodian of an office building in Kansas City who has such a job.

L. H. Archias and daughter stopped at Kansas City on their way home to Sedalia. They have been in California for the last two or three months.

Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Bohannon, of the Kansas City Wholesale Cut Flower Co., spent July 29 at St. Joseph, Mo.

Miss Robena Faulkner, of the Apollo Flower Shop, has returned after a month's visit with relatives in New York.

The Muehlebach Flower Shop has bought some real Chinese novelties, including carved stone vases and sandalwood incense. Their Ruskin ware is selling well. Parchment lamp shades are sold out and Mr. Neff has ordered more. The wholesale business in organdie flowers is growing. A guest from Montana at the hotel last week said she had not seen any of these flowers out west and ordered some for her women's wear shop.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. A. Humfeld left August 2 for their farm in the Ozarks, to remain two weeks. While they are away Mrs. Edith Roberts will take care of their retail store.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Thomas, of the Rosery, are home from their California trip. They stopped at Denver, Colorado Springs and Salt Lake City. Mr. Thomas brought home some mountain barley from Catalina island and ordered a shipment of strawflowers.

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE AND WHY

SYDNEY H. BAYERSDORFER.

THE son of the senior member of the firm of H. Bayersdorfer & Co. has made himself well known in the florists' trade both before and since his admission to the firm seven years ago last month. His efforts to secure the latest in supplies are not confined to Philadelphia or even to the United States. As soon as conditions permitted after the war, he went to Europe to gather what stocks he could there, following the trails where his father had made himself welcome in other years. On his recent journey abroad he shipped home many cases of supplies for the florists' trade in this country the coming year. In the photograph reproduced here he is seen packing baskets in Europe for use in the United States.

TATE'S TIPS

GROWERS' INSURANCE.

In National Organization.

On behalf of that committee of growers who have been working so untiringly in their efforts to perfect the organization of the National Flower Growers' Association, I want to urge upon every grower of flowers the importance of his presence at the S. A. F. convention in Cleveland. This is a duty you owe to yourselves, to your business and to the trade in general. In making this appeal I am speaking not only to those who at this time feel that a vacation is due them and have arranged their itinerary so that the convention will be part of it, but also to those growers who have not been in the habit of attending the convention. These I urge to make it a matter of business this year and, with those men who have so faithfully performed the preliminary work, put your shoulder to the wheel and launch this new association like the business men that you are; though not generally known as such in the business world, yet you have brought the florists' business with limited capital up to what it is today. There is not a grower in the country but can look upon the industry in which he is engaged, not much over 50 years old, with pride. You have done noble work in those fifty years; you have laid a splendid foundation. Now comes the superstructure; this can be just as imposing as you choose to make it.

Like Fire Underwriters' Function.

Did you ever stop to think that your business is just as hazardous as the fire insurance business, and perhaps more so? On first thought this might be considered a rash statement, but just sit down for a few minutes and think it over. Take, for instance, a man with a range of roses. His eggs are in one basket. What protection has he, aside, perhaps, from fire and hail? Now let us consider for a moment the risk he carries himself. If he is visited by fire and happens to carry insurance, in most cases it will be only on the range, but even if his stock is covered, what becomes of a year's work? If a hail storm comes, he is paid for the glass that is broken, if he is fortunate. Then there are wind and rain storms to be considered. Take last winter, for example, with its protracted spell of cloudy weather; then think of the risk in disease and pests that you have to contend with.

The fire insurance business is looked upon as one of the most hazardous in the business world. But because the fire insurance business is hazardous, that does not prevent it from being one of the strongest and best paying businesses in the country, and what has made it so? Organization! In every large city you will find a board of fire underwriters, whose business it is to regulate the business for the district and who, by throwing every safeguard about the risks carried by the various companies, keep the premium down to a minimum. Remember, too, that the large majority of the legitimate companies are members of the board of fire underwriters and that their rates are uniform. What the fire underwriters are to the insurance companies, the National Flower Growers' Association will be to the florist.

The day has come when haphazard methods in the business must go; competition is becoming keener and margins are no longer what they used to be. In these days of modern efficiency the business must be conducted on scientific business principles and the man who does not realize this is doomed. I am not a calamity howler. I have been giving the whole question much deep study and I am going to give you some figures on the cost of production of cut roses, compiled by the manager of one of the most up-to-date ranges in the middle west, based on a range of 100,000 feet of glass.

Rose Production Costs.

The cost of 100,000 feet of glass, pipe-frame construction, complete with boilers, smokestack and service building, is about $135,000; add for ten acres of suitable land on a railroad, $5,000; reservoir and well, $4,000; four dwellings, $12,000; incidentals, $5,000, making a total of $161,000. This will give us a complete range ready for work; to this we must add 36,000 rose plants, $9,000; two automobile trucks, $3,000; 1,000 feet of hose, $250; tools, insecticides and fertilizers, $2,000, totaling $14,250. Add this to the previous total and we have a total investment of $175,250. We now have a complete range stocked; the next question is labor. This expert says that the following can handle such a range: One foreman, $2,400 a year; two rose growers, $3,600; five additional helpers, $5,000; two firemen, six months each, $1,800; additional labor, $2,000, or a total of $14,800 for labor. Then comes coal; 1,500 tons at $4.25 per ton, if it can be had at that price, will cost $6,375. Ten per cent on the gross investment of $175,250 gives $17,525. Add these two items to labor and we have a total of $38,700.

Now we get down to brass tacks. The varieties of roses most in demand today are Ophelia, Columbia, Russell and Premier. Your average per plant will be about fifteen salable roses; on 36,000 plants, 540,000 roses, provided you have favorable weather conditions. These cost you 7½ cents each the day they are cut in the range. The commission man gets fifteen per cent to sell them; this will add to the original cost about 1¼ cents each, bringing the total cost of production up to about 9 cents for each rose produced.

Now, remember that this calculation is based on a new, efficient range, modern in every respect. How about some of the ranges that have become dilapidated? How about the small fellow who has not the modern facilities? Get out your pencil and do some figuring on your own account; look the situation squarely in the face. Then go to Cleveland; look up some member of the committee and ask him to keep you posted on the meetings of the new association. You will hear things in comparison with which this is but a fairy tale. Tate.

HEADS SWEET PEA SOCIETY.

The presidency of the American Sweet Pea Society is an office which marks the incumbent as one of no mean reputation in the horticultural world. In the eleven years of the society's history the list of the men who have held that title is not long, but it is extremely select. It includes the names of Harry Turner, W. Atlee Burpee, William Sim, Lester L. Morse, William Gray and George W. Kerr as those who have served in the past, Mr. Kerr ending a service of three terms in that office.

To the post so honorably filled in the past succeeds this year William A. Sperling, one well fitted to lead the society after the keen personal interest he has taken in it since its inception in 1909. As secretary of the widely known seed house of Stumpp & Walter Co., New York, Mr. Sperling is familiar to, as well as familiar with, the trade in general. The society receives additional impetus in its forward course by his election.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

V. A. Cowgill, of Cowgill's Greenhouses, Salem, O., resting behind a cultivator and seeing the robins digging for worms, observed: "It illustrates many conditions in the world's stage as it is today and, being so closely allied to nature, the craft is reaping the most benefit through its munificence." From these remarks it was gathered that business is satisfactory.

• • • •

John Miller, Salem, O., a pioneer in the trade, has turned over his active interests to his son.

• • • •

Claude Tyler, Salem, O., has most of his glass devoted to chrysanthemums, cucumbers and tomatoes. The stock is in healthy condition.

• • • •

Huscroft's Flower Shop, Steubenville, O., looks attractive in its new coat of white. Proprietor E. E. McCauslan has faith in future business.

• • • •

H. E. Kunkel, Warren, O., has a fine batch of carnations planted outdoors. While waiting for a favorable turn in the building trade, plans for rebuilding are held up. Here is a striking instance of what a good grower can accomplish under adverse conditions. With favorable conditions, the result is hard to estimate.

• • • •

The Ryan & Culver Co., Youngstown, O., has made rapid strides in the trade since taking over the H. Cade good will. The name followed to a new store, fitted in every detail with an eye to the rapid expansion of the city's business, "a fact," observed Mr. Ryan, "that we can almost see in each month's business."

• • • •

Henry Walther, Youngstown, O., keeps up a fine display in his uptown store. "So as to let folks see we are ever awake, though it is vacation time. But Youngstown is a busy spot at all seasons," observed our friend.

• • • •

John Walker, Youngstown, O., returned from Miami, Fla., with an infected foot, which has affected the other. His new place of sixteen acres is assuming shape under the eye of Manager Williams, of the John Walker Co., near Hubbard, O. Two Foley greenhouses, each 29x152 feet, are finished and are the nucleus of a large range to be devoted primarily to plants, ferns and cyclamens as the leaders, as the old place made the Boston fern famous in this neighborhood. Mr. Walker hopes to be able to accompany the Youngstown party to the S. A. F. convention.

• • • •

H. A. Imlay, Zanesville, O., has been appointed superintendent of Mill Creek park, Youngstown, O., and is expected to bring about many changes in the department. Mr. Imlay is of the family bearing that name at Zanesville, of which J. M. Imlay is the head, a former regular attendant at the annual conventions of the S. A. F.

• • • •

The Heepe Co., Akron, O., has a seasonable window display, showing a model of a transatlantic steamer surrounded with steamer baskets on a glassy sea, backed with appropriate foliage. It is the work of J. A. Cannon, who recently returned from a trip east to secure decorative stock, which he describes as being scarce and high in price. This firm is adding six John C. Moninger Co. greenhouses, 30x150 feet, for plant growing and expects to erect more to meet the demand.

• • • •

The Hecock Flower Shop, Elyria, O., owing to the scarcity of flowers, did not contribute the floral float expected to appear in the parade of the F. O. E., who were represented from all over the state at a convention here recently. L. C. Hecock says that the rank and file of the trade will uphold the enviable reputation of the Buckeye state in entertaining the visitors to the S. A. F. convention at Cleveland August 17 to 19.

• • • •

The Ward Flower Shop has recently opened a new store in the Goodyear Rubber Co. building in East Akron, O., where a fine display is being kept up.

• • • •

W. P. Kircher, Defiance, O., observed that the grading of cyclamens is a science and, even with a big stock to pick from, sizes run out and the advertisement has to be constantly revised to avoid, as far as possible, disappointment to the purchaser. Another strong item is Solanum Cleveland. About 7,000 stocky plants carrying berries and grown outdoors under the Skinner system are in fine shape.

• • • •

The Anna Dean Perennial Gardens, Barberton, O., exist in name only. The greenhouses connected with the gardens are now under the management of Goden Bros., who are growing vegetables.

HYBRID CATTLEYAS.

Please give me the names of eighteen good hybrid cattleyas and as many læliocattleyas, with their time of blooming and colors. Will they bloom twice a year? Do hybrids vary much in color?

J. D.—Pa.

The following are suggested as desirable hybrids for you to try. Their flowering season is more variable than that of the more popular forest species like gigas, Trianæ, labiata, Mossiæ, Gaskelliana, Mendelii and aurea. In one year a certain hybrid may bloom in May and a year later in August and September. Some varieties will flower twice in a year, but not heavily. While hybrids are extremely beautiful and useful and help to fill in the gaps when we are somewhat short of the standard commercial sorts, they are unlikely ever to equal these for all-around cut flower purposes. If you have a good call for cut orchids, by all means grow some hybrids. You will find them somewhat variable as to type from the same seed pod. It would require too much space here to give colors properly.

Personally I think the time is not far distant when the Federal Horticultural Board will be obliged from horticultural pressure to lower the bars of Quarantine 37 and admit orchids again, for no proof has been given that any dangerous pest has ever come in on them, and, in spite of the assertion of their spokesman that "this measure will stay in force forever," signs are not wanting that the members of the board would beat a graceful retreat if they could only save their faces and retain their jobs.

Here are some good hybrid cattleyas:

Atlanta, flowering February to April.
Brenda, April.
Dusseldorffii Undine, May.
Fabia, September to November.
Enid, May and June.

OBITUARY

Conrad Kohrs.

Conrad Kohrs, of the State Nursery & Seed Co., Helena, Mont., one of the pioneer residents of that city, died July 27 at the age of 85 years.

Mr. Kohrs participated in the gold rush to California in 1848. After coming to Montana he followed various pursuits, finally engaging in cattle raising. He took up large tracts of land where Deer Lodge is now located and became one of the cattle kings of the old days. He was one of the first of these to drive large herds of cattle overland to Salt Lake City, Utah, for railroad shipment east.

In 1902 he purchased an interest in the State Nursery & Seed Co., of Helena, Mont., and while he did not take an active part in its management, he took a deep interest in its progress and development. By his death, T. E. Mills, the president of the firm, has lost an esteemed and beloved friend, as have also the employees, who have had many occasions to remember the genial old man, who never lost sight of their comfort and welfare.

The funeral was held at Deer Lodge, where he had spent so many years of his active life on the ranch. It was largely attended by friends from all parts of the state. One of the impressive notes of the occasion was the formation made by the fifty employees of the nursery, as the cortege passed the grounds, expressing in this silent manner the loss they sustained.

Conrad Kohrs.

Abner Hoopes.

Abner Hoopes, 84 years old, a prominent resident of West Chester, Pa., died July 24 in his apartment in the Mansion House, West Chester, after a long illness. He was one of the founders and senior member of the nursery firm of Hoopes, Bro. & Thomas Co.

Mr. Hoopes was of an old Chester county family, a descendant of Joshua and Izabel Hoopes, who emigrated with their children from Cleveland, Yorkshire, England, in 1683 and settled in Bucks county, Pennsylvania. Abner Hoopes was the second son of Pierce and Sarah Bunting Hoopes. He was born in Philadelphia, his father at that time having a lumber yard on Pine street near the Pennsylvania hospital. For a time Pierce Hoopes conducted a general store at Gay and High streets, West Chester, in partnership with William Sharpless, and later moved to the old Hoopes farm, in West Goshen township.

Abner Hoopes, in company with his brother, the late Josiah Hoopes, established the Maple Avenue nurseries, later associating with George Thomas. Abner Hoopes was president of the company.

He was a member of the Union League Club in Philadelphia and belonged to High Street Meeting of Friends, the West Chester Club and other organizations. For a number of years he was a member of the board of trustees of the State Asylum for the Insane, at Norristown. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Malinda Hoopes; a daughter, Mrs. Louis Baker, of Bala; a son, Wilmer W. Hoopes, of Paoli, and nine grandchildren. Services were held at the West Chester Friends' Meeting, with interment in Oakland cemetery.

Charles A. Hunt.

Charles A. Hunt, 1423 Greenleaf avenue, Rogers Park, Chicago, an insurance man, committed suicide July 30, by shooting himself in a room at the Lorraine hotel, 417 Wabash avenue, Chicago. Mr. Hunt had registered at the hotel as "C. A. Hunt, Evanston." No reason for his act could be given by his widow. Mr. Hunt was 45 years old. He was born at the corner of Roscoe and Halsted streets, Chicago, in 1875. His father, Myron A. Hunt, who located in Chicago in 1857, was one of the first florists in Chicago. He was of the pioneer firm of Miller & Hunt and later removed to Terre Haute, Ind., where he killed himself many years ago, while the son was still a boy. After attending the Lake View High school, "Charlie" Hunt entered business, first as a florist but later, and for many years, was a special agent for the New Amsterdam Casualty Co. He was a member of the Illinois Athletic Club and was known as an expert swimmer. Besides his widow, Grace B., he is survived by one daughter, Dorothy Grace Hunt.

The funeral was held August 2, from the chapel at 3419 North Clark street, Chicago, interment being at Graceland cemetery. There were many flowers and several members of the trade also attended.

Charles Moody Sawyer.

Charles Moody Sawyer, Columbus, O., died of heart trouble July 19 at the home of his brother, Amos H. Sawyer, 250 North Twentieth street. He was 55 years old at the time of his death. Grief over the death of his mother, Mrs. Laura L. Sawyer, November 20, 1919, is believed by relatives to have hastened his death.

Besides his brother, Amos H. Sawyer, he leaves another brother, Emery F. Sawyer, of Marysville, O., and two sisters, Mrs. S. R. Hamill, of Terre Haute, Ind., and Mrs. George H. Atkinson, of New York city.

The body was taken to Piqua, O., for funeral and burial.

William J. Herrmann.

William J. Herrmann, son of H. W. C. Herrmann, Brooklyn, N. Y., died July 27 at St. Catherine's hospital of appendicitis. He was 29 years of age.

Mrs. William Nicholson.

The sincere sympathy of a wide circle of the trade goes out to William Nicholson, of Framingham, Mass., for many years a noted carnation specialist and florist, in the death of his wife July 31 in her eightieth year. Mrs. Nicholson had been seriously ill for a long time and several times her life had been despaired of. Pneumonia was the immediate cause of death.

Mrs. Nicholson had lived on Maynard road over thirty years. She was a hard working, industrious and helpful wife and a great deal of her husband's success was due to her untiring zeal. Four children survive: William R., who succeeded his father in business; Harry, well known in florists' circles in the west; Mrs. Mary Lemon, of Richmond, Ind., and Sarah, residing at home.

Funeral services were held at the home August 2 and were largely attended. A wealth of beautiful flowers attested the esteem of a host of friends. Interment was in Edgell Grove cemetery, near her late home, a beautiful, sequestered and peaceful resting place.

W. N. Craig.

Alexandria, Va.—G. G. Wolt, who has been connected with the Washington Floral Co. for several years, intends to open a store of his own.

Peoria, Ill.—A. M. Augspurger has returned from Fort Worth, Tex., where he had an exhibit at the convention of the Texas State Florists' Association.

Results bring advertising.
The Review brings results.

CASH sales are better this summer than ever before in nearly all flower stores.

EXPRESS rates in Canada will rise forty per cent if the applications filed last week by the companies operating in the Dominion are granted.

CANADIANS will gather at Hamilton, Ont., August 10 to 13 to change the C. H. A. into the S. C. F., so well do they like the American organization.

ONLY a few greenhouses remain idle and those are in sections in the east where the trade is numerous. Ranges in the west are all working to capacity.

IN many sections the trade notes a decided easing in the labor situation, the result of the closing of factories and laying off of employees in other industries.

THE attitude of the presidential candidates towards the excess profits tax seems more important to many florists than their views on the league of nations.

UNEASINESS in retailers' minds in this trade is only in regard to what effect a slackening in other lines will have on their business. There is no fault to find with present sales.

PRINTING The Review begins on Tuesday each week. To make sure of the insertion, alteration or discontinuance of an ad it is necessary that instructions be received by Monday.

ONE would judge eggs would be the last commodity to need advertising at present prices, but the American Poultry Association is contemplating a national campaign similar to that of the S. A. F.

AS prices recede there will be need for additional vigilance regarding credits. Almost anybody can make money in times of high prices, but some will have trouble paying their bills unless they cut expenses as income goes down.

THE annual meeting of the American Gladiolus Society will be held Saturday, August 14, at 3 p. m., in Horticultural hall, Boston, at the time of its show, in connection with that of the Massachusetts Gladiolus Society and the Massachusetts Horticultural Society.

WHEN the last of the idle glass resulting from war restrictions was about to be opened up again, the coal shortage brought a second thought to the owners' minds.

ADEQUATE fuel supply is the prime requisite of the trade for another highly successful season. The grower who can fill his bins this summer will reap reward next winter.

EACH issue of The Review contains large numbers of advertisements never seen elsewhere. It undoubtedly is one of the features which give this publication exceptional value in the eyes of the trade.

POTTERY is finding increasing favor in retail flower stores, but the sources of supply generally known to the trade are few. Will readers who handle this line send the names of the firms supplying them to The Review?

SHARP cuts are being made in some mercantile lines, but florists should beware of offers from unknown concerns of supplies at bargain prices and not send remittances before they are certain of obtaining the merchandise.

THE influx of outsiders into the trade looked for after the war has not materialized. Not till slackening of the labor demand in other trades makes conditions in this one comparatively better will expansion take place.

WEEK after next the S. A. F. convention will fill Cleveland with trade visitors, August 17 to 19. Those who do not want to repeat their lodging experiences at Detroit last year should telegraph for hotel reservations. James MacLaughlin, 421 High avenue, Cleveland, is receiving them.

GOING TO CLEVELAND?

One with an eye on the news reports from various parts of the country cannot have failed to notice how many members of the trade have signified their intention of visiting Cleveland during the noteworthy days from August 17 to 19. The number is larger than for a number of years, and trade visitors in the Fifth City during the convention bid fair to establish a record attendance.

The factors favorable to the convention's success in this respect are numerous. The central location of Cleveland, speaking in respect of trade, is one; the city is readily accessible to the Atlantic seaboard as well as to the central and western sections. It is a good summer convention city as well, feeling the cool breezes of the Great Lakes. Then the busy season through which florists have just passed has put them in the mood for a vacation and given them the ample wherewithal to take it. Finally, though the list has not been given completely, members of the trade wish to know their fellows' opinions regarding the coming season and what it holds in store. Reasons of both business and pleasure urge florists to go to Cleveland. And the indications are that many, many of them will.

PROSPERITY AND PUBLICITY.

No two years in the history of the florists' trade can compare in prosperity with those just past. The price of flowers has more than kept step with the advance in cost of other commodities. All florists show a greater volume of business on their books than in former years. Not only is the gross income larger, but the net profits also are more than in the past. Growers and retailers both have made money.

As prosperity, in those two years, has increased, interest in and contributions to the national publicity campaign have steadily decreased. The reverse ratio has steadily been maintained. Reasons therefor have not been advanced. There has not been sufficient interest even for that. No one has said he could not afford to contribute; more often the statement has been that he was too busy.

Consideration is due this subject, however. If the national campaign has been of benefit, it can be still more beneficial, and the value of advertising even when one's market is tight is not to be overlooked. If it has been lacking or defective in some respects, the remedy should be determined, for the advantages to be gained by trade advertising have been so decidedly demonstrated in other fields that its possible benefit for florists should not be lightly passed by. Whether it is a diagnosis or an autopsy, a consideration of the national publicity campaign should be held at Cleveland for the trade's best interests.

FREIGHT COSTS A THIRD MORE.

By the end of this month will go into force the largest advance in transportation rates ever made under government regulation. Florists will feel the effects of it in many ways—in the added cost of coal, fertilizer, lumber and other materials shipped by freight, and in a probable increase in express rates, already applied for.

The increase is greatest in the eastern territory, where it amounts to forty per cent. In western territory it is thirty-five per cent, and in southern and mountain-Pacific territory twenty-five per cent. The average is close to one-third of the old rates. This will add a dollar or two per ton to the cost of coal, depending upon the distance to the mines. It will add to the cost of building greenhouses. The price of bulbs will be more. In fact, there are so many ways in which this rise affects the grower that he will be compelled to get better prices than ever to keep his greenhouses going.

SUMMER WINDOWS.

The time is here when the display windows of florists, or some of them, show the cool-looking miniature ponds encircled by green shores, the brooklets, falls and waterwheels, the ducklings and the dozens of other sorts of attractions that keep passers gazing into the plate-glass enclosures on days when it is too hot to keep flowers there.

Those who featured such displays last year are repeating. Sometimes they use the identical idea and sometimes not. If it was successful last year, it is apt to be successful this year. The florist has an opportunity here that he should not neglect. Cool window displays get pedestrians' attention at this season to a degree that only those who have tried them fully appreciate. This form of advertising is easy and inexpensive, especially in comparison with the notice it gets. Put something into your window with a little more life than palms and ferns.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Summer conditions continue in the New York flower market. Arrivals, on the whole, are light and the demand, except in one or two lines, is much lighter. The more fashionable retail stores are buying little, the majority of their regular customers being out of town. The smaller stores, most of which usually close for only about one-third of the twenty-four hours, are the chief buyers, as far as quantity is concerned. In spite of this condition, it cannot be said that the business done is altogether of the bargain variety.

Gladioli are arriving now in quantity, but clean up well at 50 cents to $1 per dozen, with selected stock of certain varieties bringing as much as $2. The supply of asters has increased materially and good long-stemmed stock has been bringing 75 cents per bunch, with inferior stock down to 35 cents, prices which must have been remunerative to growers. Heavy storms have created havoc among outdoor stock, so that good material in this line has brought its worth. In fact, good flowers in general easily attract customers and clearances are not difficult.

Roses are in rather short supply and the quality is of the summer kind, although the weather has not been hot enough to bring in the usual quantity of opened stock. The available supply cleans up easily and early. American Beauty is not plentiful and specials of the best grade are bringing $40 per hundred, with lower grades bringing down to $25 per hundred. Hybrid teas in special grades are scarce, with fancy grades rather light in supply. The price range is about $2 to $15 per hundred, with daily clearances.

Cattleyas are especially scarce, even with a small demand for them. The best bring about $1.50 per flower, hybrids even more, with medium grades $1 and inferiors 50 cents.

Few carnations are coming in; in fact, it may be said that their season is over. Such as arrive move at 50 cents to $1 per hundred and most of them might better be kept at home.

White lilies are plentiful, although not in such quantity as noticed in the last two weeks. They are bringing $8 to $10 per hundred, but clearances are slow. Lily of the valley is not in good supply, nor is the demand for it good. About $4 to $15 per hundred is the price range, although $20 is asked for the best.

Sweet peas are not abundant and the quality is poor, sales being slow at 50 cents to $1 per hundred.

Cornflowers, feverfew, snapdragons, daisies, myosotis, calendulas, gaillardias, zinnias, gypsophilas and dahlias are in fair supply and meet an equal demand.

Various Notes.

W. H. Duckham, Madison, N. J., sailed for Europe Saturday, July 31, on the Aquitania.

The Atlantic liners last week carried the greatest number of passengers since before the war and steamer business for the florists was something like that of its palmy days.

The Duke estate, at Somerville, N. J., is closed to the public, owing to an outbreak of the gypsy moth. The Department of Agriculture is making investigations in the neighborhood and infestations have been found also at Mannsville, Millstone and Boundbrook. Complete defoliation has resulted on several acres of the Duke estate planted to blue spruce. The moths are now in the egg stage and will so remain until next May; growers of nursery stock are advised to watch all growth carefully and report any findings to the department.

John Young, secretary of the S. A. F., is in Cleveland, where he will remain until after the convention.

Up to Monday, August 2, about twenty-five had signified their intention to join the party leaving August 16 for the Cleveland convention. Doubtless this number will be greatly increased within the next few days. It is not every year that the New York florists are privileged to have one of their number president of the S. A. F., and there should be a good escort forthcoming for President A. L. Miller. The route chosen is most picturesque and enjoyable, embracing, as it does, a daylight ride through the mountains and a delightful boat trip through the night. The journey itself is worth a whole lot.

Mrs. Edward A. Scott, of the Scott Floral Co., Navasota, Tex., was a visitor in New York, Monday, August 2, and made a tour of the flower markets.

The death July 27 of William J. Herrmann, the 29-year-old son of H. W. C. Herrmann, of Brooklyn, is recorded in this week's obituary column.

J. H. P.

The Garden Chemical Co. is now wholesaling Melrosine as the successor of the Floro-Chemical Co., at the same address, Park Avenue and One Hundred Forty-sixth street.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

Conditions are about the same as last week. The supply of gladioli and roses still exceeds the demand. Some fine asters are arriving and clean up well at $3 and $4 per hundred. Some fine Sprengeri was on the market. This sold well at 50 cents per bunch. Out-of-town business was quite brisk during the latter part of the week.

Various Notes.

J. V. Janak is back on the job after a good vacation.

Arthur Niessen was in town for several days last week.

A special meeting of the Florists' and Growers' Union was held July 27. A number of new members were added and the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Sam Maston; vice-president, T. Kirk; secretary, George V. Schultz; financial secretary, Jaro V. Janak; treasurer, George White; guide, A. J. Schiller; guard, Clyde Sauer; trustees, George Dalghish, W. R. Wescott and V. W. Fortwengler. The following delegates were appointed to attend the meetings of the Central Labor Union: T. Kirk, George White, Sam Maston, Clyde Sauer, George Dalghish. Several other important matters were settled before the meeting adjourned.

Summer Outing.

The florists of Washington held their annual summer outing at Great Falls, July 28. The weather was ideal and it was voted a perfect day by everyone. Special cars carried the crowds. The picnic committee had a fine program, including a big supply of good things to eat and drink.

The feature of the baseball game was a double play made by the growers in the third inning. Although the growers played good ball, they were defeated by a margin of one run. The score was 7 to 6 in favor of the retailers. The game was witnessed by many of the leading florists. After the game fine box lunches were served, which everyone enjoyed.

A large crowd attended the outing and it was necessary to arrange for several extra cars to convey the people to their homes.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

The market is more nearly on the old-time summer basis than it has been in any week thus far this season. The supply of stock is more limited in variety than has been the case heretofore this summer and the demand is less insistent. Shipping business continues the mainstay of the market. What Chicago would do without the out-of-town customers is something no one ever wants to consider. Shipping demand, relatively, is much stronger than city trade, and much steadier. The city buyers appear in the market at irregular intervals, buying in small lots and as frequently as need be, but the out-of-town buyers are heard from regularly. Far more than the usual number of standing orders are in the market this summer. In many previous seasons the out-of-town customers have canceled their orders for regular shipments from this market, but this year few have done more than to somewhat reduce the quantity of stock called for and, as in the winter, they are wiring for frequent additions. Shipping trade never was so good at this date in other years.

The supply of stock is limited in variety, though not in quantity. The gladiolus has become the predominant flower. Arrivals are from a greater number of sources than in any previous season. It is apparent that last year's excellent demand and prices for gladioli prompted large numbers of other growers to plant them for this season. They are selling steadily and in large quantities, but not at the prices which were realized last year.

Carnations have nearly disappeared, but asters are much more plentiful and are of first-class quality this season. Weather conditions seem to have given the aster growers a better chance to make money than they had in recent years.

The only greenhouse flower available in quantity is the rose. A number of growers have cut their early crops and are sending little to market, but the growers who planned specially for summer crops still are cutting heavily and the quality of the roses never before has been so good at this time of the year. That is thanks to the cool weather.

The supply of giganteum lilies has been somewhat reduced in the last few days, but there have been more than enough to meet the demands. This lily is one of the flowers the sale of which cannot be forced. It is said that another crop is nearly ready and that there will be still larger supplies within the next few days. Valley is equal to all demands and lower in price. There are not many more cattleyas, but the demand is less vigorous than it was and orders are being better filled.

There is a large supply of garden flowers, in unusual variety and excellent quality, because of the exceptionally favorable season.

July Business.

July has made a new record in this market. In no previous July have there been so many flowers, such good quality or such active business. Prices have not been especially high, but have been fair for summer. Nearly everyone in this market has done more business than last July, which was the previous high-water mark. Some of the wholesale houses have made splendid increases, due to handling so many more flowers.

Effect of New Freight Rates.

The trade has talked of little else this week than the effect of the increase in freight rates announced August 1. In the florists' business the principal bearing is on the cost of fuel. Some of the largest growers have been using smokeless coal from West Virginia. The freight rate has been $2.60. It goes up forty per cent, or $1.04, making the new rate $3.64. Those who have been using coal from southern Illinois have paid a freight rate of $1.55. This goes up thirty-five per cent, making the new rate $2.10. There will be a corresponding advance in switching charges.

There is another side to the story, however. Several of the large growers made contracts for fuel early in the season, at prices that looked high then, but which now seem low. They have had no deliveries, or at any rate few deliveries, on these contracts. Other growers have bought coal in the open market at much higher prices, but have obtained the fuel. One grower relates that he has a contract for the season's supply, at $3.25 per ton, but has obtained no deliveries. A neighbor has bought in the open market, paying $6.75 at the mines, and has the coal in his sheds. The spread from $3.25 to $6.75 represents the effect of the transportation blockade and the miners' strike. With these out of the way it is possible that the market price of coal will fall considerably more than the advance in freight rates.

Bulb dealers have been figuring what the increase in freight rates will do to the cost of this season's Holland bulbs. In many cases they have put their fall catalogues on the press and the prices are fixed for the season. The carload freight rate on bulbs from New York has been 52½ cents, with the L. C. L. rate $1.12½ per hundred pounds. These rates now are to be advanced forty per cent. But the bulbs coming to Chicago have paid, in most cases, no recognized freight rate. Most of the bulbs have been in consolidated shipments arranged by forwarding agents. These forwarding agents have averaged the car lot and the less than car lot rates and made an arbitrary charge of that figure. On a previous charge of from 80 cents to 85 cents per hundred pounds, an advance of forty per cent means an increase of about $1 to $1.25 per case, the average case weighing slightly over 300 pounds. As it contains from 5,000 to 7,000 tulips, the increases in prices made necessary will not be serious.

Of course all other freight shipments will be affected in the same proportion.

Driving to Cleveland.

Chicago will be well represented at the Cleveland convention August 17 to 19, but the near approach of the event creates no excitement. The affair is not looked on as in the old days. Then it was a function; now it is a matter of business. Many will go to take orders, others to see what is for sale, but principally they will go to keep in personal touch with the trend of thought and action in the trade. What the society does or does not do in its business meetings seems to hold little interest for anyone here, except that many volunteer the information that they do not care for the monthly Journal, but would prefer to have the society return to the old fashion of printing its records in one annual volume, easier to preserve and to consult.

The Chicago representation will straggle to Cleveland; there will be no special train. Sellers will go in advance. Many of those who will combine pleasure with business will go by automobile.

W. J. Smyth, with Mrs. Smyth, will drive the Pierce-Arrow to Cleveland, ship it by boat to Buffalo and drive to Albany and Troy for a visit at Mr. Smyth's old home.

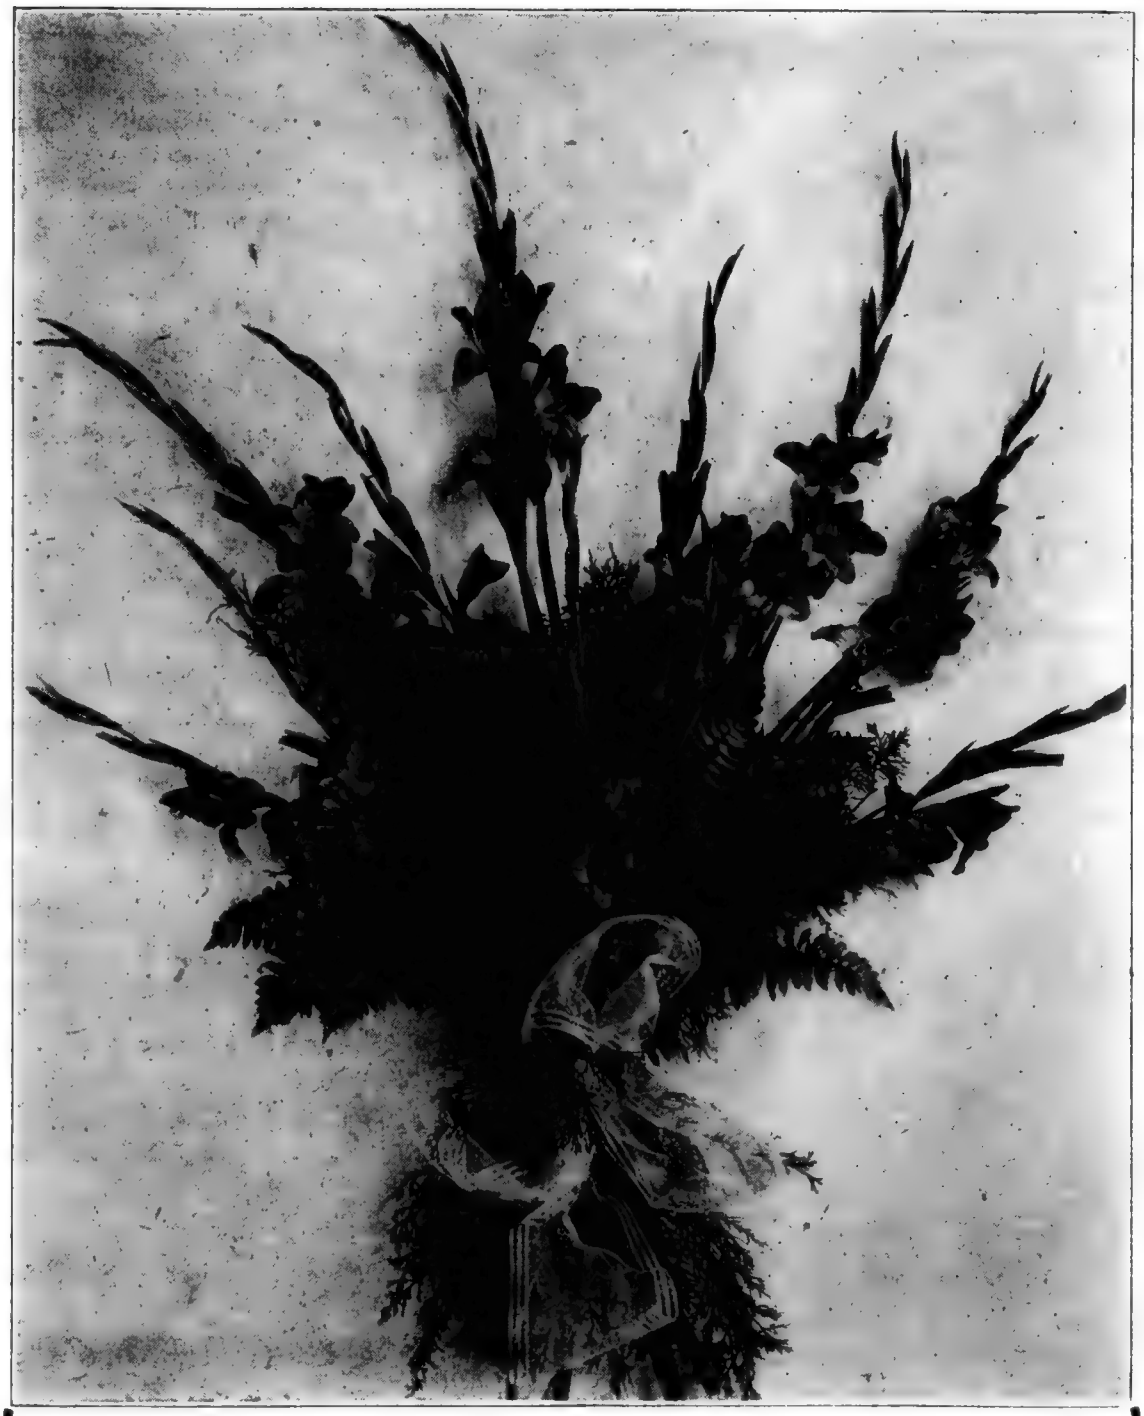
C. J. Michelsen will drive his Packard. With him will be Henry Wehrman and Eugene Dramm. Paul Weiss will accompany George Wienhoeber. H. N. Bruns and W. J. Keimel also will take their cars, their families and some friends.

Peter Pearson plans to drive comfortably; no hurry.

Paul Klingsporn is organizing a road race among those connected with the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, similar to the one so successfuly conducted to Detroit last year.

From Maywood several cars will carry the family parties and friends of Albert F. Amling and his sons.

Randall's Still Growing.



At Traverse City, Mich., the Johnson-Randall Co. has the foundations in for another addition to its factory, this section to be 80x156 and two stories high, duplicating the addition built last autumn. A large dry kiln also is to be built. A. L. Randall and family recently returned from an automobile trip to Traverse City and August 2 F. M. Johnson took his family and his car on the steamer to Manistee, intending to drive thence to Traverse City for a week's stay.

Sales Manager Edward Galavan returned to his desk August 2 after a fortnight's vacation in Michigan.

Various Notes.

Peter Reinberg is wrecking five greenhouses. One insertion of his offer in the Classified section of The Review served to bring buyers for his present surplus of field-grown carnation plants.

2,500 miles with no other trouble than one puncture. But automobiling hereafter will be without thrills for Mr. Ball, as he went up 6,000 feet in an airplane near Doylestown, Pa.

July was an unusually favorable month for the growers under glass, as the mean temperature was only 72 degrees; last July it was 77 degrees. The rainfall was light, only 1.61 inches, and the percentage of sunshine was seventy-eight, compared to seventy-two per cent of the possible last July.

The trade was pained July 31 to hear of the untimely death of "Charlie" Hunt, former florist and son of a pioneer, who has represented a number of the leading growers in all insurance matters. Particulars are in the obituary column this week.

Herman Schlachter, of St. Bernard, O., a suburb of Cincinnati, is visiting relatives here.

Peter Morgen, formerly of Huntingburg, Ind., who now makes his headquarters at the old family home at St. Henry, Ind., was here last week. He is looking for a favorable opportunity to go into business again. When last in this market it was understood that Mr. Morgen had closed a deal with Dr. A. J. Knapp, of Evansville, which would result in the former going into peony growing, but Mr. Morgen now states no such arrangements have been consummated.

Centralia, Ill.—J. W. Ross is planning to sell his greenhouses, as his retail flower store and his bulb farm are taking all his time, the business growing rapidly.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The last week of July was fair for midsummer. It is interesting to note that the general health of the city for the month has been excellent, which means that the demand for flowers for sad occasions has been light. Taking this fact into account, business has been quite good. Gladioli are far and away the most popular flowers today. They are good, they are showy, they keep well in warm weather. These are their virtues. There are a great many gladioli in the market. The price paid for them is governed by the variety, the culture, the cutting and the packing. Each of these four points may be said to be worth 2 cents. The best varieties, well grown, properly cut and carefully packed, bring 8 cents, much less for any weakness in any of the four points. Dark colors in gladioli are in oversupply.

Asters are not so plentiful as usual at this season. The street believes that, while about the usual number were planted, there have been great cultural discouragements in many instances. The pink and white asters have been selling well. There has been an oversupply of purple and of lavender. In other words, there are too many dark-colored asters.

Lilies have been in moderate supply, but there has been no especial demand for them. Roses are less plentiful. Hydrangeas are sometimes used.

The Deal at Newtown.

There has been a lot of activity out on the Newtown railroad this season. General interest is now centered on a business transaction that has just been completed at Newtown itself. Charles E. Meehan, with a view to securing high-grade carnations for his customers, has purchased a greenhouse property and rented it to two young men for one year, giving them an option on the property at a fixed price at the end of the year. The greenhouse property in question was established by Henry Weiland many years ago. It has since been owned and operated by Smith & Van Aart. The senior partner improved the place after the withdrawal of his associate. The place is known as the Lincoln Heights Nurseries. The young men who have rented the Lincoln Heights Nurseries with the option of buying the place at the expiration of one year are Edward Davies and Walter Boggus. Mr. Davies has been for the last year manager for the Bickmore greenhouses, at Wallingford, where carnations are a specialty, while Mr. Boggus served under that famous carnationist, Edward A. Stroud, at Strafford.

Right Here.

Substance of an interview with Raymond Brunswick, secretary and treasurer of the M. Rice Co., July 31, 1920:

"No, I have not been farming; that was only a joke. I shall not be able to get a vacation this season; so I have been taking Saturdays off. Now all the others are away; so I am here by myself.

"I want you to look at those baskets on top of that show case. They were made right here and clearly express our idea of the advantage of made-in-America goods. The bottom is of wood that is substantial and will not warp. Moreover, it is riveted and secure. The material is of the best and it is well put together. The finish is described as polychromous, many-colored. Our foreman is an adept in this work in another line. He has adopted it here. You see the result, a handle basket that is an ornament to a room, just in the same way that a handsome piece of furniture ornaments, at a cost that is moderate in comparison with furniture, but is greater than the cost of the common basket. The results so far have been so gratifying that we think we are on the right track. We think that the American florists want their supplies to be made-in-America, but we do not yet know.

"Now take these wreaths. These are all made-in-America. The flowers are our own home-grown flowers prepared. They are wreaths of a higher grade than we have ever offered before. They are first-class in every respect. I had rather," here Mr. Brunswick became quite impressive, "sell 100 made-in-America baskets or wreaths than 1,000 of the imported."

Various Notes.

Alfred M. Campbell, chairman of the Philadelphia committee of the National Flower Growers' Association, called a meeting of growers for Tuesday evening, August 3, at the Hotel Adelphia, to consider what instructions should be given to the Cleveland delegates.

Stephen Mortensen is sending flowers of the new rose, Pilgrim, from his place in Southampton to the S. S. Pennock Co.

The Market.

The market is glutted with gladioli and asters. Gladioli in all colors and kinds are available. The quality is good, but because of the poor demand they are bringing only $4 to $6 per hundred. Asters are also numerous, selling at $2.50 to $4 per hundred. The colored asters are more plentiful, while the white at present are a little scarce. Roses are also scarce. Carnations are entirely gone. As usual, miscellaneous garden stock is abundant and has little demand. In this latter class are phlox, zinnias, daisies and a little statice.

Counter trade has been poor. Funeral work has been about the only business. Decorations have been few, while corsage and other similar work has been meager.

The Market.

The market was pretty well cleaned up last week. Cut flower arrivals are fewer and quality is, as a rule, inferior. Many growers are sending in nothing and a large number of salesmen are away in their automobiles or power boats, or enjoying vacations at the mountains or shore resorts. Roses are well cleaned up and have hardened somewhat in value, the bulk selling at $8 to $12 per hundred. All flowers of fair quality readily realize $8 per hundred. Carnations are scarce, small and poor in quality at $2 to $3 per hundred. More gladioli are arriving, the supplies now short-stemmed and all good flowers are quickly sold.

Supplies of asters are small as yet and prices good. Far fewer are being grown than usual this season, owing to the labor shortage. A good supply of Lilium speciosum of fair quality and some L. giganteum are available. Gypsophila still comes in, and such outdoor flowers as candytuft, cosmos, sweet sultan, phlox, bachelor's buttons, lupines and annual larkspurs.

Few flowering plants are available, although there is always a call for these even in the hottest weather. Orchids are scarce and at present little valley is called for. Demand is slow for adiantum and asparagus. This is always the case when the hardy gypsophila is in season.

At Farquhar's Nurseries.

A call at the extensive nurseries of R. & J. Farquhar & Co. at Dedham last week found them in excellent shape. The improving labor outlook has made it possible to keep the nurseries well cleaned. In the large greenhouse range thousands of fine cyclamens and begonias were noted; also, large batches of ferns, palms, standard geraniums and heliotropes and other plants. A number of houses were filled with seedling rhododendrons, azaleas, andromedas, new Chinese firs and spruces and quantities of new deciduous shrubs. Immense quantities of pot-grown perennials were noted and we were much pleased to see thousands of such ericas as melanthera, Wilmoreana, caffra densa and mediterranea plunged in frames in excellent condition. other popular herbaceous plants were looking fine, while evergreens in all sizes never looked better, thanks to copious rains this season. A large block of the pretty Picea albertiana was worthy of special note, also blocks of Lilium regale and a new rock garden at the nursery entrance.

A great business is done here in pot-grown strawberries and over 60,000 plants of Marshall alone were seen. No flowers are allowed to remain on the large blocks of plants which produce the runners. Thus quite early pot plants are assured. At the Sharon nurseries evergreens do especially well and are heavily grown, while at the large West Barnstable nurseries are many acres of hybrid and seedling rhododendrons, azaleas, kalmias, Lilium auratum, L. speciosum, L. Henryi, L. tigrinum, etc., and great numbers of new Chinese plants. Patrick Fordham, the manager at the Dedham nurseries, has everything in fine condition.

Boston to Cleveland.

E. Allan Peirce, state vice-president of the S. A. F. for eastern Massachusetts, is endeavoring to secure a delegation of fifty "live wires" from New England to the Cleveland S. A. F. convention, and several members have already decided to make the trip. Fare from Boston one way will be $22.01, lower berth $4.59, total $26.60. The train on which the Boston party plans to go will leave South Station August 16 at 2 p. m. (eastern standard time); Newtonville, 2:15; Worcester, 3:15; Springfield, 4.35, and Pittsfield, 6:20. Those planning to make the trip to Cleveland should notify Mr. Peirce at once so that reservations can be secured, and all are urged to make hotel reservations in advance at the Hollenden, Statler, Cleveland, Winton or Olmsted hotel.

Various Notes.

W. E. Lenk has one of his new rose houses, at Belmont, Mass., completed and ready for planting. It is a splendid house, 40x340, and it is hoped to complete another house of similar size this summer. The ground here is of a stiff, retentive nature and should suit roses. Mr. Lenk should be able to produce some splendid stock in these up-to-the-minute houses.

At the next meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, September 15, poultry will be the subject of the evening, with an expert lecturer. There have been so many calls for a talk of this kind from both commercial and private growers that the executive committee decided to discuss something other than flowers for one night, especially as so many of the members are engaged in poultry raising.

The Massachusetts Horticultural Society, the Massachusetts Gladiolus Society and the American Gladiolus Society will combine in the great gladiolus show to be staged in Horticultural hall August 14 and 15. Exhibits are coming from Ohio, Indiana and other distant points and a superb show is assured. The large local growers, such as J. K. Alexander, B. Hammond Tracy, Brooklands Gardens, Jelle Roos, C. F. Fairbanks and others, have their fields in grand condition and a fair number of bulbs are already blooming, notably the popular primulinus varieties.

Exterior finish, white enamel. Ice chamber at the top can be filled through doors at either end. Three sliding doors at front, of French beveled plate glass, and two overhead French beveled plate glass mirrors. Overhead center display compartment. Interior is finished in white enamel. This is an especially attractive design, built of any wood, finish, and in any size desired. Glass or metal shelves resting on patented nickel-plated brackets, adjustable to any height.

Local retailers complain of the great dearth of summer-flowering pot plants. Outside of a few hydrangeas, nothing is really procurable and there is always a call for them even in the hottest weather. In addition to geraniums and hydrangeas, such plants as tuberous-rooted begonias, achimenes, allamandas, browallias, gloxinias, gesneras, Lilium speciosum and auratum, agapanthus and francoas are suggested as desirable summer subjects.

There is a perceptible improvement in the labor market. The closing down of many mills and factories has made it easier for farmers to secure laborers near the industrial centers and florists note an improvement in conditions compared with last spring. W. N. C.

Saco, Me.—H. J. Nielson, who had formerly leased the Davis greenhouses, Woodfords, Portland, Me., has taken over the establishment of Geo. L. Mahoney & Co.

CHARLES WILLIS WARD'S WILL.

The will of Charles Willis Ward, who died at Eureka, Cal., June 24, was made public there July 24 and showed that at the time the will was made the value of his estate was approximately $350,000. His divorced wife was given $5,000 and bequests of $100,000 each were made to his three children, Mrs. Ethel M. Chase, David Straus Ward and Mrs. Alma W. Bristol. Two former nurses were given $10,000 and $5,000. Small sums, ranging from $500 to $1,000, were left to a score of distant relatives. The residue of the estate, which includes large timber holdings in Humboldt county, was left to the three children.

FISCHER'S FIRE.

Further details have been received from Rudolph Fischer, San Gabriel, Cal., concerning the fire which destroyed most of his bulb stock and which has already been briefly reported in The Review. The disaster occurred Saturday afternoon, July 17. Mr. Fischer's son had started a fire under an iron tub about ten feet from the bulb shed; he left it for a few minutes, during which time a spark must have set fire to some dry grass near the shed, which in turn was caught by the flames. The water pressure was quite low and the men on the place were unable to check the flames, which in a short time, being fanned by a stiff breeze, consumed the bulb shed and then leaped over to the barn, burned it clear down, spread to the greenhouses nearest it and burned four of these. The rest of the ten houses were saved only with the greatest effort, by tearing down one ahead of the flames. All ten houses were connected. With the assistance of the neighbors, the dwelling was saved.

The bulb shed and the barn floor were filled with bulb stock, which could not be got out because of the great heat and the rapidity with which the fire spread. The bulbs which were destroyed were Freesia Fischerii and F. Splendens and all the planting stock of F. Purity for next season. Fortunately, two patches of Fischerii and Splendens were left in the field. These bulbs were quite small when planted last season and for that reason had not yet been harvested. From these Mr. Fischer will work up his stock again.

As another bit of good fortune, all the newer varieties were saved, with the exception of a particularly fine blue, of which only a few small bulbs, which had not yet been taken up, were saved. The newer varieties, not being on the market yet, were still in the ground.

The loss caused by the fire included, in addition to the bulbs, all the tools, farm implements, garage, two fine rose hedges and all the trees and plants between the barn and the house.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

While it cannot be said that shipping business is good, yet there was no glut of stock last week such as is usual in July and almost every day sees a clean-up in the wholesale houses. Asters and gladioli move freely, these flowers standing the hot weather better than most over the long-distance routes. Amaryllis Belladonna is pretty now and ships well if cut tight.

Roses are in a little better condition and clean up daily, white being the scarce article. Carnations are fairly good from outside, but there is little greenhouse stock.

Retailers report good business, particularly in funeral work, though box and transient trade is good for the season.

Various Notes.

H. L. Potter, president of the Potter Floral Co., El Paso, Tex., visited the wholesale houses last week and incidentally took in some of the surrounding territory in company with Mr. Royston, of W. Armacost & Co., and F. Sperry, of the L. A. Floral Co.

The banquet tendered to Mrs. Ella Grant Wilson, of Cleveland, by the Los Angeles Florists' Club was well attended, nearly 140 guests sitting down at the Roma Cafe. Mrs. Wilson's remarks on publicity and other matters connected with the trade were listened to with great interest and led to an animated discussion; the pictures thrown on the screen were an added attraction.

The Superior Dahlia Gardens, at Forty-ninth and Figueroa streets, are a fine sight now and C. Gutting reports that every flower they can cut is easily disposed of. Mr. Gutting calls attention to the fact that many visitors trying to reach his establishment are headed off by smaller gardens in the vicinity. Those who are looking for this place should memorize its address as given.

S. Murata & Co. have received a carload of sphagnum moss and report business good for the time of year. Mr. Murata is talking of a vacation trip north, but has not fully decided yet.

Albert Goldenson is wearing a big smile—business fine, he says.

The Market.

Business is inclined to lag, outside of funeral work and a limited call for cut flowers, which has a weakening effect upon the market. There is a good supply of flowers and the quality leaves nothing to be desired, but prices have eased up on practically all staple items, especially roses and carnations. Roses are rather better than usual this summer, there being a good showing of Russell, Columbia, Ophelia and some of the other popular varieties. With the demand more or less indifferent, there are enough good roses to meet requirements nicely. The same is true of carnations.

Asters are arriving in larger supply and better quality from day to day and the eastern shipping season will be well under way in another week. Some chrysanthemums are offered, but not enough to make them a feature of the market. The crop is reported coming along nicely, however.

Gladioli continue in good supply, and it is expected they will last through August. The demand is about as good for them as any of the seasonable offerings. Dahlias make a fine showing; more interest is shown in these flowers from year to year, as the result of the work of the dahlia society in stimulating their culture in this vicinity. At one time they had little call in the florists' establishments here, but now they sell well in competition with almost any of the many other flowers on the market at the same season of the year.

Rubrum and auratum lilies show excellent quality and have a good call. With the quantities of outdoor summer stock, the market can satisfy almost any flower need, with the exception of orchids, which are scarce, it being a question of "begging" for blooms to fill orders in many cases.

Various Notes.

September 3 and 4 have been set as the dates for the annual show of the Dahlia Society of California in San Francisco. It will be held in the Palace hotel and every effort will be made to make it the most comprehensive exhibition of the kind ever held here. It is expected that detailed preparations will be announced after a meeting of the society which has been planned for this week.

There is to be a dahlia show in Oakland a little later than the one on this side of the bay. The dates for it are September 19 to 21. It will be held under the auspices of the Alameda County Floral Association. A committee, consisting of the following, has been named to handle the exhibit: A. F. Shulte, manager; Dr. E. S. Card, Charles Hughes, Mrs. G. A. Spencer, J. A. Scannavino, R. H. Grey, Mrs. Harry Hartsone, William Burns, M. Poffenholz and Carl Sabach. During a recent meeting of the association, several authorities on dahlia culture addressed the members on the growing and care of dahlias for exhibition purposes.

Frank Rieth, Jr., of New Orleans, La., paid his respects to the local trade a few days ago.

J. Keegan is back on duty with Pelicano, Rossi & Co., after a pleasant vacation in Los Angeles, Santa Barbara and other southern points. While in the south he visited a number of the florists' establishments and found them doing a good seasonable business and looking forward to a brisk fall and winter trade. He experienced one of the recent earthquakes in Los Angeles, which helped to lend variety to his trip, but he is not anxious for another one soon.

Mark Ebel was down from Sacramento, Cal., on one of his frequent visits.

The McCallum Co., of Pittsburgh, Pa., has established a branch in San Francisco, located at 431 Bush street with the C. Kooyman Co., under which arrangement a complete showing will be made here of McCallum supplies. A. F. He found conditions favorable all along the line, the florists having had a good spring business and being full of anticipation for fall trade. He will now spend a little time calling on the local trade. When he is out of town Mr. Kooyman will look after the McCallum business in this city.

Henry Avansino, manager of the wholesale and shipping business of the E. W. McLellan Co., is taking advantage of the quiet season for a vacation in the Yosemite. Miss McLellan says roses are holding up well for midsummer, in regard to both supply and demand. She expects a heavy shipping demand for asters during August.

Mrs. M. L. Copeland is supplying a nice demand for strawflower bouquets and reports business generally all that can be expected for this season of the year.

J. A. Axell is making large shipments of strawflowers, for which, he says, the demand is bigger this year than ever before.

Mr. Jordan, with F. C. Jaeger & Son, is on his vacation and F. C. Jaeger expects to leave early in the month on a deer hunt, to be gone about three weeks. His son reports a nice shipping business on strawflowers, with indications that there will be a fine season on asters and chrysanthemums. A big assortment of new baskets has recently been received for the retail business.

J. A. Armstrong is back from Lake Tahoe, which concludes the vacation season at the store of the MacRorie-McLaren Co. At this establishment business is reported quiet except for funeral work.

The United Flower & Supply Co. is busier this summer than usual, having baskets and florists' supplies generally to fall back on during the quiet season in the shipments of cut flowers east. The aster season is starting, however, and strawflowers are in big demand, which should make August a fairly good month.

Domoto Bros. are bringing in a fine showing of potted auratum lilies and a nice cut of rubrum lilies, both of which are meeting with a good call.

Enomoto & Co. are now shipping a good many asters, in addition to selling large quantities of them locally. Mr. Enomoto finds dark pink and lavender the most popular colors.

Mr. Aldrich has proceeded on his way, after calling on the trade in the San Francisco Bay section on one of his regular trips for the M. Rice Co., of Philadelphia.

E. J. Ahles was a recent visitor to the local trade in the interests of the Ove Gnatt Co., of Laporte, Ind.

440 Bush Street SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The "Say It with Flowers" movement got another boost in San Francisco last week in the form of a special window display at one of the large music houses. The song with that title was featured, together with an old-fashioned garden, in an appropriate setting of flowers.

Outside of funeral work there was not much activity in business last week, according to P. V. Matraia, of the Art Floral Co.; still, he says, the demand for flowers is fully as good as usual, if not better, for this time of the year. Mr. Belli is back from a vacation trip to the southern part of the state. M. M.

SEATTLE, WASH.

The Market.

After some brisk business for one or two days last week, trade has again slowed up, but the short deliveries on nearly all lines have prevented stock from piling up. The arrivals have, however, been light enough to cause no worry and there has been a distinct lack of really fine stock among the outdoor receipts. Funeral work has been a little slower lately. The only item on which any real shortage has been listed has been gladioli. The snapdragons delivered now are also somewhat off grade as to keeping quality.

Water lilies are at the height of the season's deliveries and some stores have reported the supply greater than the demand. California growers have been quoting chrysanthemums to the trade, but the local buyers are not yet ready for this offering. The local acreage of chrysanthemums is much larger than it was last year and from present indications a good yield may be expected. The growers say they expect to be able to supply the market this year at an earlier date than ever before.

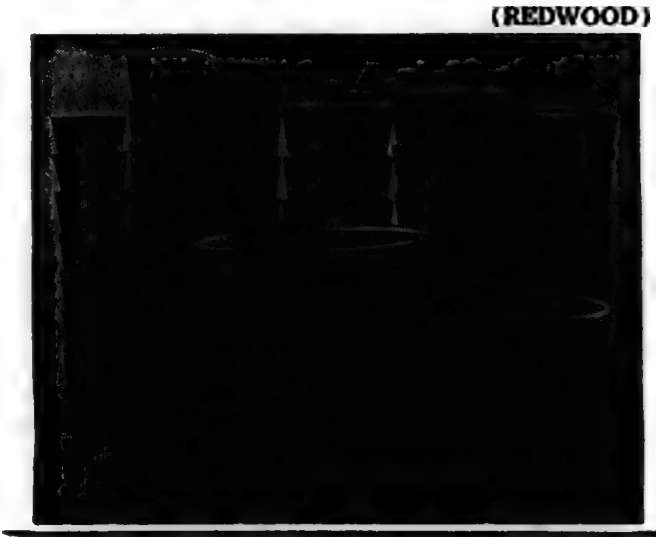
Sweet peas are maintaining both quality and quantity records and some of the best stock of the season is arriving. Weather conditions have been favorable to full color development and practically every basket or funeral piece sent out of the stores has these flowers. Other outdoor offerings meeting a nice demand are cornflowers, wallflowers, bachelor's buttons and calendulas. Gypsophila is used almost entirely as a garnishment on cut flowers.

Among roses coming to hand Ulrich Brunner easily leads as to quality, while Columbia and Irish Elegance are showing considerable improvement. Ophelia is the most plentiful offering and baby ramblers are also in good supply. There are some nice orchids coming in now, mainly cattleyas, and the local trade has been able to take care of some shipping orders for these flowers. Lily of the valley and gardenias are scarce. Potted offerings consist mainly of fuchsias and geraniums, but the sales have been rather slow of late. The good demand seen last week for ferns seems to have passed entirely and this offering has been moving only in a casual way.



Various Notes.

John G. Holden, of the Holden Floral Co., Portland, Ore., and Mrs. Holden were visitors last week. Mrs. Holden was until last week Miss Elsie Schnopp, formerly connected with the Hollywood Gardens and with Clarke Bros., in Portland. Several dinners were given the honeymooners during their stay here. Mr. and Mrs. Fred M. Young, also of Portland, completed the party. Mr. Young is operating the greenhouses formerly owned by Martin & Forbes.

There are still plenty of vacation activities to report. The departure list this week included Mrs. Sandahl, of the Orpheum Floral Co., and Carl E. Melby, of Kenney's Home of Flowers. Mr.

Melby will spend a week in Hood's canal region. The return list was limited to William Goldsbary, of Kenney's, who returned from the Lake Wenatchee region, and C. Peterson, of Peterson & Sandahl, who is back from Chicago, where he attended the Elks' convention.

Ralph Sipe is again with the Orpheum Floral Co., filling in during Mrs. Sandahl's vacation period. He was formerly with this house.

What is conceded to be one of the most novel floral pieces seen this season was turned out last week by E. O. Peterson, of the Hollywood Gardens.

GEBHARD PRECHTL - BOX 603 - Montebello, Calif.

The order was for a table decoration for the Queen City Yacht Club during the visit of some midshipmen. A gunboat nearly four feet in length was made of boards covered with carnations, chenille for outlining and for the guns, and a "crow's nest" of Shasta daisies and blue cornflowers for the water.

Milot Mills, of Wenatchee, Wash., was a business visitor for two days last week.

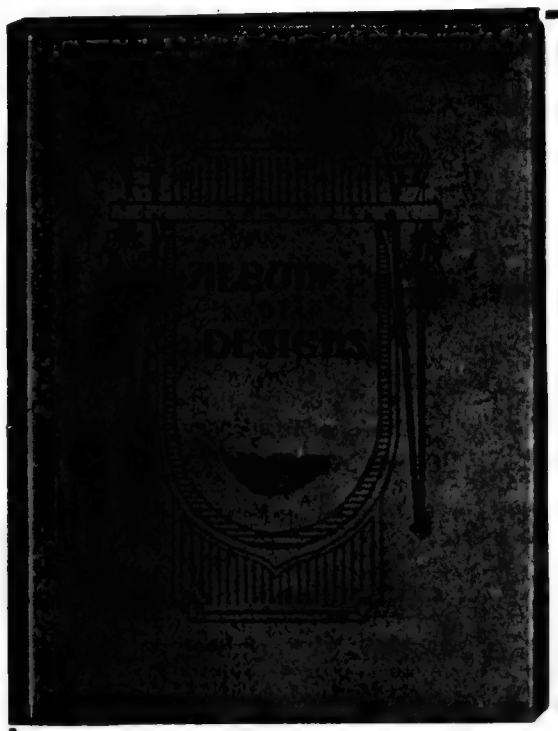
McCoy's showed an effective window during the Annapolis delegation's visit. The American Union Jack was placed between two American flags and directly behind these, screened by oak leaves, was placed an electric fan to keep the colors fluttering. Bright-colored summer flowers were shown below the three standards.

Dr. Walter A. Moore is out of town on a week's business trip in the interests of the Hollywood Gardens.

Many telegraph orders were received here by the advertising florists for the sailing of the Fushimi Maru, which left here Friday, July 23, for the orient.

Practically all of the old carnations have been thrown out by the greenhouse men now and it will only be a short time until some fine stock is offered. Plantings this year are much heavier.

Anna F. Burns, of the Burns Floral Co., has been enjoying the novel sensation of having growers pay her money. When a photograph agency recently ran into financial trouble the court ordered that its stock be sold for what it would bring and for several weeks this shop has been headquarters for music and flowers. Most of the machines were taken by growers.



W. E. Hollingsworth, of the Western Waxed Paper Goods Co., North Portland, called on the trade last week.

Kenney's Home of Flowers showed a novelty basket last week, using a low round basket filled with rubrum lilies and steel-blue thistles.

Felix Rosaia reports a good supply of roses from valley growers.

Knoxville, Tenn.—The slogan has struck Condo, who draws Everett True and his high-tempered wife. Recently Everett told her to "Say It with Flowers" and she threw a vase of them at him. Baum's Home of Flowers, where "home"-life seems to be somewhat different, reproduced the pictures on pink paper, with the suggestion that it has a different interpretation of the slogan, and is mailing out 5,000 of the leaflets.

"Say It with Flowers"

S. A. F. NEWS

ROSES WANTED.

A few patriotic florists are wanted to furnish, through the Washington representative of the S. A. F., William F. Gude, 800 roses of one variety, 1,200 carnations of one variety, and 200 varieties, not more than six of each, from a list which may be obtained from Mr. Gude.

As these are for experiments by the United States government, there should be no trouble in receiving them promptly, for the untold benefit to be derived by availing ourselves of these experiment gardens is worth many, many times the cost of the roses.

Wm. F. Gude,
Washington Representative, S. A. F.

BOSTON TO CLEVELAND.

Is New England going to be properly represented at the convention of the S. A. F., at Cleveland, this month? There should be at least fifty members of the trade from this section, or it is not doing its fair share in the great work. The convention will help you settle your problems. Some of the important topics, of vital interest to all members of the trade, to be taken up and discussed are the publicity campaign, the coal situation and the organization of a national flower growers' association.

Are you going? Can you afford to miss it?

The railroad fare from Boston is $22.01 and the cost of a lower berth is $4.59, making a total of $26.60. The train leaves South station, Boston, Monday, August 16, at 2 p. m.; Newtonville, 2:15 p. m.; Worcester, 3:15 p. m.; Springfield, 4:35 p. m., and Pittsfield, 6:20 p. m.

The New York Florists' Club will have a special train for its members and others who wish to go with them. Many florists from Philadelphia intend to go on the New Yorkers' special and there will be a large crowd. There will be something doing all the way with this delegation. Those who wish to go with this special should make reservations at once with C. Lowther, Box 100, Times square station, New York city. The special leaves Hoboken, N. J., at 10:20 a. m., August 16, eastern standard time.

Don't forget to make hotel reservations in advance! Make them now, either direct to the hotels or to the committee on hotels of the Cleveland Florists' Club, James McLaughlin, chairman, 421 High avenue, Cleveland. Some of the best hotels are the Hollenden, which will be convention headquarters; Statler, Cleveland, Winton and Olmsted. Rooms from $2.50 per day up. The sky is the limit.

EXHIBITORS AT CLEVELAND.

Number Surpasses Last Year's.

The trade's display at Cleveland is likely to prove the best that members of the S. A. F. have seen in several years. The small space at Detroit crowded the first post-bellum display, and the shortage of supplies and abundance of orders made the inclination against rather than for staging an exhibit. This year supplies are somewhat more plentiful in some lines and orders are more energetically sought. Whereas there were less than seventy exhibitors of all kinds at Detroit last year, including even those who had only desk space, Secretary Young has already in his hands the names of over eighty applicants for space in the Ninth Garage, at Cleveland. The aisles have been narrowed already to afford more area for exhibits, and limitation of available room is likely to prevent some from exhibiting who would wish to.

The Exhibitors.

Visitors in Cleveland will find much of interest in the trade's display, which will include exhibits by the following firms:

Welcome News About Steamer Business

The ban is lifted.
Lifted without reservation.
It's all easy sailing now, to deliver flowers to departing steamers.

You remember last year, that all the steamers flatly refused to receive them.

If you have noticed the sailing lists, you know what a rush there is, of travelers to Europe.

It's your chance to show your customers the timeliness and convenience of the F. T. D.

In the last month, we did twice the F. T. D. steamer business of any month in our history.

Which confidential fact may, or may not, hold a suggestion.

NATIONAL PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

Worth Much More.

It is always pleasant to be able to record a few cheery words accompanying a subscription to the publicity fund. Our committee does not look for bouquets, but its members are human enough to cherish the many little expressions of appreciation of their work which of late have been coming in. Moss W. Armistead, of Portsmouth, Va., in sending in a subscription says: "I have no hesitation in saying that I fully believe the campagn to have been worth much more than this subscription to us and I sincerely trust that no idea of dropping it will be entertained for one moment. In the fall I expect to send in another contribution."

Have You Doubled?

We have often referred to the importance attaching to these additional subscriptions. Surely a period of good business might be considered enough inducement to cause a doubling of the subscription on the part of a good many subscribers who at some time realize that their support has not been commensurate with the benefit resulting. We have in mind some subscribers who have doubled more than once. They have the courage of their convictions and do not look around to see what their fellows are doing. They have faith in our work and on such faith we can build. Contrast them with those who hold aloof from the campaign, perhaps through distrust. "Our fears do make us traitors," says Shakespeare in "Macbeth." There should be no fears when considering a subscription to the publicity campaign. We passed the experimental stage long ago. Many in our business have positive knowledge that our campaign is producing the benefit expected from it. We have a slogan worth all the money we can devote to it. It is the best slogan ever devised for the purpose of our industry and is a message of suggestion, acceptable to those to whom it is conveyed—four simple words, but a wealth of suggestion.

What Say You?

Wednesday afternoon, August 18, publicity is to be the subject for free and open discussion at the Cleveland convention. Official reports covering the campaign will be presented, as well as plans for a continuance of the campaign in a vigorous manner. If you have not already subscribed to the publicity fund, why not do so now, so that

PEARSON POINTS THE WAY.

To Cleveland.

The time is fast approaching when the gathering of the members of the S. A. F. will take place at Cleveland, O. This year's meeting promises to surpass in importance all previous meetings of the society, as there will come up for discussion many questions of vital importance for the trade as a whole.

One of these problems is the organization into a national body of the flower growers of America under the tentative plan promulgated by the committee appointed at the first meeting of the promoters of this association, held at the Hotel La Salle, Chicago, at the time of the convention of the American Carnation Society last January. It was planned to interest as many growers as the future for our industry. Which shall it be—disintegration and slow death, or coöperation and prosperity for the future such as other industries are enjoying which have seen the wisdom of organizing and advertising their products?

There are other problems which are acute, but they are temporary. Coal is one item; labor is another. As to coal, we shall get our share of whatever is to be had. Labor we can always get if we can pay the price, and we can pay the price if we get together and boost the sale of our product. But what good will it do you as an individual to get your coal and labor at the price you have to pay now if, at the time you are ready to market your product, you find that the public is not particularly keen to buy except on rare occasions? Because flowers have not been considered a necessity in everyday life, they are passed by for something else that has been drummed into the public's mind as absolutely indispensable to the proper enjoyment of life; it may be chewing gum, almond bars, talking machines or automobiles. In the strict sense, these are as much luxuries as are flowers, but they are thought of and largely bought because they have been advertised. An actor may be ever so good, but if his press agent is poor the actor is likely to receive scant attention.

Let me illustrate this better. Today a vast number of automobiles are built. If you want to go to the trouble of hunting up some of the makes which are comparatively unknown, you can get delivery as soon as you have paid the money, whether you are in the market for one or six. But if you try to buy one of the popular makes, you will have to wait anywhere from one to six months to get delivery. Yet those cars are not any better than those not so well known, if as good, considering the price. But thousands of people are willing to wait for those well known makes simply because the makers have advertised them so extensively that when the decision is made to purchase the mind is already set on a particular make of car. Such is the fruit of advertising. And such is the sentiment it creates. Would you not like to have that sentiment directed toward flowers? Persistent advertising will do it. Advertising costs money. Will you not contribute your share, if you have not already done so? Do it now. Sit down and figure out your area of glass and write out a check for at least $1 per thousand square feet of glass and send it to John Young, secretary of the S. A. F., 43 West Eighteenth street, New York city. Surely you are not one of those who would sit back and see the other fellow labor in the sweat of his brow, seeding the field so that when the harvest is ready you may come and gather it in?

Growers, Get In On It.

Coming back to the subject of organization, I will say first: By all means make up your mind to attend this year's meeting of the S. A. F. Everyone who is engaged in the flower business should attend, whether grower, wholesaler or retailer. Nothing should stop you, barring accident or sickness, and let us hope there may be none of that so that we can all be there. As a grower I speak to the grower. I want to impress upon you the reasons why you should be there. It is your convention and let no small matter come in your way; take the time. I assume that you have made sufficient money so that you can afford to make the trip. If not, then mortgage your place and come; it is important that you should be there, for you will learn enough through association with your fellow growers to justify it in shorter time than you believe. Not only that, but you will continue to make more

You will come home with the feeling that there is a big future in store for this trade and big possibilities for those who are wide-awake and who take advantage of them. I can assure you that there will be no sleepyheads at Cleveland, for the enthusiasm will be enough to keep them awake.

This meeting offers the opportunity for such a discussion. Do not forget. Arrange your affairs so that you can attend.

About $9,000 has been spent for advertising, giving a combined circulation from March 1 to the present of over 2,000,000 readers covering a territory of over 100 miles around Chicago. A similar campaign is being conducted in Milwaukee. These two campaigns join and cover the territory between the two cities completely.

Do you realize the power of such advertising? If put into effect in all the other cities such campaigns would cover the United States like a blanket. We have a slogan, "Say It with Flowers," which will bear comparison with any other that has ever been coined for use in advertising any product. With such a spread of campaigns we should have the most wonderful system for advertis-

July 31 should revive outdoor stock greatly.

The retailers report that there is little doing in a business way except in funeral work.

The stock displayed these hot, dry days at any of the wholesale stores does not impress much. Roses seem plentiful, but of poor quality and color; among the best are White Killarney and Columbia. Premier, Russell and Ophelia have excellent demand when good quality appears.

Carnations are poor and scarce and asters have taken their place in work.

A great cut of gladioli has been coming in daily and low prices prevailed all the week. The bulk of the stock is of the leading varieties and of good quality, but the demand is not equal to the supply.

Asters are coming in, but as yet the market is not overstocked. The out-

Gardeners Meet.

The St. Louis Association of Gardeners held a largely attended outdoor meeting August 1 at the Missouri Botanical Garden. The meeting was called to order by President Jensen at 9 a. m.

The business transacted was mostly pertaining to the convention of the National Association of Gardeners next month and the members were highly enthusiastic over the prospects of a large attendance. All committees which have charge of the arrangements reported them completed.

After the business session George H. Pring entertained the members with an interesting account of his sight-seeing tours while in Cleveland last month. After the meeting the members were taken for an inspection of the conservatories and the gardens.

some floral baskets. A basket of vegetables was given to the comedian, who gave much publicity to the slogan during the performance. All the boxes were reserved for members of the trade. It was by far the largest attended night of the season.

Fred Michel, president of the Geo. Waldbart Floral Co., reports that he will attend the S. A. F. convention at Cleveland, going from there to New York; he will bring Mrs. Michel home from the place where she has been spending the summer.

Vincent J. Gorly, of Grimm & Gorly, says he will be at the S. A. F. convention to further his hobby, the birthday flower. He says he can show that ninety per cent of the retailers throughout the country favor his birthday flower plan.

A. Jablonsky, at Olivette, Mo., one of the largest and best carnation growers in St. Louis county, is adding several new greenhouses to his already large range.

The florists' publicity committee will hold its monthly meeting Tuesday, August 10, 8 p. m., at headquarters, 1316 Pine street. Chairman Bourdet requests a full attendance.

Joseph Hauser is still champion among the horseshoe throwers, as he defeated all comers at the picnic. Mr. Hauser has held this title for many years.

Frank Hespin, who is in charge of Vandervoort's floral department for the summer, reports that he will open a store on Union avenue early in September under the name of the Carlston Flower Shop. Mr. Hespin is a splendid designer and should succeed.

The store of the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. looks nice and clean; a new coat of white paint on the interior brightens up things considerably. The work is under the supervision of Harry Schlechter and Roger Derby.

John D. Barnard, president of the Rosery Floral Shop, with Mrs. Barnard, has returned from a two weeks' eastern trip. Mr. Barnard became sick in Cincinnati and they had to return sooner than they expected, as they gave up a week's southern trip.

A. F. Longren, representing the Burlington Willow Ware Shops, Burlington, Ia., had a good week's business in this city last week and displayed a fine lot of samples at the Hotel Statler.

L. H. Archias, of Sedalia, Mo., president of the Missouri State Florists' Association, and his daughter, Miss Marian, are returning home from an extended trip to California. In a letter from Yellowstone park July 25 he sends greetings to the florists of the state.

H. E. Larsen, of Hilmer V. Swenson & Co., Chicago, spent July 31 in this city interesting the local trade in advertising.

The Market.

At first sight one would suppose, from the amount of stock on the market last week, that business was at a standstill, but close investigation disclosed that this was not the case by any means. Everyone was doing a good, steady business. In each one of the stores visited the reply to the question as to how business was holding up was the same: "We have never experienced a finer summer business." The reason for the congestion in the wholesale houses is simply that the supply is much greater than the demand. Take gladioli, for instance; every wholesale house was oversupplied with gladioli of about the finest quality ever seen on the Baltimore market. It would seem that all inferior varieties have been discarded and only named varieties are being grown. In fact, the buyers now ask for them by name. Evidently the growers have been prevailed upon to produce quality stock. Some means must be worked out to dispose of it, for this stock is too fine to go to the garbage can or even to the street. Roses are getting small and of summer quality, yet there were many that buyers did not object to, paying $10 per hundred. It is no longer a question of price, but of quality.

Asters are in fair supply and, like gladioli, are of superior quality. Astermums have been especially good, but a disease seems to be attacking them. Fine purple flowers are turned half white.

Smilax and asparagus are to be had in any quantities desired. There is plenty of miscellaneous stock of all kinds for this season. The only serious question on the market concerns the gladioli; aside from this it is a good summer market.

A Supply House at Last.

Ever since I have been writing for The Review I have been advocating a florists' supply house in Baltimore. Just think of a city of between 700,000 and 800,000 inhabitants, having a large number of retail florists, in which a small order of supplies must be obtained from out of town. William F. Ekas has realized the need; he has gone into the Baltimore Wholesale Florist & Supply Co. with one object in view—to build this business up upon service to grower and retailer alike. His idea, which is a good one, is that if he can get the retailer to come to his establishment to buy supplies he will have a chance to sell him cut flowers also. The two branches of the business are going to be separate and distinct; the supply department will occupy the two upper floors of the building at 13 East Center street and the cut flower department the first floor. Tuesday, July 27, the first consignment arrived. This was a line of baskets from the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago. Mr. Ekas said it was his intention to carry a complete line of florists' staples. He spent the week of July 17 in Chicago procuring his stock and will be under way in the early fall. A city salesman will be put on the street September 1.

talking F. T. D. business with William F. Keys, Jr. He told me that his out-of-town business was well taken care of and he was not obliged to give himself any concern on this part of the business. To verify his assertion, he got out his file of telegraph orders from January 1, 1920, to the present time. Over two-thirds of them were from the west, with an especially large number from the Pacific coast and also a large number from the south. Mr. Keys said the "cross keys" in his ad seemed to catch the eye of the trade. His idea is that there is nothing to equal a display advertisement. Another thing that Mr. Keys spoke of was the help telegraph business was to his local trade. He said that every telegraph order gave him a new prospect to work upon, his object being to impress the persons with his quality of service, place their names on his mailing list and follow this up. In every local letter he mails he places one of the F. T. D. folders. From this he has splendid results, but Mr. Keys is of the opinion that something must be done to make the F. T. D. business

The Market.

The market last week was uneven, being good one day and poor the next. The truth of the matter is that the market is keeping up to past performances at this season.

Gladioli and asters have swamped the market, but sales were slow and consequently much stock remained in the refrigerators from day to day. Gladioli were so plentiful that the best could be bought as low as $4 per hundred and the poorer grades as low as $2 per hundred. Asters also have been arriving in large numbers and the price has been cut from $3 per hundred to $1.50 per hundred on the best stock. Only Easter lilies hold their own. This is due to the fact that few are arriving, but at that enough are on hand to supply the demand. Many short rubrum lilies arrived during the week, but, like gladioli and asters, they did not find much sale.

FLORAL EXCHANGE

Some good valley is arriving, but little is used because of the scarcity of large social affairs and the absence of weddings. Shasta daisies seem to be making a new crop, judging from the looks of the ones that are arriving.

Roses are showing up better than a week ago. The new ones now arriving are finding a fair market.

New leucothoe is arriving now more plentifully, but still is short. Some excellent galax is finding a good sale.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Sheppard arrived in town Sunday evening, July 25, from Richmond, Ind., where they have been for the last few days. Mr. Sheppard's store has made a number of changes in the line of furnishings and is preparing to handle double the amount of business this fall and winter that was handled last year. A considerable number of telegraph orders were received last week.

Almost all of the standard summer cut flowers are grown, but Mrs. Howard expects to specialize in Delphinium Belladonna and gypsophila next year, as well as gladioli. Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, H. G. Hastings, Atlanta, Ga.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

ON the steamer Fort Hamilton, from Hamilton, Bermuda, 106 cases of Harrisii lily bulbs arrived at New York July 30 consigned to F. B. Vandegrift & Co.

THE official roster of Alexander Forbes & Co., Newark, N. J., is: President, Alexander Forbes; vice-president, F. E. Sellnow; secretary, Alexander Forbes, Jr.; treasurer, John G. Forbes.

W. W. BARNARD left New York by motor July 30 bound for Chicago. Ralph B. Howe left August 3 for Stockbridge, Mass. After a vacation in the Berkshires he plans to visit New York city and Washington, D. C., before returning to Chicago.

PETER HOLLENBACH'S son, Charles, is thoroughly enjoying the magnificent scenery of British Columbia. Just as soon as his father returned to Chicago from a vacation trip to Yellowstone park, Charles Hollenbach started off July 18 to the Canadian Rockies.

THE court July 24 granted the application of the Mercantile Trust & Savings Bank, trustee for the firm of W. H. Small & Co., Evansville, Ind., for permission to sell the grain and seed of the company in order to take up and redeem certain warehouse receipts used as collateral with certain banks to secure money borrowed by the company.

JAMES A. BROWN, general manager of the Brown Bulb Ranch, Capitola, Cal., and Mrs. Brown visited Chicago last week on their way to Holland for a trip combining business and pleasure. Mr. Brown said that there was a big shortage in freesias, especially in the large sizes, due to the bad growing season, which had not matured the bulbs in sufficient size to produce the higher grades in large quantities.

FIRST DUTCH BULBS ARRIVE.

The first Holland bulbs of the season reached the port of New York on the steamer Noordam, from Rotterdam, July 29. The number of cases was not large, only 337 in all. The main shipments, however, are to come later. This year's first arrivals are over a month ahead of those of a year ago.

Advices concerning the supply this year are uncertain. The sales element enters into the situation so largely this season that indications informative in other years are not relied upon so much. The lesson of last season has made many buyers wary.

The consignments upon the Noordam were as follows:

FRENCH BULBS ARRIVE.

The steamer Britannia reached New York harbor from Marseilles July 30 with the first cargo of French bulbs of this season, a total of 5,651 cases. The Patria followed it into the harbor, with,

I have growing on my place at Amelia, Ohio, 10,000 bulbs of this variety that will bloom during August, and also all the bulblets produced last year.

This variety originated with me and no stock has as yet passed from my possession. I wish to sell the entire stock and wish to hear from anyone interested in something really good.

QUIT GROWING HOLLAND BULBS.

When the late Charles Willis Ward bought a million and a half bulbs from the Holland Bulb Farm, at Victoria, B. C., six years ago, and commenced growing tulip and narcissus bulbs at Eureka, Cal., the experiment was watched with great interest by the horticultural interests of the country. So generous was the investment and so extensive the undertaking that the possibility of competition with imported stocks from Holland was the subject of much speculation. In fact, the enterprise was cited by members of the Federal Horticultural Board as an example of how America might become independent of foreign supplies of plants and bulbs.

The entrance into a receiver's hands of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries a year and a half ago caused a shrinkage in those expectations. Now the announcement is made that the growing of tulips and narcissi will be discontinued at Eureka, which may lend the Dutch bulb men some encouragement. The growing of gloxinias and tuberous-rooted begonias will, however, be continued.

BULB GROWING IN MICHIGAN.

Michigan has proved well adapted to the growing of gladiolus bulbs. Several Holland concerns, cut off from the American market by the quarantine, have started gladiolus growing in Michigan and have met with good success. They have made small tests with other bulbs, with such good results that the work seems destined to develop with considerable rapidity.

Herada—A beautiful opalescent lavender, shading to plum. Very popular.

Gretchen Zang—Soft, melting shade of pink, blending into salmon.

Bertrex—Large white flowers of good substance, the size and form of America.

Evelyn Kirtland—Beautiful shade of rosy pink, darker at edges, shading to shell pink at center.

The above are tall, strong varieties, valuable for florists' use. Read what some people say about them:

A. F. J. BAUR, the noted carnation breeder and member of the wholesale firm of Baur & Steinkamp, Indianapolis, Ind., wrote:

"Please quote us on Bertrex and Evelyn Kirtland, giving prices on various quantities. Evelyn Kirtland turned out to be what the writer thought. It is the finest pink in existence. Bertrex is an unusually good white. Both should become leaders."

JAMES F. RYCKLIK, florist and grower, of Painesville, Ohio, said:

"Please let me know if you can spare 2500 Gretchen Zang. I had spikes of Gretchen Zang over five feet in height, and with 18 to 26 blossoms."

299 BROADWAY, NEW YORK

that the Cottage Gardens Nurseries will abandon the attempt to grow tulips and narcissi at Eureka, Cal., comes the report that the National Bulb Farms, of which A. J. Pruyser is the head, at Benton Harbor, Mich., has on the way from Holland the largest importation of planting stock of daffodils ever shipped out of Holland. There are 260 cases, about three carloads, approximately three million bulblets, in the shipment. These are to be planted at two places in Michigan, one of them Benton Harbor, the other location yet to be determined. Mr. Pruyser says that the stock was obtained at a low price because of an accumulation in Holland due to the war and he feels confident that growing the stock on here will prove successful both from the quality and financial point of view.

To finance its development the National Bulb Farms, Inc., recently has increased its capital stock to $250,000, of which $160,000 has been paid in.

NEW EARLY-FLOWERING or WINTER-BLOOMING

Giant Pansies

An entirely new and distinct strain of Pansies. The main advantage of these new Pansies over all hitherto existing Pansies is the extreme earliness of flowering and its unusual hardiness, which enables them to withstand quite severe winters, and to bloom right on into the summer. Sown at the same time as other Pansies, they begin flowering the early part of March, or as soon as the snow is off the ground, many times having four or five large flowers to a plant, when all other Pansies are only showing buds. The flowers are large, well formed and fragrant. They are highly recommended for Autumn planting on graves, and for very early bedding, as well as for early cut flowers.

No. 4. JOVE. Lower petals violet; upper ones light blue.
No. 5. MARS. Cornflower blue.
No. 6. NORTH POLE. Pure snow white.
No. 7. WODEN. Quite black.
No. 8. HELIOS. Pure yellow.
No. 14. WINTER SUN. Golden yellow, with dark eye.
No. 15. ICE KING. Silvery white, with dark blue eye.
No. 16. CELESTIAL QUEEN. Light or sky blue.
No. 17. CHARM OF MARCH. Dark velvety blue.
No. 18. MIXED. The above colors and other shades.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

NURSERY stock will cost still more when the new freight rates add approximately one-third to the cost of shipping it.

NOW that help is somewhat easier to get, more acreage will be devoted to growing nursery stock. But the effect will not be felt for two or three seasons.

PROBABLY not so many orders will be given for planting on estates and home grounds this autumn. But there will be enough to use all the ornamental stock available.

EXPRESSIONS of opinion, as well as items of news, are welcomed from nurserymen in this department. Interchange of ideas at present is of high value to the trade.

GEORGE W. WINFREY, of Rudy, Ark., has been appointed deputy state plant board inspector and entered upon his duties August 1; he will have active charge of nursery inspection in the state.

ABNER HOOPES, one of the founders and the senior member of Hoopes, Bro. & Thomas Co., West Chester, Pa., died at his home July 24 at the age of 84 years. More extended notice appears in this week's obituary column.

NEW YORK state nurserymen may find the new barge canal a means of cutting transportation costs on their stock. A barge loaded with 500 tons of nursery stock on its initial trip reached New York last week consigned to Maltus & Ware.

TWENTY-FIVE acres of land in Paris, Ky., have been sold by E. F. Kriegel to B. Meinertz and Warner Harper, proprietors of the Andorra Nurseries, Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia. The land is now being used as a vegetable and truck garden. This fall its new owners will begin the establishment on it of the Bourbon Nurseries. They also secured several acres adjoining the farm from Catesby Spears and one acre from Mr. Yates.

HOOD RIVER PRICES UP.

Frank A. Massee, just returned to Hood River, Ore., from an automobile tour to Coeur d'Alene, Ida., following the recent convention of nurserymen at Spokane, predicts higher prices for nursery stock the coming planting season. Mr. Massee says that a price of $60 per hundred, in minimum of 500 lot deliveries, has been established as a wholesale price. This means that trees will retail for about 75 cents each.

"The apple tree supply," says Mr. Massee, "will just about equal the demand. As for pears, they will be higher. I do not believe that nurserymen have eighty per cent of the pear stock that will be needed for new plantings."

TROUBLE WITH HARDY PHLOX.

Please tell me what to do to prevent rust on phlox and also how to get rid of a small yellow insect, which seems to spin a web over the ends of the branches. E. S. P.—Pa.

I think the rust you speak of is more probably red spider, brought on by a spell of hot, dry weather. This is a difficult pest to fight outdoors. More moisture at the roots of the plants and pressure of cold water through a fine hose nozzle, well directed, are the best remedies. Plants which are moist at the roots are rarely attacked. C. W.

BLIGHT ON DELPHINIUMS.

We are sending you some specimens of Delphinium Belladonna. These are infested with some disease in the bud and stem, which stunts their growth and spoils the flower. Will you tell us what can be done to prevent and also to cure the disease? E. N.—Wis.

The flowers received have been attacked by a blight quite common on delphiniums. It is more virulent on Belladonna than on the more robust hybrids of formosum. Suggested remedies are spraying with Bordeaux mixture from the time the growth starts in spring and continuing it weekly until the flowers commence to open. This I have found quite effective. One spraying will not suffice; it must be persisted in, as peculiar weather conditions will cause the trouble to start and it spreads with great rapidity. A common practice is to cut down the plants in the fall and leave the tops on the ground as a mulch. With clean plants this is permissible, but never where disease exists. Remove and burn every shoot. I should also give the land a generous dressing of lime at this time and scratch it into the soil. Replanting will improve plants which are affected, choosing new land for them. I should suggest cutting all your affected plants down to the ground now, removing and burning all the tops. The second crop of shoots will already be appearing. Spray these as advised and you should escape a second visit.

PAINESVILLE, O.

The crops look fairly well after the recent hail storms, which did not do so much damage to florists' and nurserymen's stock as was at first thought.

C. H. Shumaker, treasurer of Storrs & Harrison Co., has returned from Canada, where he spent his vacation.

T. R. Norman & Sons have an exceptionally fine stock of perennials this year.

Carl Hagenburger and E. B. George are serving from this locality on the committee for organization of the National Flower Growers' Association, in Cleveland, August 19.

Fred Endress & Son are cutting some fine gladioli for the market.

J. J. Hedderman, aster and sweet pea grower, reports considerable damage done by the hail storm.

R. A. Cowley has a large stock of perennials and gladioli. Mr. Cowley conducts a large general grocery store here, but his love for flowers prompted him to take up that line also.

E. H. Schultz, manager of the Wayside Gardens Co., Mentor, O., has moved into his new residence, which is modern in architecture.

The Market.

The market continues quite dull, with an occasional spurt, usually toward the first and last part of the week. The usual large supply of stock is on hand, with gladioli and sweet peas in largest supply. A few of the florists have taken advantage of the quantity prices and have put on large special sales, much to their advantage and at the same time helping to clean up the market. Asters have not as yet invaded this market in any great quantity, probably owing to the exceedingly cold weather we have been having. Outside of a few special sales, most of the retailers are buying just what they absolutely need and no more, making sales rather low. Funeral work is light and other affairs where flowers are used are few and far between.

White roses are arriving in quite large quantities at present and the demand is not large enough to take care of the supply. Orchids are moving fairly well, although the supply at present is limited. Easter lilies have eased up a bit for the time being. There is an abundance of miscellaneous stock, such as larkspur, calendula and achillea, most of which is used for window decorations, on account of its lasting qualities.

Various Notes.

James Uher, of the Lakewood Floral Co., has just returned from a vacation spent at Mt. Clemens, Mich.

Loyd Mercer has left for a trip on the lakes.

John Bartsch, with Felton's Flowers, has accompanied Charles Machuga for a two weeks' stay at Chippewa lake.

Chas. Russell has just returned from a trip through the White mountains.

Stephen Berthold, of the Cleveland Plant & Flower Co., has returned from his vacation.

Frank Kocar, of the Annex Flower Store, is back from his vacation and reports he spent part of his time on the sick list.

Geo. Hampton, representative of the Jos. G. Neidinger Co., Philadelphia, was a visitor recently.

Frank Williams and family and Miss Fannie Evans, of the Cleveland Cut Flower Co., have left for a month's tour

Greenhouse Heating

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the editor of this department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

HOPE FOR MORE COAL.

President Wilson told the coal miners the government couldn't, or wouldn't, consider their wage increase until they went back to work. So President Lewis, the national head of the miners, told the Illinois miners to go back to work. And President Farrington, who bosses the Illinois organization, said they'd better do it. Then the Illinois coal strike came to an end. The result is the postponement of a wage increase—maybe it will be retroactive, however—and the resumption of work in the Illinois mines for as many days per week as the freight cars will provide. The extreme shortage threatened in that state and the danger of the strike spreading throughout the central fields have been averted.

Opportunity is thereby given to see the unhindered results of the plans of the operators and carriers to speed up the shipment of coal. By facilitating the movement of open-top freight cars these hope to increase production twenty-five per cent. How the railroads and mine operators propose to do this has not been set forth by them in detail. Whatever results they can obtain will be watched interestedly by the trade. Growers in New England and in the northwest hope to benefit by the orders of the interstate commerce commission which direct a larger proportion of coal to those sections. Throughout the country greenhouse men are buying coal as they can get it and paying for it what they must. A number still have empty bins, hoping for easier conditions. Now that August is here, however, and the cry for coal is still loud, the need of early action is strong.

EXCELLENT PIPING PLAN.

I am sending you a sketch of three greenhouses. The ground slopes away from our boiler and the return pipes are on the ground. Some of them have to be sunk in order to give a fall to the returns and they are away from the bench. Will satisfactory results be obtained from the piping as it is sketched? Will one 4-inch flow feed eight coils of 2-inch pipe 103 feet long? Will one 4-inch return carry the water back to the boiler quick enough to give good results? W. E. R.—Mo.

The sketch shows three houses, 103 feet long, with the boiler at the southeast corner. The 4-inch flow pipe runs uphill along the south end of the houses and connects with the coils, of which there are three in the two west houses and two in the east house, with four 2-inch returns in each coil. At the north end of each house the coils connect with a 4-inch main return pipe, which, after running along the north

Neither in the East or West nor the North or South has any other make of Boiler ever equaled the performance of the Kroeschell.

Installed for 3,974,605 square feet of glass in 1916-1917.

The Kroeschell has proven its worth in many of the largest establishments in this country. It has frequently been installed by the most careful buyers in competition with all other makes of boilers.

Greenhouse owners like the Kroeschell because of its extreme simplicity and freedom from trouble. As a fuel saver it pays its own way—it can be operated with the cheapest grade of fuel.

Every customer immensely satisfied. The high efficiency and low cost of operation make the Kroeschell the best of all boilers for florists' use.

The Kroeschell has replaced three cast iron sectional boilers, and it certainly has given entire satisfaction.

It only takes a few words to express the good quality of your boilers and they are as follows: "Of all firms handling boilers and advertising them truthfully, the party buying a boiler would have to get the Kroeschell, as you are certainly advertising nothing but facts."

FISHER STEAM TRAP

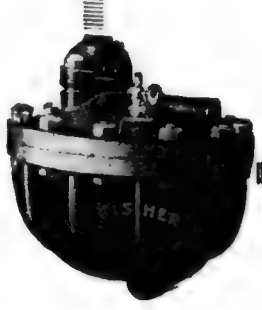
will positively keep your pipe lines free of all condensation—insure even heat— to the very last bench.

It keeps your steam dry and hot. Makes coal last longer—full heat value is received.

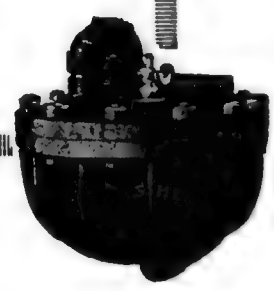
Years of experience in the steam specialty field have gone into the construction of the Fisher Trap.

Its many superiorities recommend it to florists as the most dependable trap for greenhouse heating systems.

Because of the extra large bucket, it operates less frequently—more forcibly. Note how the shape of the bucket provides a perfect water seal at all times.



Valve is either closed or wide open. There is no wire drawing and consequent steam leakage as with the continuous discharge type.



Our interesting book, "THE FISHER TRAP," tells you why the Fisher is best. Write for it today.

end of each house, is taken through the east house to the boiler. After entering the coils the water runs downhill all of the way to the boiler.

There will be nearly 2,400 square feet of radiation in the three houses, including the mains, while 1,000 square feet is ample for a 4-inch flow. By running 4-inch flows to the middle and the west house and a 3-inch flow to the east house, satisfactory results should be obtained. The flows and returns should be alike.

The general plan for the piping is excellent under the circumstances. From the amount of radiation it is judged that about 60 degrees is desired in the houses.

HEAT FOR CARNATIONS.

I am sending you a sketch of my greenhouses and should like to know an arrangement of pipes to keep a temperature for carnations when it is 40 degrees below zero. I am building additions to both ends of the houses and will take the roof off the old ones and put two under one roof. There are eighteen inches of glass in the side walls and four feet of concrete. Is steam or hot water heat preferable? Should the boiler be at the west end or at its present location? How large a boiler will be needed?

A. D.—Minn.

As it is understood, the greenhouses when rebuilt will, with the additions, measure 26x125 feet, with a flower store, 14x26 feet, across the end, to be heated for carnations when the temperature is 35 to 40 degrees below zero.

Whether steam or hot water is to be used will depend in part upon the attention that can be given at night to the fires. Steam requires firing at least once in three or four hours, especially in cold weather, and the only safe way is to have a regular night fireman, which of course is not practicable in a small place. On the other hand, while hot water requires less care and is more economical of fuel, steam heating systems can be installed at about two-thirds the cost of hot water heating systems.

In the present case, there is one objection to the use of hot water and that is that 1½-inch pipes are rather small for coils 125 feet in length. It would also require the purchase of considerably more pipe for the flows and returns. On the other hand, the present piping will answer for a steam heating system.

I am not sure what use is to be made of the "flower shop." It is noted that on the sketch it is mentioned as a storing room. If the arrangement is such as to permit it, the heating pipes can be run through this section the same as in the remainder of the house. In case less heat is needed than in the main house, the middle coil need not be carried into this part of the house, while, if the arrangement of the house makes it impossible to run the pipes along the walls, short wall coils may be used.

To heat the house, run three 2½-inch flow pipes through the house, placing one upon each outside wall and the others three or four feet under the ridge.

For the coils use five of the 1½-inch pipes on each side wall and place two returns under each of the two middle benches, making fourteen 1½-inch pipes in the three returns. If separate coils are to be placed in the storing room,

Help Save the "White Coal of Industry"

The boiling hot water resulting from condensation in your steam lines is worth money. You have paid for it in terms of coal. It contains valuable heat units. It is the "White Coal of Industry"—it should not be wasted.

And it need not be wasted. The Morehead Back-to-Boiler System will save it for you by returning it to the boiler at temperatures as high as 400 degrees Fahrenheit. It reduces coal consumption an average of 20%. At the same time your steam will be "drier" and more efficient; your production speeded up and profits increased.

Write today for facts and figures on what the Morehead System will do in your plant.

Memphis Floral Co. Makes Lease.

The Memphis Floral Co. has closed a 10-year lease on the first floor and basement of the building occupied by the Security Bank & Trust Co., on the southwest corner of Main street and Union avenue, for $150,000, or an annual rent of $15,000 a year, Edward E. Hughes, president of the company, has announced. The company now occupies the basement of the building. Possession is to be available September 1, 1921.

This is considered one of the most valuable business locations in the city. A 4-story building, 17x53 feet, occupies the site, built uniform with the adjoining buildings, at 79 and 81 South Main street. The company's lease covers the basement of the three buildings, but only the first floor of the corner building.

Extensive remodeling will be done on the building, including the lowering of the first story floor to the street level, and lowering the basement floor of the corner building several feet to a level with the basements of the adjoining buildings. A plate glass front will be put in, extending the full length of the Union avenue side.

When the improvements are completed, the Memphis Floral Co. will occupy the first floor with its salesroom, which will be made one of the finest retail flower shops in the south, according to Mr. Hughes' plans. The basements of the three buildings will be thrown together and fitted up for restaurant and confectionery purposes.

Bowling Green, O.—Brigham Bros. will construct a $10,000 flower store and greenhouse on Church street.

GREENHOUSE OWNERS ARE PAYING TOO MUCH
For most of the glazing materials they use

Sooner or later the Greenhouse Trade will wake up to the fact that selling expense represents much of the cost of certain strongly pushed products and that they can get the best material at lowest prices by ordering by mail from us.

The Federal Process Co. was the first concern to advertise Glazing Cement in The Review as a substitute for and an improvement on putty. Unsatisfactory as putty always has been, it was slow work convincing conservative florists that here at last was something better. But we kept at it until the demand became so large a host of imitators sprang up. Many of them spend more money selling their goods than they do in manufacturing them.

As a matter of fact, Greenhouse Cement is a small item in the Federal line of roofing materials and cement varnishes. Greenhouse Cement is the only item we sell direct to the consumer in small lots, and this advertisement in The Review is absolutely our only selling expense—so, of course, we can sell cheaper than anyone else and at the same time give a better article.

Having been the first to offer the now widely used Glazing Cement, we know all about the growers' needs. Write to us if you want to get the best materials at lowest prices.

S. Lundy, of the Boldt-Lundy Floral Co., recently purchased a new Nash automobile.

Leo Grimes and his wife and daughter have left for an extended automobile trip through the east. After visiting Burlington, Ia., they will go on to Chicago, where Mr. Grimes expects to visit the trade. His mother has just returned from Chicago, where she has been visiting a daughter. Mr. Grimes cut some fine lilies last week.

The Park Floral Co. has a lot of fine cyclamens.

The stock at Al Mauff's place is looking fine, the carnations particularly.

The Elitch Gardens Co. potted some extra fine ferns last week.

This seems to have been visitors' week. Ed. Johnson and party, which included Mr. Arnold, Mr. Lovett and Charles Armstrong, also Mr. Burkhardt, of Glen Eyre, were here from Colorado Springs. Other visitors were Bert Clippenger, from Laramie, Wyo.; Mr. Boldt, from Pueblo, Colo., and William Sidles, from Hastings, Neb. R. E. H.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

Business is better than usual at this season, the cut flower business being especially good. There is a fair demand for everything, with a good supply in sight. Funeral work is particularly brisk, many large pieces being noticeable. Indications are that there will be a large amount of greenhouse space in use the coming winter, more than ever before, as there is more greenhouse building than there has been in some time, although no individually large increase is being made.

The first asters and dahlias have made their appearance, the former taking the place of carnations, which are nearly gone for the season, those that are seen being small. Gladioli show signs of increasing popularity and command fair prices at $6 to $10 per hundred.

Various Notes.

Elmer E. King had a number of large pieces for the funeral of John M. Fisher, at Attleboro, a prominent manufacturer and national prohibitionist.

Miss Catherine Kelley, bookkeeper for Joseph E. Koppelman, is spending a vacation at Oak Bluffs.

Edward Brooke, Jr., is a member of the committee on arrangements of the Providence Chamber of Commerce for the annual outing of the aged and orphans of the city.

T. J. Johnston & Co. have added a new auto truck to their delivery department.

Abe Crowell has taken the victualing concession on one of the large Narragansett Bay excursion steamers for the season.

The severe electric storm which swept across the northern part of the state July 24 was one of the worst experienced here in a long time. The hail caused several thousand dollars' loss to the greenhouse men and florists. In Cranston the loss was especially serious. At the range of the Budlong Rose Co. the loss was between $800 and $1,000; at the greenhouses of C. W. Patt & Sons it was about $1,000 and an equal amount of damage was caused at the greenhouses of C. D. Potter, all from broken glass. In many instances the hailstones were easily a half inch in diameter. These were the heaviest losses reported, although much damage was caused at the greenhouses of A. J. Johnson, on Broad street. At the greenhouses of Joseph E. Koppelman, East Providence, a large tree, struck by lightning, in falling broke considerable glass. W. H. M.

The Market.

Business is quiet and the weather is hot and dry. Outdoor stock is badly in need of rain.

Good flowers are scarce. Some good gladioli were seen at one place. Asters have not appeared on the market as yet and will be scarce unless it rains soon.

Various Notes.

Ernest L. Lutz, James E. Miller and C. Charles O'Neil, of the firm of Maplewood Gardens, Boonville, Ind., called on the trade one day recently. The firm has dissolved partnership, E. L. Lutz having bought the interests of Frank D. McConnell. The firm name will remain unchanged. This firm has four acres under cultivation for vegetables, in addition to the stock of plants grown. Gladioli and asters are being cut. Business is good.

The Blackman Floral Co. is busy planting carnations in the benches. The rose houses are in shape for next season. The big house which has always been in smilax and other greens has been planted to roses.

Julius Niednagel & Sons are busy preparing to plant carnations.

Royston & Fenton expect to start work on the addition to their new range this week. The two houses are planted to Royal asters, which will soon be blooming. E. L. F.

STURDY CYCLAMEN.

Do you want strong, stocky Cyclamen plants, out of the ordinary quality, not spindly plants, grown in too high temperature, but sturdy plants, with stamina in them; ready to grow into great big specimen plants, that should carry 20 to 30 or more giant blooms at a time, about Thanksgiving and Christmas?

We have them. You want them. What does it matter if you pay us a few cents more per plant, if you can get a dollar or so more per plant when you sell them next winter? You pay us 35c for a 3-in. pot plant now and sell the same plant in December for $5.00 and up.

"Show me your friends, and I will tell you what you are."

Show me your greenhouse, and I will tell you what you know of growing.

Of course, anyone can buy a greenhouse and grow something in it.

And, by the same token, anyone can buy a fiddle, and almost anyone can saw out "How Dry I Am" on it. But—

A Zimbalist, an Elman or any other master violinist, though he can play the most difficult compositions, refuses to play on "just any fiddle." He demands a masterpiece of the violin-maker's art.

And in the case of greenhouses, just the same principle governs. The master grower, who can grow superlative stock, demands the best conditions. He knows he cannot do himself justice in "just any old greenhouse." He demands a masterpiece of the greenhouse builder's art.

The AGMCO builders are masters in their art.
Why not grow in the master grower houses?

PAPER WHITES

True to type and up to size

We guarantee that the bulbs we offer are up to size. We further guarantee that the prices offered below are not in competition with 12 ctm. bulbs offered at lower prices and sold for 13 ctm.; yet they are packed 1250 to the case as 13 ctm. We positively want to discourage the purchasing of 12 ctm. bulbs by any importer.

The French dealer prefers not to sell this size, as it deprives him from having larger bulbs the next season. Twelve centimeter bulbs do not bloom more than 25 to 35 per cent. However, we know of quantities of this size coming to this country this season.

In obtaining your bulbs from reliable concerns, you have the assurance of getting bulbs true to size. We cannot offset foreign competition of undersized bulbs, as our prices are based on deliveries of "up-to-size" bulbs.

We herewith quote you, for immediate delivery, French bulbs at the following prices:

Paper Whites, 13 ctm. and up, 1250 to case @ $22.00 per 1000
Paper Whites, 14 ctm. and up, 1000 to case @ 24.00 per 1000
Paper Whites, 15 ctm. and up, 900 to case @ 27.50 per 1000

Yellow Paper Whites, (Grand Soleil d'Or), very scarce.
Write for quotations.

Gentlemen:-

With great pleasure, we wish to inform you that we are more than pleased with the refrigerator and fixtures installed by you in our new store.

Suggestions in the general lay-out of the fixtures as well as the design, made by your Mr. Abrahamson at the time plans and specifications were drawn up, proved to turn out most satisfactory as far as appearance, convenience and usefulness are concerned.

The increase in business since we have entered our new store has been of such a remarkable proportion that we cannot lay credit to location alone, but largely to the general layout of the fixtures which enables us to display our goods most effectively.

We assure you that should any testimonies be necessary at any time, we will be glad to offer same.

Thanking you for the interest shown towards us;

ONE OF THE HOLM & OLSON SHOWCASES
BURLINGTON WILLOW WARE VASES USED EXCLUSIVELY

HERE is a real solution to one of your perplexing problems—a saver of hours of time in your shop—a flower vase for your refrigerator and display tables that needs little cleaning, that cannot break, that gives your shop an air of distinctiveness and exclusiveness.

Burlington Will-O-Ware Vases have every advantage over glass. The outside of dainty Will-O-Ware is quite as handsome and far more distinctive. The inside is rust-proof galvanized iron that cannot break and does not have to be cleaned and polished every day or two.

They last for years. When soiled they need only a coat of paint—the errand boy can apply it—to make them look like new. The sizes nest into each other and take up very little space when not in use.

Equip your store with these useful vases and note the improved appearance of your refrigerator and flower display. Send in your order today.

THE picture above shows one corner of the shop of Holm & Olson, one of the largest florists in America. Holm & Olson use Burlington Will-O-Ware Vases exclusively, more than 200 being in use in their store in St. Paul. The picture will give you some idea of the distinctive appearance that they give to the displays in a shop.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

PERENNIALS THAT PAY AS A CUT CROP

Where sufficient outdoor space is available, florists in increasing numbers are finding it profitable to grow perennials for the production of cut flowers. One of the first essentials to success in the undertaking is the selection of such varieties of plants as are best adapted to the purpose.

AS MIDSUMMER is not the usual sowing or planting season for most species of perennials, these suggestions on the selection of varieties may not seem, at first thought, to be well timed. Yet in some respects the present is an especially opportune time for the discussion of this type of plants. A large proportion of perennials are now, or soon will be, in their most interesting period of growth; some of them are blooming and many others are well advanced toward the blooming stage. Hence every florist who owns a bed or border of perennials is intently watching the progress of the plants. He realizes that now is the time when he can form the most accurate opinion of the merits and demerits of the different varieties. Therefore he is carefully comparing one variety with another and trying to determine what changes should be made in his stock—what old varieties should be discarded and what new ones should be added. He is passing judgment on the plants now, though the execution of the judgment must be deferred.

Taking Notes.

If he is a thoroughly systematic florist, he is not trusting these details of future action entirely to his memory, but is taking notes in writing. The florist who is not now growing perennials, but intends to do so, is also taking notes. It is hoped that this article may be helpful in such note-taking.

Moreover, the fall, which is not many weeks distant, is an advantageous time for the planting of some species of perennials, and especially for the rearranging of these species with reference to their relative heights and habits of growth. Florists who expect to purchase any stock for such fall planting have not a great deal of time to lose. To be sure of ordering the stock in time, they must decide before long what varieties will be required.

Perennials from Seed.

Though midsummer, as already admitted, is not the ordinary seedtime for the majority of perennials, a few words on the sowing may seem proper in this connection. The seed is most commonly germinated in late winter or in spring, in a greenhouse, in a coldframe or in the open ground, according to the date, the climatic conditions and other circumstances. Use a light soil, containing plenty of leaf-mold. If the soil is naturally stiff and retentive, add some sharp sand. It is best to use sashes and keep the frames tolerably close and shaded until the seeds germinate; then give light and more ventilation and later remove the sashes. The seedlings may be transplanted during cool, moist weather. In the case of many varieties it pays to transplant into other frames and from these transfer them outdoors. There is then practically no loss even when hot weather happens to arrive. Most varieties of perennials, after they are well established, can be multiplied indefinitely by means of root divisions.

Aquilegia Chrysantha, the Golden Columbine.

It will be noted that two or three favorite biennials, or plants customarily treated as biennials, are included in the list which here follows. For general convenience, the varieties are mentioned in their alphabetical order. The list, of course, is far from complete; many perennials that are desirable for cutting are necessarily omitted. Yet a judicious assortment of the varieties here named will supply cut flowers, in greater or less quantity, from early spring till late fall.

Achillea.

Achillea Ptarmica The Pearl has for many years been a valuable florists' flower. It grows to a height of one to two feet, with strong, erect stems, and it blooms with varying persistence throughout the summer. It is easily grown from seed and usually bears some flowers the first season if the sowing was done sufficiently early. It is particularly useful in funeral work, its double, pure white flowers having great keeping qualities. The seedlings are not always double and it is well to select one or two of the best and discard the others. The plants increase rapidly and need lifting and dividing every other year. A. Ptarmica Perry's White is an improvement on The Pearl. The flowers are more double and are pure white.

Aconitum.

The aconitums, otherwise called monkshoods or helmet flowers, are showy, stately plants, thriving better in the cool northern states than elsewhere. At Bar Harbor, Me., the writer has seen them eight to nine feet high. They bloom from August until October. While the bulk of them have dark blue flowers, some are pale blue and others variegated. The different forms of A. Napellus are the best to grow. A. Fischeri and A. Wilsonii are good; the last named is excellent in October, when nearly all other perennials have passed. Seed of these germinates more slowly than that of most perennials; so do not be too quick to give up hopes of germination.

Anemone.

The various forms of Anemone japonica are among the finest of all hardy perennials for cutting. The best method of propagation is to cut the roots into short lengths and place them in a propagating bench in winter, later potting off and planting outdoors. A. japonica alba is among the most useful of the family. Queen Charlotte, Whirlwind and Lady Ardilaun are other good sorts. For best results, plant these anemones where they will be well drained but can be well watered in summer. They need a good winter mulch of leaves, hay or straw.

Aquilegia.

Few perennials can compare with the columbines in grace and beauty and a vase of them at once arouses anyone's admiration. A liberal packet of seeds of the mixed, long-spurred hybrids will give a fine range of colors, comprising lavender, blue, orange, white, pink and yellow. Good named varieties are A. chrysantha, A. cærulea, or the Rocky Mountain columbine, and A. haylodgensis. Columbine seedlings germinate and grow more slowly than any other perennials and thrive best if pricked out in beds.

Artemisia.

Artemisia Abrotanum, familiarly known as old man and southernwood, is a popular variety, noted for its pleasing fragrance. A. lactiflora, from China, grows four to six feet high and has large, much branched panicles of creamy white, spiræa-like heads of flowers in September. It is a valuable plant for cutting and comes readily from seeds or divisions.

Aster.

The Michaelmas daisies of our fields and roadsides are familiar to everyone and are exceedingly beautiful in autumn. All are excellent for cutting and, as British hybridizers have raised many beautiful sorts, no perennial garden is complete without them. A packet of mixed seeds will give a grand range of colors. Some can be bought separately and will come true to name. Here are a few good varieties to try: Novæangliæ roseus, Perry's Pink, turbinellus, White Queen, Lil Fardel, St. Egwin, Climax and amethystinus. The early-flowering alpinus and subcærulea carry large, deep blue flowers; both are excellent for cutting.

Boltonia.

The boltonias, favorite summer-flowering perennials, rather closely resemble the asters, but grow taller than most of the latter. B. latisquama, lavender, is the best sort. B. asteroides is a useful pure white variety. These are well adapted for cutting and need a back position in the average hardy border.

Campanula.

Perhaps the Canterbury bell, Campanula Medium, is the best known and most generally popular campanula. Sow the seed in May to secure strong plants for blooming in the summer of the following year. The Canterbury bell, however, is only a biennial. There are many valuable perennial campanulas. C. persicifolia alba and cœrulea, the peach-leaved bellflowers, are among the best. C. pyramidalis, usually treated as a biennial, makes a grand summer-blooming subject in large pots or tubs. It is also a good border plant. Some varieties, like C. carpatica and C. rotundifolia, blue bells of Scotland, are useful plants in the border or rock garden. All campanulas are readily grown from seeds.

Centaurea.

Centaurea montana and C. montana alba, carrying large blue and white flowers, are valuable for cutting and make useful border plants. C. babylonica has showy yellow flowers.

Chrysanthemum.

The so-called Shasta daisies belong to the chrysanthemum family. The variety King Edward VII is deservedly popular, with its large, pure white, handsome flowers. The variety C. Leucanthemum White Lady is a new hardy white marguerite and a good percentage of the plants carry double white flowers. With the Shasta daisies should be mentioned the hardier forms of the true chrysanthemums, particularly the pompon, single and anemone types. In many localities these give good results outdoors. Propagation of these is, of course, by cuttings and not seeds. A special article would be needed to enumerate the more desirable varieties.

Coreopsis.

While coreopsis will frequently flower the same season when spring sown, it is more satisfactory to sow in summer and give the seedlings some protection with straw or hay in winter. A temperature of 20 degrees below zero did not injure them on the writer's place last winter. The variety C. grandiflora, an improvement on C. lanceolata, is splendid for cutting, carrying bright, golden yellow flowers on long stems.

Delphinium.

The stately perennial larkspurs, or delphiniums, appeal to everyone and no garden of hardy flowers is complete without them. If sown in early spring, many will bloom before fall and all make nice clumps before winter. For anyone wanting an assortment of colors at a minimum of trouble and cost, it is best to sow a package of light blue or dark blue hybrids. Or, if preferred, D. Belladonna in the clear turquoise blue shades may now be obtained from seed. The Chinese larkspurs, D. chinense, are easily grown from seed. They are dwarfer and more branching in habit than formosum and Belladonna and flower much earlier from seed. Three good hardy delphiniums, where separate varieties are needed, are D. formosum cœlestinum, King of Delphiniums and Queen Wilhelmina. Some other fine sorts are offered by leading seed firms.

Dictamnus.

The well known gas plant, dictamnus, is one of the most striking and charming of hardy perennials. D. Fraxinella has bold spikes of rosy crimson flowers. D. Fraxinella alba is pure white. The seed is of rather slow germination and it takes several years to produce strong flowering plants. The dictamnus, once well established, should not be disturbed. It resents root disturbance more than almost any other hardy plant.

Digitalis.

While there are several good perennial forms of digitalis, the plant usually thought of when the name is mentioned is the common foxglove, which, while perennial, is generally treated as a biennial. It is best not to sow the seeds until the middle of June, planting out in nursery rows later, with a distance of twenty-four inches between the rows and fifteen inches between the plants. The writer has been quite successful in transplanting foxgloves to their permanent flowering places early in October, always giving them a light winter protection. A heavy covering is sure to rot them.

C. H. A. IN CONVENTION

CANADIANS CONVENE.

Enthusiastic Meeting at Hamilton.

The opening session of the twenty-third annual convention of the Canadian Horticultural Association, at the Royal Connaught hotel, Hamilton, Ont., August 10, was marked by exceptional enthusiasm. The members opened the meeting by singing the national anthem, which was followed by the American anthem in honor of the guests from across the line.

W. E. Groves occupied the chair during the opening exercises. Mayor Booker delivered the civic address of welcome. In a few references to the friendship of Canada and the United States he won the applause of the members. He pointed out that the understanding between the two countries was strengthened by the war. He praised the society's work, which he declared brought the beauties of nature to the homes and gardens of all who desired them.

James McKenna, of Montreal, replied to Mayor Booker. The convention was an educational factor, as it would tend to educate those who attended for their profession, he said. Horticultural work lay in the interests of humanity, reconstruction and peace. He thanked the mayor for his welcome.

W. H. Gray, president of the Hamilton and District Gardeners' and Florists' Association, welcomed the delegates on behalf of that association. W. E. Groves then introduced President E. B. Hamilton, of London, who took the chair.

President Hamilton's Address.

President Hamilton then read his address, in which he noted the important features of last year's progress and outlined his recommendations for the future. He commended the resolution drafted and unanimously adopted by the association's educational committee, of which W. W. Gammage is chairman, at its meeting October 13, 1919, at Niagara Falls, Ont., and said that he hoped the convention would succeed in forming the Canadian Council of Horticulture, which the resolution proposed—as a means of developing Canadian horticultural interests and stimulating horticultural education in Canada. Further significant paragraphs from the president's address are as follows:

"The first of this year we inaugurated a membership drive, which has been most successful and has far exceeded our expectations. Through the energetic efforts of a few members we have more than doubled our membership and today the C. H. A. can boast of members from Vancouver to Halifax. We have had the pleasure of enrolling a goodly number of our American brothers, principally through the influence of our friend, John Young, secretary of the S. A. F.

"In February, through W. W. Gammage, the first president of the C. H. A. and a director of the F. T. D., a clearing house was established in Walkerville for F. T. D. business, which enables us to avoid the high rate of exchange.

"There have been many problems to solve. Only a few weeks ago we received a request from British Columbia to use our influence at Ottawa to have the season for inspection and fumigation extended, since under the present regulations it is impossible to get European importations through without freezing, owing to the climatic conditions in the Rocky mountains. This matter has been laid before Professor Arthur Gibson, acting Dominion entomologist, at Ottawa, and, we hope, will be adjusted to meet the needs of our British Columbia brothers.

Recommendations.

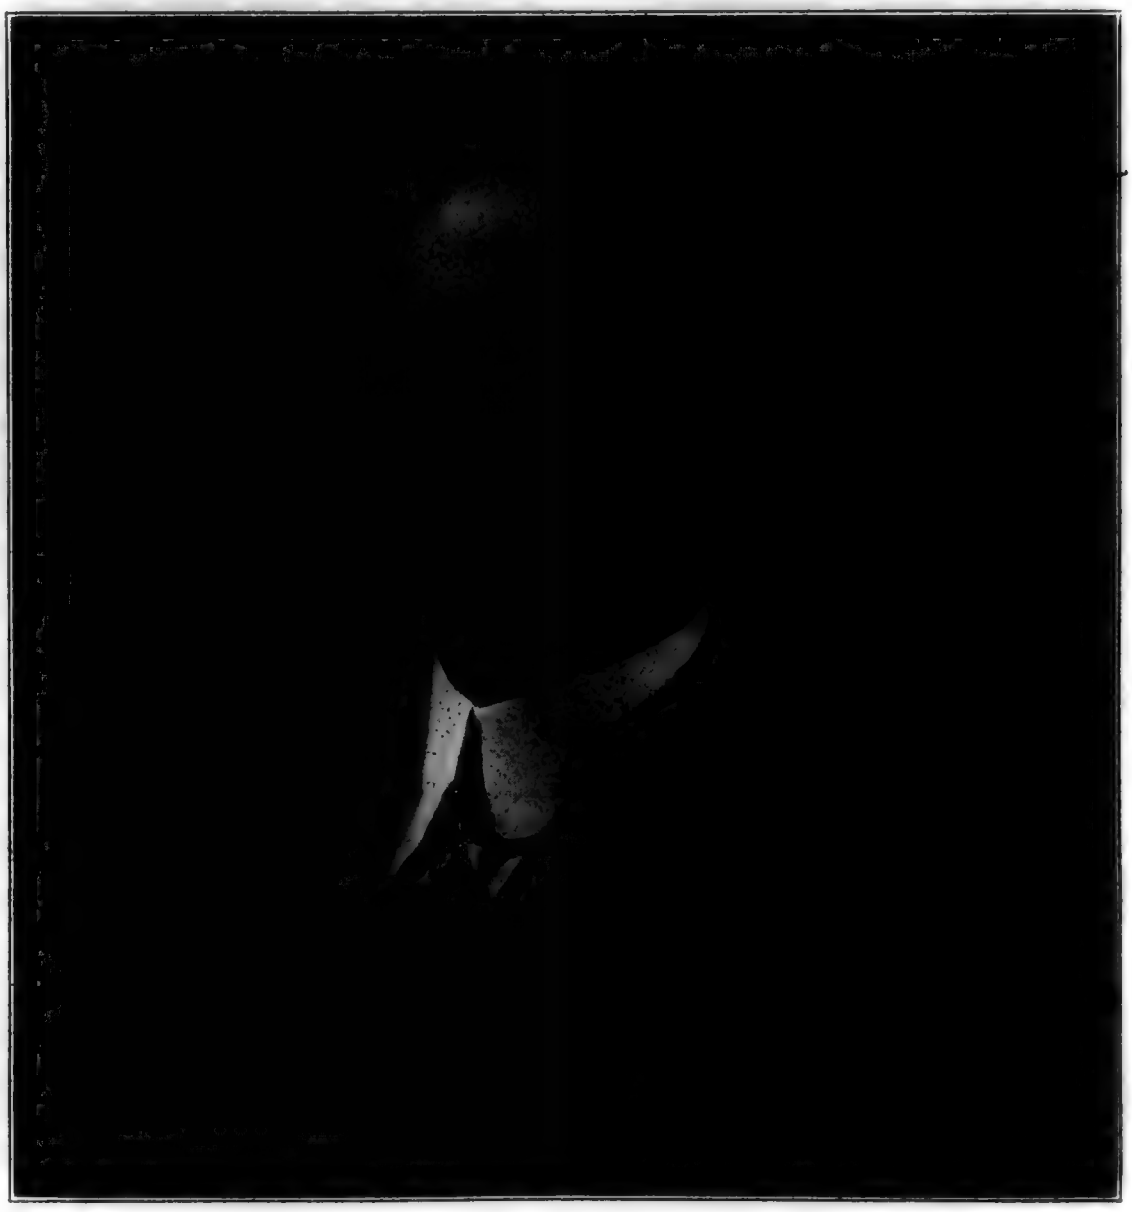
"Owing to the long program I feel I should not take up more time than is necessary, but I wish to make the following recommendations for your consideration:

"First—That this association publish a yearly directory of all members, stating their occupations, and that a copy of it be supplied to each member in good standing.

"Second—That this association take up coöperative advertising.

"Third—That this association take out a Dominion charter and apply for a government grant.

"Fourth—That this association consider the advisability of taking the convention, in the near future, to some province outside of Ontario and Quebec.



"Fifth—That this association continue the good work of the plant registration committee."

President Hamilton specially urged that meetings of the association should be held outside Ontario and Quebec, in order to interest the florists of the other provinces. He paid tribute to the memories of the late J. A. Bruce, Henry Simmers and C. G. Hewitt.

Committee Reports.

W. W. Gammage, of London, reported for the educational committee. He emphasized the necessity of proper education for horticulturists. "We pay taxes for the training of doctors, lawyers, etc.," he remarked, "and we should also share in the public money for the training of young men for horticulture. It is as scientific a profession as any." He pressed for the report adopted last year at Niagara Falls and emphasized the need for trained help. He said that without an educational faculty being established it would be impossible to train young horticulturists in scientific research work, plant physiology, plant pathology and entomology.

sized the need for trained men in greenhouses. A keen discussion followed. It was pointed out that inadequate wages in greenhouses resulted in many expert growers seeking employment elsewhere. Efforts to remedy this will be made.

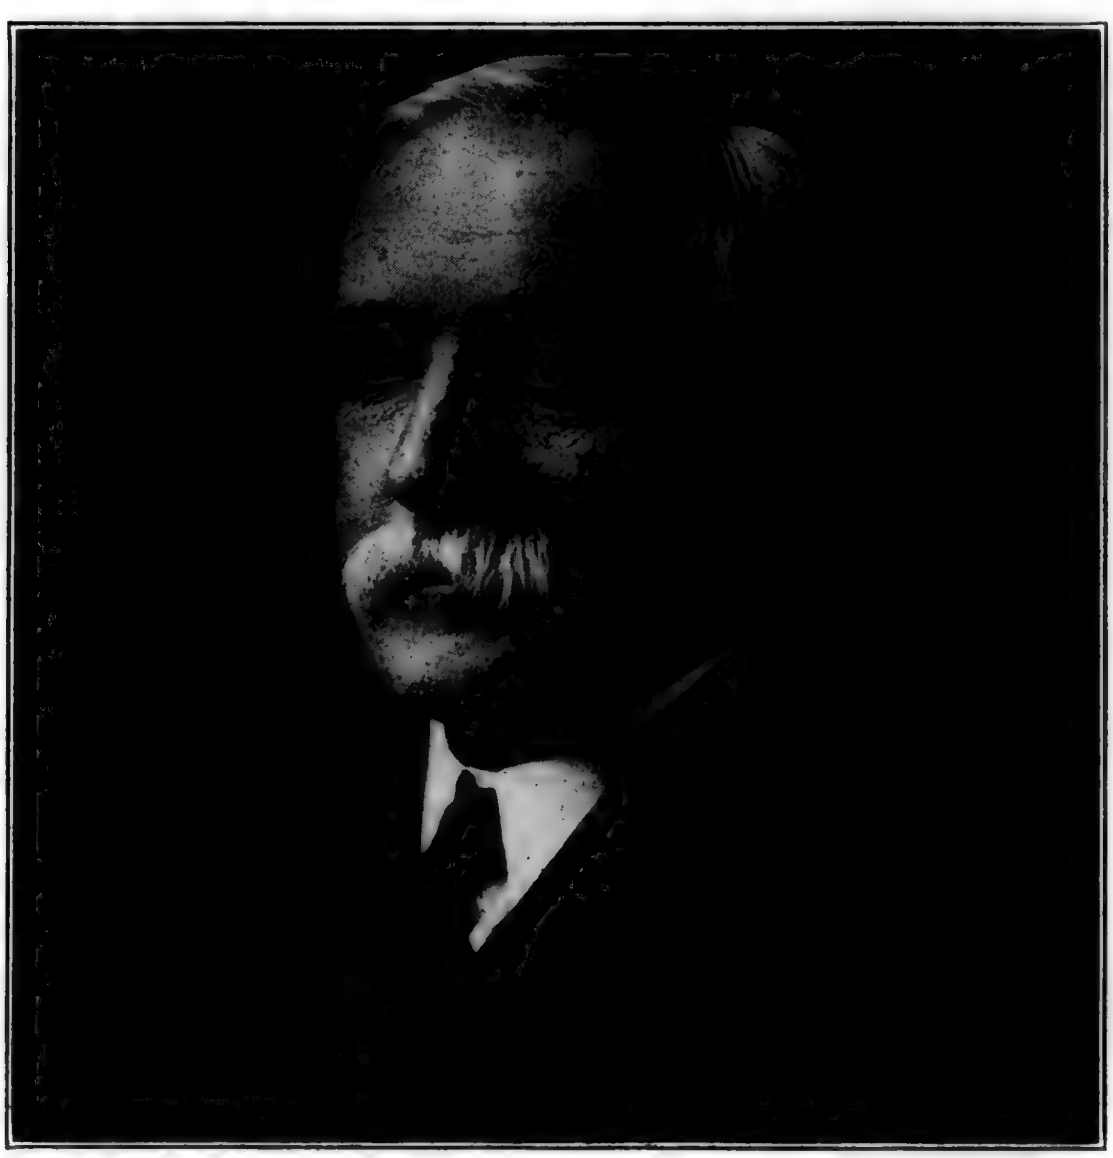
C. J. Hay presented the new constitution, but it was decided to hold this over until next year, when it will be taken up with the incorporation of the association.

Excellent Addresses.

The delegates were entertained at tea by the local committee, after which a special session was held to hear Albert Pochelon, of Detroit, and Wm. F. Gude, of Washington, who spoke on the advantages of the F. T. D. and the manner in which this organization is working up a great business.

W. J. Potter gave the opening paper at the evening session and outlined the past, present and future of Canadian horticulture. He gave a history of horticulture in the Dominion and showed its growth in the last sixty-five years. At present there are about 70,000,000 feet of glass in Canada, or approximately 155 acres. Amateurs, he said, are doing a great deal of hybridizing and are grasping the laurels from the professional florist, who should be friendly with the amateur. Stock should be selected and grown suitable to our climate. Experimental stations could assist in this. We need to develop our seed and bulb business. Research may find that we can grow bulbs somewhere in Canada. Landscape gardening is developing in Canada, but this art requires more attention. He concluded with a statement of the need of practical education of Canadian youths in horticulture and floriculture.

W. E. Groves concluded the session with a paper on coöperation. He related the development in relationship between employer and employee and suggested closer coöperation between grower and retailer and also among retailers. Growth of the F. T. D. is needed, he said, until every town and city in Canada has members in it. Our colleges and experimental stations should be closer to the trade, he asserted.



Addresses scheduled for presentation at later sessions of the convention were, for Wednesday, August 11, "The Retail Florists' Business," by S. McFadden, of Toronto, and "Insect Methods," by Arthur Gibson, chief of the division of field crop and garden insects, at Ottawa, and, on Thursday, August 12, "Foreign Importations," by W. H. Gray, of Dundas; "Foreign Importations, with Special Relation to Retail Florists," by W. W. Gammage, of London, and "Private Gardening," by F. D. Clark, Toronto.

Who's Who for the Good Times.

The social side of the convention has been by no means overlooked by the local convention committee, which has for its officers, in addition to W. E. Groves, the president, the following: Treasurer, Major John Connon; chairman of entertainment committee, F. R. Brotherton; chairman of trade exhibits committee, W. H. Gray; chairman of publicity and program committee, Harry E. Groves, and secretary, J. E. O'Sullivan.

After the discussion of the revision committee's report Tuesday afternoon, the association's officers and the local committee held a "friend-making reception," to which nobody was invited—because everybody was supposed to come without an invitation. The following afternoon the convention picnic was held and the delegates and their friends were the guests of M. Ofield & Sons, Grimsby. Then the association banquet has been planned for Thursday evening and Friday the Thirteenth will be given over to an afternoon drive to points of local interest, including Hamilton beach, and a theater party in the evening.

The annual meeting of the Canadian Retail Florists' Association is an additional feature of Thursday morning, August 12. At that same time a ladies' shopping excursion has been planned. Whether or not the ladies take action in accordance with a suggestion in President Hamilton's address that they form a ladies' auxiliary of the association similar to the Ladies' S. A. F., their importance at conventions will continue to be recognized.

KANSAS FLORISTS ORGANIZE.

State Association Born at Wichita.

Upon the invitation of Harris S. Mueller, vice-president of the S. A. F. for Kansas, thirty-six members of the trade, representing all parts of that state, met at Wichita August 5. As a result the Kansas State Florists' Association was organized.

The morning was devoted to registration and to visiting the local greenhouses and stores and inspecting the damage wrought by the recent disastrous hail storm. The Johnson Greenhouses and the ranges of Chas. P. Mueller and W. H. Culp & Co. were among those visited. At noon a luncheon was served at the Innes tea room, with table decorations by W. H. Culp & Co.

At 2 o'clock the real business of the day began with the business meeting in the assembly room of the Board of Commerce, where the registration had taken place. When the session had been called to order, the question of a state organization was opened for discussion. The sentiment of the meeting was unanimously in favor of a state association, so that immediate steps were taken to bring it about. While the constitutional and nominating committees were preparing their reports, various phases of the business were discussed informally.

Officers Elected.

The constitution submitted by the committee appointed to draft it was adopted. The nominating committee also reported and the following officers were elected:

President—C. E. Hubbard, Topeka.

Vice-president for the western section—Mrs. M. E. Andress, Larned.

Vice-president for the eastern section—R. W. Ward, Lawrence.

Directors—Chas. P. Mueller, Wichita; Charles Humfeld, Concordia, and L. E. Flindt, Arkansas City.

At 6:30 a dinner was served at the Hotel Lassen, with decorations by Chas. P. Mueller. Forty-eight local and visiting florists were present. During the dinner lists were circulated, as a result of which the new association started off with a paid-up membership of nearly fifty. A number of florists who were unable to be present had signified their desire to become members if an organization was effected, so that the membership was certain to receive further increases. Plans for a winter show and meeting were discussed and the whole matter was referred to the board of directors for consideration and recommendations.

BUFFALO, N. Y.

The Market.

The low level of the market held steady until the latter part of last week, when an oversupply of asters became evident, causing prices to drop to old-time levels. This does not mean that trade has not held up to expectations. It is reported to be remarkably good in all shops. The low prices are the result of overproduction in outdoor stock. During the last two years prices of outdoor stock have been so high and profitable that they have encouraged increased planting and added to the number of growers.

Stock of all kinds is fine. Even the rose cuts are of unusual quality for the time of year and give promise of good supply of fine quality for the entire summer.

Various Notes.

F. J. Baum, of Kingsley street, has just returned from an automobile trip through the eastern states. Mr. Baum reports that greenhouse stock is none too plentiful at the places he visited and that there is much talk to the effect that if the coal situation does not clear many houses will be closed next winter.

Frank Wexelimann has left for Cedar Lake, Canada, where he will fish for about two weeks.

Felton's Flower Shop is being remodeled to afford more convenience.

The Buffalo Floral Co. will open a new shop, at Washington and Genesee streets, in a few weeks. F. P. A.

PITTSBURGH, PA.

The Market.

The first summer slump of the season has made its appearance; business has taken on its usual summer dullness, while production has almost doubled during the last ten days. Great quantities of especially fine gladioli are being received daily and many poor spikes are seen at the stores of the various wholesalers; these poor flowers might better have remained at home. Roses of excellent summer quality are plentiful. Carnations are on the wane. Asters are good and are improving in quality and quantity daily. There are large quantities of various outdoor, hardy flowers, which at present find little demand. Prices are low and large buyers have things their own way these days.

Among the retailers things also look dull and quiet. Vacation time is here and the opportunity for rest and recreation which the present season gives us is being taken advantage of.

However, with the growers conditions are reversed; they are anxious to finish planting.

Various Notes.

The outlook for fuel is not at all encouraging. The bituminous coal situation in this territory is just as much strained as in other localities. After the priority orders on the lake shipments are completed—about September 21—conditions for local coal movements should become more normal. At present coal can be obtained at $10 per net ton from the brokers.

Henry Meuschke, Mrs. Meuschke and their daughter left Saturday, July 31, on a trip to the coast. They expected to be away for six weeks. Mr. Meuschke, who is the proprietor of the Saxonwald Greenhouses, stated that, while he is in the midst of the largest collieries and also wagon mines, he is unable to obtain coal at a less price than $9.50 per net ton.

Miss Katherine Drewes, daughter of William Drewes, Homestead, spent her vacation visiting her relatives at Riverside, Cal.

Harry Langhans, of McGrath & Langhans, will join the large Pittsburgh party for the Cleveland convention.

Samuel McClements and his family are enjoying their summer home at Alexandria Bay, N. Y., among the Thousand Islands.

The outing and field day of the Pittsburgh Florists' and Gardeners' Club was spent on the beautiful estates of Sewickley Heights.

The Blind Floral Co., of which Edward Blind is proprietor, has purchased sized the need for trained men in greenhouses. A keen discussion followed. It was pointed out that inadequate wages in greenhouses resulted in many expert growers seeking employment elsewhere. Efforts to remedy this will be made.

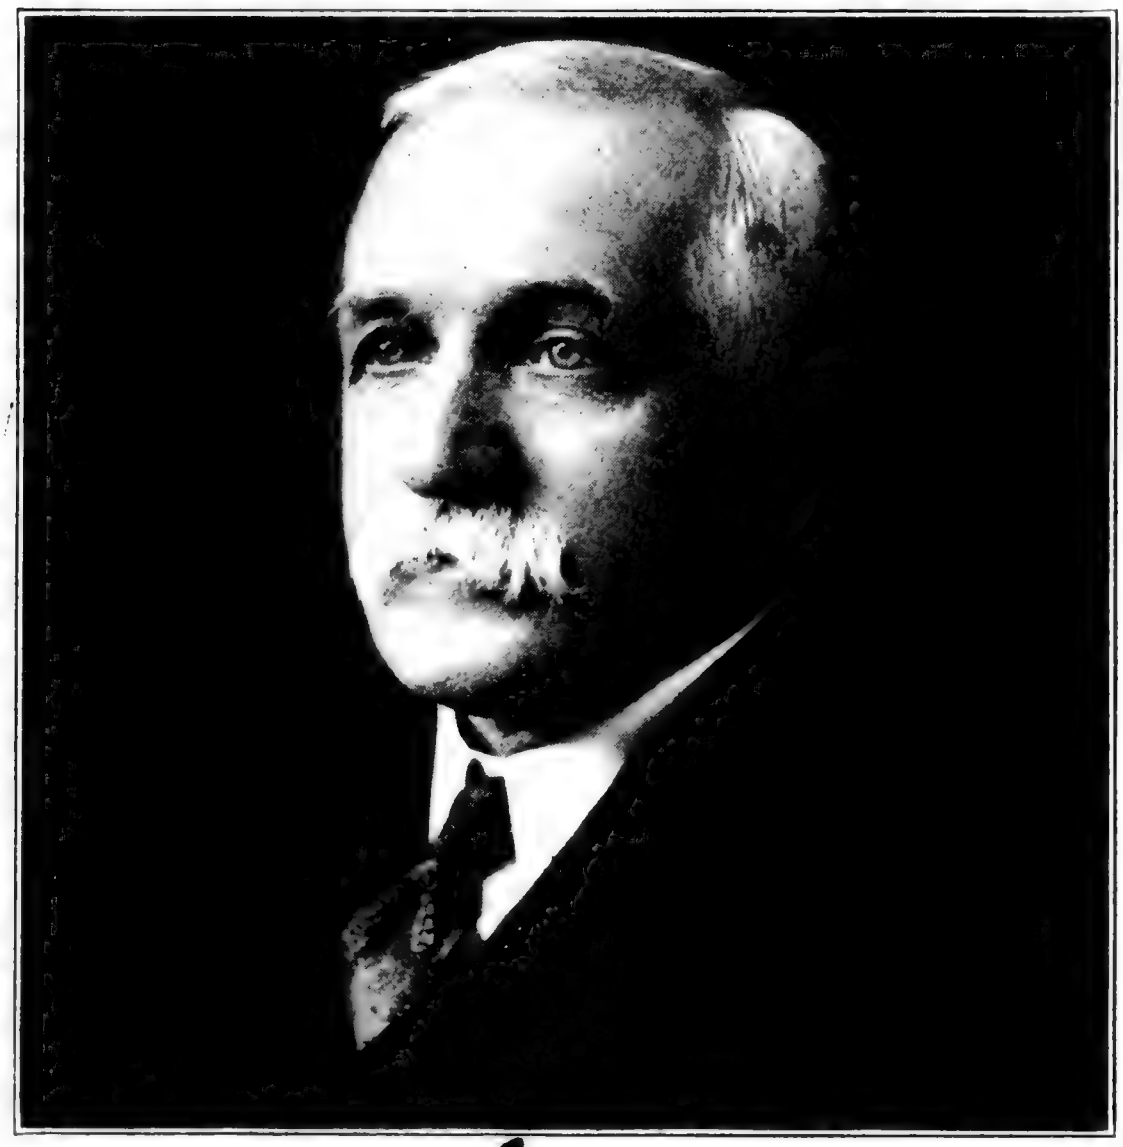
C. J. Hay presented the new constitution, but it was decided to hold this over until next year, when it will be taken up with the incorporation of the association.

Excellent Addresses.

The delegates were entertained at tea by the local committee, after which a special session was held to hear Albert Pochelon, of Detroit, and Wm. F. Gude, of Washington, who spoke on the advantages of the F. T. D. and the manner in which this organization is working up a great business.

W. J. Potter gave the opening paper at the evening session and outlined the past, present and future of Canadian horticulture. He gave a history of horticulture in the Dominion and showed its growth in the last sixty-five years. At present there are about 70,000,000 feet of glass in Canada, or approximately 155 acres. Amateurs, he said, are doing a great deal of hybridizing and are grasping the laurels from the professional florist, who should be friendly with the amateur. Stock should be selected and grown suitable to our climate. Experimental stations could assist in this. We need to develop our seed and bulb business. Research may find that we can grow bulbs somewhere in Canada. Landscape gardening is developing in Canada, but this art requires more attention. He concluded with a statement of the need of practical education of Canadian youths in horticulture and floriculture.

W. E. Groves concluded the session with a paper on coöperation. He related the development in relationship between employer and employee and suggested closer coöperation between grower and retailer and also among retailers. Growth of the F. T. D. is needed, he said, until every town and city in Canada has members in it. Our colleges and experimental stations should be closer to the trade, he asserted.



Addresses scheduled for presentation at later sessions of the convention were, for Wednesday, August 11, "The Retail Florists' Business," by S. McFadden, of Toronto, and "Insect Methods," by Arthur Gibson, chief of the division of field crop and garden insects, at Ottawa, and, on Thursday, August 12, "Foreign Importations," by W. H. Gray, of Dundas; "Foreign Importations, with Special Relation to Retail Florists," by W. W. Gammage, of London, and "Private Gardening," by F. D. Clark, Toronto.

Who's Who for the Good Times.

The social side of the convention has been by no means overlooked by the local convention committee, which has for its officers, in addition to W. E. Groves, the president, the following: Treasurer, Major John Connon; chairman of entertainment committee, F. R. Brotherton; chairman of trade exhibits committee, W. H. Gray; chairman of publicity and program committee, Harry E. Groves, and secretary, J. E. O'Sullivan.

After the discussion of the revision committee's report Tuesday afternoon, the association's officers and the local committee held a "friend-making reception," to which nobody was invited—because everybody was supposed to come without an invitation. The following afternoon the convention picnic was held and the delegates and their friends were the guests of M. Ofield & Sons, Grimsby. Then the association banquet has been planned for Thursday evening and Friday the Thirteenth will be given over to an afternoon drive to points of local interest, including Hamilton beach, and a theater party in the evening.

The annual meeting of the Canadian Retail Florists' Association is an additional feature of Thursday morning, August 12. At that same time a ladies' shopping excursion has been planned. Whether or not the ladies take action in accordance with a suggestion in President Hamilton's address that they form a ladies' auxiliary of the association similar to the Ladies' S. A. F., their importance at conventions will continue to be recognized.

KANSAS FLORISTS ORGANIZE.

State Association Born at Wichita.

Upon the invitation of Harris S. Mueller, vice-president of the S. A. F. for Kansas, thirty-six members of the trade, representing all parts of that state, met at Wichita August 5. As a result the Kansas State Florists' Association was organized.

The morning was devoted to registration and to visiting the local greenhouses and stores and inspecting the damage wrought by the recent disastrous hail storm. The Johnson Greenhouses and the ranges of Chas. P. Mueller and W. H. Culp & Co. were among those visited. At noon a luncheon was served at the Innes tea room, with table decorations by W. H. Culp & Co.

At 2 o'clock the real business of the day began with the business meeting in the assembly room of the Board of Commerce, where the registration had taken place. When the session had been called to order, the question of a state organization was opened for discussion. The sentiment of the meeting was unanimously in favor of a state association, so that immediate steps were taken to bring it about. The outing and field day of the Pittsburgh Florists' and Gardeners' Club was spent on the beautiful estates of Sewickley Heights.

The Blind Floral Co., of which Edward Blind is proprietor, has purchased from Ernest C. Daum about nine acres of land, on which there are seventeen greenhouses, two dwelling houses and a boiler house. The property is on the Perrysville road in the Rose township; the price was $50,000.

Among Pennsylvania corporations filing notices of stock increases, the McCallum Co. is mentioned as having increased from $21,000 to $30,900.

The Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. is in the midst of repairs and replacements. An immense radial brick chimney, 175 feet high, fifteen feet in diameter at the bottom and eight at the top, is almost completed. The three 350-horsepower Wicks boilers are on the premises ready for installation. This firm has also finished reglazing and painting one of its large houses, on which five men have been at work for seven weeks.

Charles Dougherty, 537 Fifth Avenue, McKeesport, announced August 6 that he had sold his business to Harry Forrest and Miss Selma Florin, who will continue the business under the firm name of the F. and F. Floral Shop.

CHICAGO AIDS ALL TRADE.

The advertising campaign of the Allied Florists' Association of Illinois, though it draws its support and its funds from the florists of Chicago, is by no means limited, in its efforts in behalf of the sale of flowers, to securing purely local business. How it emphasized the telegraph delivery service has been shown before in these columns. Last week the Chicago association went a step farther, in the advertisement reproduced on this page, to remind traveling Chicagoans of the possibilities of sending flowers by wire when they were away from home and the florist with whom they were accustomed to deal. In this way the Chicago trade gives publicity, not merely to its local business, but to business for all the florists' trade of the country.

It is worthy of note, at the same time, that the Chicago florists have carried some good-looking advertisements in the local newspapers. The one reproduced herewith, though not a large one, occupying only six inches in two columns, was so different from the other advertisements on that page of the Tribune that it stood out, in the old phrase, "like a sore thumb."

Chicago Florists Do Not Confine Their Advertising to Local Business.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

There appears to be little or no let-up in business. There has been a big demand for funeral work recently. Stock in general is plentiful and includes a large amount of outdoor flowers. These, on account of the wet, dull spring and early summer, are good. Asters are of good color and shape. The prices on these range from $1.50 to $3 per hundred. Gladioli, too, are well developed and bring good prices.

Carnations, which are in fair demand, are quite small. The supply of roses meets all present demands and, considering the extreme heat, are reaching us in good shape. Sweet peas are plentiful, but the stems are not long and prices are low. Summer chrysanthemums have made their appearance and sell well.

Smilax and other green goods are quite plentiful.

Florists' Picnic.

The annual picnic of the Rochester Florists' Association was held at Grand View beach Thursday afternoon, August 5. Nearly 170 members and wives were present. With perfect weather conditions, the picnic was a great success. The committee in charge is to be congratulated, for everything went in fine shape. The sports commenced at 2:30 p. m. and were followed by a chicken dinner at 6 p. m. The list of sports and winners follows:

Running race, ladies—Mabel Teute, first; Miss Keller, second.
Running race, men—Mr. Meyers, first; W. Kennedy, second.
Three-legged race, ladies—Misses Keller and Dunbar, first; E. and A. Schmidt, second.
Three-legged race, men—Meyers and Ward, first; Weaver and Gatz, second.

Various Notes.

George F. Boucher is having the interior of his store painted throughout. He reports excellent summer business.

Fred Thomann has just returned from an automobile trip through the Fulton chain, having made the whole trip without even a puncture.

Miss Jane Morris, accompanied by friends, made the trip by Ontario No. 1 to Coburg, Ont., Thursday, August 5.

Miss Dean recently left H. E. Wilson's employ and is spending the summer with relatives at Canada.

Horace J. Head, who has just returned on the Olympic from England, has started business again and is attending the C. H. A. convention at Hamilton, Ont., this week. He will proceed to the Cleveland convention, representing George B. Hart. H. J. H.

SALT LAKE CITY.

The Market.

An abundance of funeral work during July made business good and all florists report a better July than ever before.

Roses were scarce, with a big demand. The best blooms were of Columbia. Prices ranged from $6 to $15 per hundred.

Gladioli were plentiful at 75 cents to $1.25 per dozen. Asters made their appearance, but the supply was small. Small outdoor flowers were plentiful, but anything that could be used in funeral work sold readily.

Various Notes.

Al. Alt, of the Huddart Floral Co., has left on a three months' vacation.

He will travel by automobile, first visiting Yellowstone park. Later he will visit his former partner, B. B. Gray, at Missoula, Mont. Mr. Gray owns a large ranch and Mr. Alt will visit him a month or six weeks before returning to Salt Lake City.

Mrs. Huff, of the Miller Floral Co., has just returned from a two weeks' vacation in Colorado.

Elizabeth Huth, of the Flower Shop, at Ogden, is back on the job, after spending a month in California with friends.

Ella Grant Wilson was a guest of the Salt Lake City florists for three days recently. Saturday evening, July 31, all the florists gathered at the Orpheum theater, where a film of the F. T. D., brought by Mrs. Wilson, was shown. After the picture Mrs. Wilson and many leading florists of the state were guests of Robert Miller at a dinner at the Newhouse hotel. After the dinner the party met at the Miller Floral Co. store, on Broadway, where Mrs. Wilson gave an interesting talk on advertising and told of the benefits to be gained by organizing a florists' club. At the close of the meeting a vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. Wilson. G. J. B.

KANSAS CITY, MO.

The Kansas City Wholesale Cut Flower Co. is receiving daily shipments of fine asters, roses and Easter lilies. Business continues good, according to summer standards.

Miss Helen Brown is spending two weeks in Denver.

Mrs. T. A. Moseley has returned from a visit of several weeks in Chicago and points farther east.

Perry Onion, of Las Vegas, N. M., was a visitor last week.

T. J. Noll and John Stevens drove to Pleasant Hill Thursday, August 5.

The Pinehurst Floral Co. has enlarged its local shipping room. Carpenters from the greenhouses were there three days tearing out old partitions and rearranging the room and office. Many orders are being received for carnation, poinsettia and cyclamen plants and these are being shipped.

The force of the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co. is bringing to completion the new Longview rose house. They began glazing during the week of August 9. This house, 86x450 feet, is claimed to be the widest house west of the Mississippi river.

The shipping orders of the T. J. Noll Floral Co. were better than usual in the last few days of last week. This firm is receiving fancy gladioli; some asters and roses are coming in better. Its new automatic ice machine is being used and is quite satisfactory.

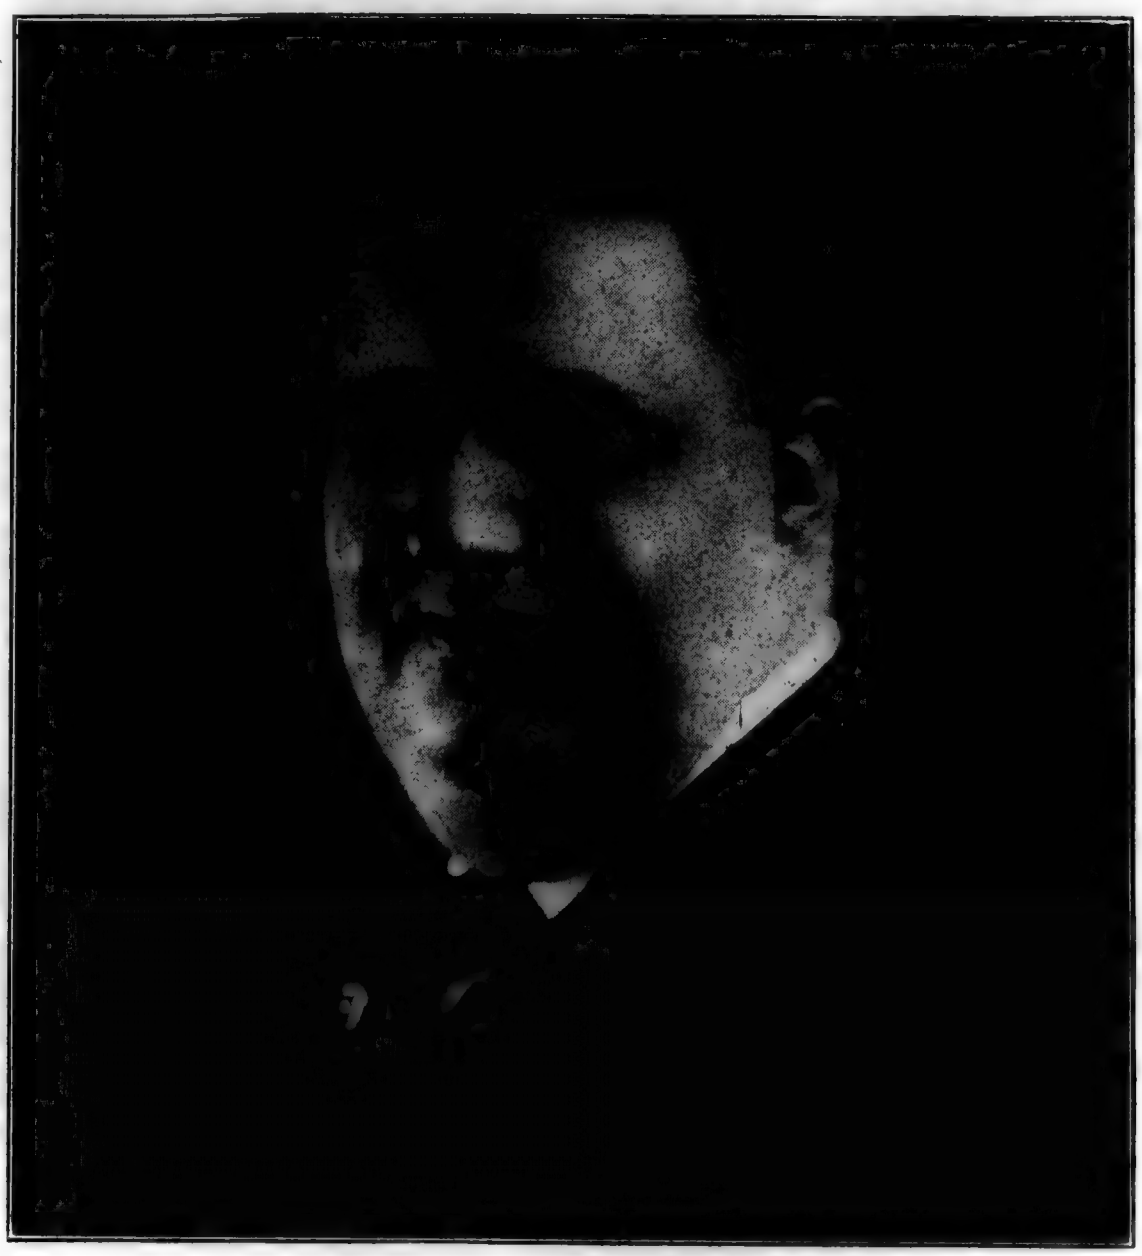
Miss Eleanor Wark, of the W. L. Rock Flower Co., has gone to Colorado Springs.

Mrs. A. Newell and her daughter, Marian, are in Yellowstone park.

R. C. Kehm, of Des Moines, Ia., and Mrs. Kehm were recent visitors. They have recently opened a retail store.

Miss Klein, of the Muehlebach Flower Shop, left Saturday, August 7, for a vacation at her home in Galena, Kan. This firm has received a shipment of china novelties, which Joseph Reichl ordered while in New York lately. The store had a busy week with funeral orders, several social affairs and corsages. Mr. Neff has employed a young woman to make silk flowers, which are beginning to take the place of the organdie corsages.

Edward Kice, of A. Newell's store, is on his vacation for two weeks.



Henry Kusik & Co. are getting in excellent roses, home-grown asters and fancy gladioli.

P. A. Manson, of Pleasant Hill, was in the city Monday, August 2.

A. N. Nielsen & Co., of Pana, Ill., have bought the John Stevens range and have assumed control, with Carl Christensen, of Minneapolis, as manager. The range includes about 55,000 square feet of glass recently put up by the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., as Mr. Stevens' range was completely demolished in a heavy hail storm in May. The work of glazing and painting is now being done. Mums have been planted and the carnations are being taken in from the field. The new owners will specialize in carnations and mums for the local market. Mr. Stevens intends to look for a new location and will put up some glass next spring.

The Chandler Landscape & Floral Co. is enlarging its retail store to five times its former capacity and is making the entire front of glass. It is putting

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE AND WHY

CHARLES JOHN MICHELSEN.

THE smile of tolerance and good nature, apparent in the portrait, is a characteristic of John Michelsen, one which has won many friends and served to smooth his path of progress in the trade. Though no number know it, he will celebrate his fortieth birthday anniversary August 15. Mr. Michelsen was born in a little town in Denmark, only seven miles from the old German line, in 1880. He worked in greenhouses there as a matter of preference at an age when most boys were wading on the beach and, when the family removed to Chicago while he was 16, it was only natural he should seek the first opportunity for employment with florists. He had a varied experience in the earlier years, progressing through numerous old-time establishments, from that of Albert Fuchs, now defunct, to that of C. Frauenfelder, still one of the leaders. In 1908 he joined E. C. Amling's force, receiving the title of manager when the corporation was formed two years later. In the decade he has added nearly a million dollars a year to the turnover with which the company began. Equaling only his enjoyment of business is his enjoyment of home. Many florists know and appreciate his perfectly kept home and hospitable family in suburban River Forest.

ON TO CLEVELAND.

Many of our members at the close of this week will be on the eve of starting for the convention city of Cleveland. Several, no doubt, are already on the way. Judging from the reports received, there is every reason to believe that the attendance at the convention will be especially large.

The matter of hotel reservations has had splendid attention from the local committee and everybody will be comfortably housed.

I wish personally to thank all who have arranged to honor the convention through their presence and it is my fervent hope that they will enjoy their visit and return home the better for having taken the journey. Our Cleveland brethren are sparing no effort to make our stay in their city most pleasurable and, without doubt, all of us can make it profitable through what we shall see and learn of interest to us in our respective lines of business.

The Fifth City assures us a most hearty welcome; let us in return give our brethren there the biggest convention of our society on record.

A. L. Miller, Pres.

CONVENTION NOTICES.

At the Thursday morning session of the S. A. F. convention, August 19, James H. Herron, a noted engineer and expert in boiler plant efficiency, will give a talk on "Boiler Plant Efficiency and How to Effect Fuel Economies." This subject is one of great importance to all florists operating greenhouses, as the fuel problem is one occasioning much worry at the present time.

Visitors to the convention who make the journey in their own cars may keep their cars in the garage building, on the ground floor, where there will be plenty of accommodation.

All exhibitors should have their copy for signs in the hands of the secretary without delay, so that the signs will be in readiness when the exhibition opens.

Orders for exhibitors' tables should also be sent in ahead of the time required. The tables are ten, twelve, fourteen and sixteen feet long, and the rental is $1.50 each.

AFTER THE STORM

HAIL LOSS AT WICHITA.

Stones Nut to Egg Size.

Charles P. Mueller, in commenting on the hail storm which visited Wichita, Kan., between 5 and 6 o'clock Saturday afternoon, July 31, and of which a brief, telegraphic report appeared in The Review last week, says that it "was undoubtedly the worst hail storm ever experienced by this city." The federal weather bureau officially recorded some hailstones which measured nine and one-half inches in circumference and Mr. Mueller saw some which he believed to be larger than that, but says that they were, on the average, about the size of English walnuts. He found several holes in the ground, where hailstones had embedded themselves; these holes were two and one-half inches in diameter and two to three inches deep, showing the force with which the stones fell. Automobile tops, awnings, skylights and even wire-glass were pierced by these stones as easily as single-strength glass. The damage to the young rose, carnation and mum plants, however, was not so great as might have been expected, considering the size of the hailstones.

According to Mr. Mueller's estimate, between ninety-eight and ninety-nine per cent of the roof glass of his range was broken. The northern slopes suffered less than the southern slopes. He noted a large number of jagged pieces of glass still remaining on the sashbars and attributed that to the especial strength of the glass cement.

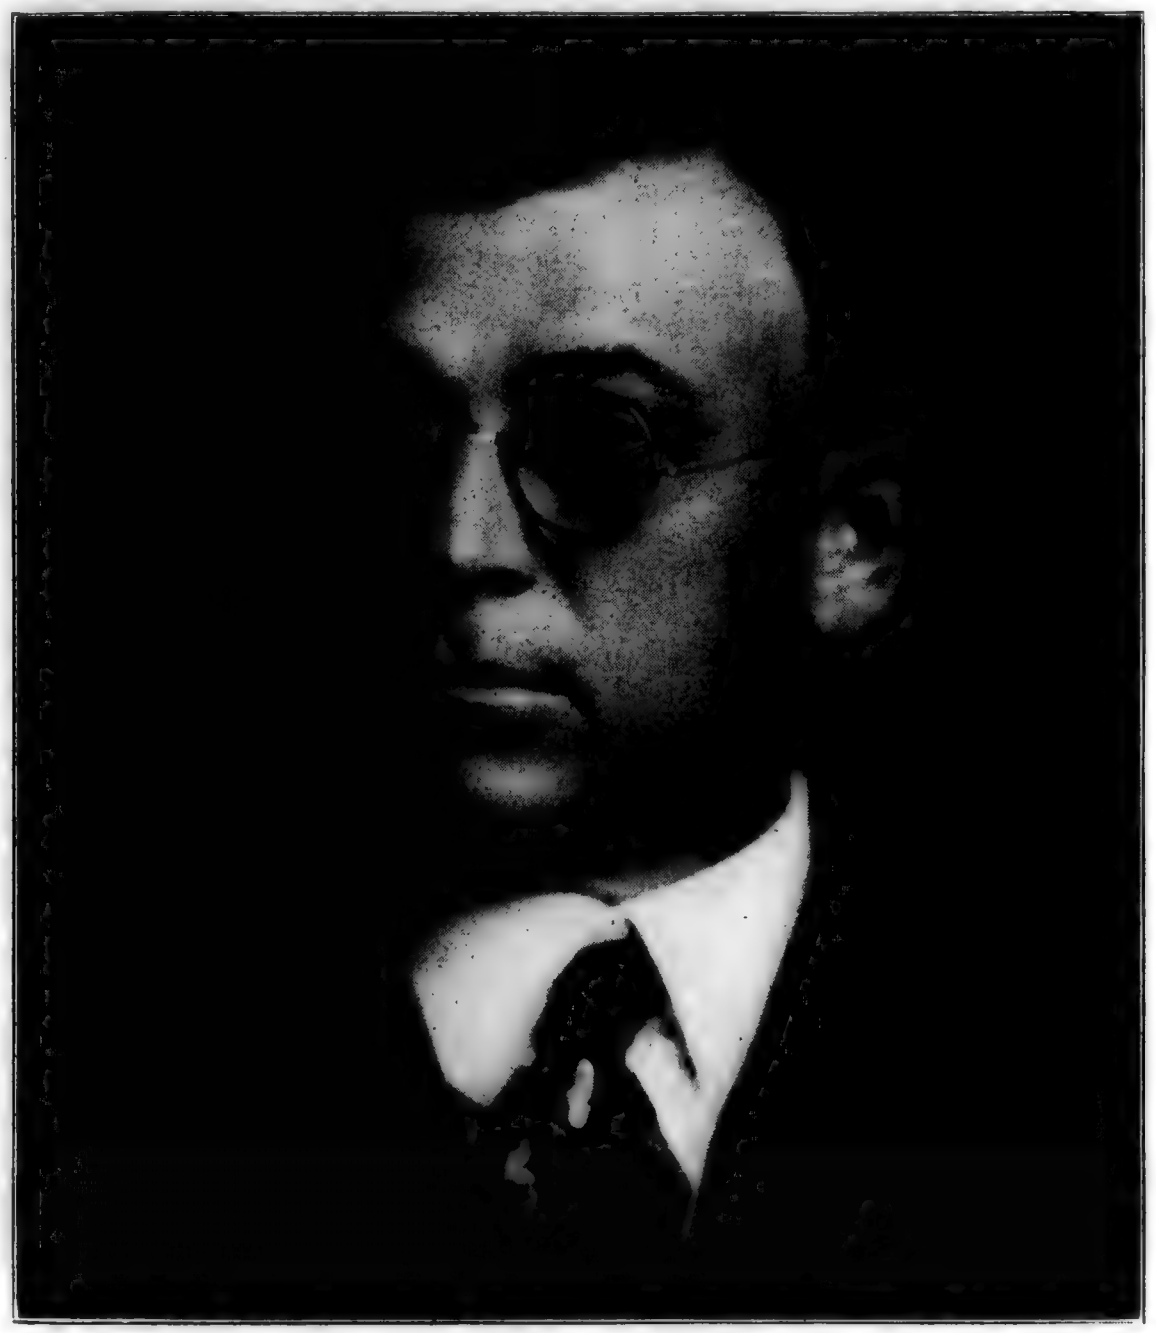
Insurance Rates Too Low.

After the disaster, Mr. Mueller tried at once to get glass for replacements, but was successful in obtaining only a small part of his requirements for immediate shipment; the earliest dates he could get for the remainder were September 1 and October 1.

The need of increasing the hail insurance rates was, to Mr. Mueller's mind, forcibly illustrated by the comparison between the damage done and the present rates. He carries double insurance, which pays at the rate of 14 cents per square foot of glass broken, while the glass alone will cost from 15 to 17 cents f. o. b. the factory. The insurance will be of great assistance in replacing the glass, but will not touch the expense of the freight and putting on of the glass and the damage to the plants.

CULP CLEANING UP.

W. H. Culp, of Wichita, Kan., states that, following the hail storm of July 31, most of the glass that can be picked up has been cleared out and the work of cleaning the bars started.



Glass for replacement will be made at the factory in the neighboring city of Augusta, only twenty miles away. Mr. Culp is promised that it will be ready by September 1. The factory had not planned to start operations until September 1, but will run out the special order ahead of time.

WANT HIGHER HAIL INSURANCE.

Protests are being made by greenhouse owners, both florists and vegetable growers, and local civic boards in Kansas against the low valuation paid for hail insurance. Glass now costs from $7 to $10 per box; yet hail insurance is based on prices of $4 per box or less. Greenhouse proprietors are seeking some remedy for what they consider an injustice. Many are protesting against the prevailing practice and hope that their efforts will cause a change.

OBITUARY

Perry J. Crockett.

Perry J. Crockett.

Perry J. Crockett, treasurer of the Templin-Crockett-Bradley Co., Cleveland, O., died at his home, 1450 Clarence avenue, Lakewood, O., Saturday, July 31, from general neuritis.

Mr. Crockett had not been feeling well for some time, but was able to attend to all of his duties. In company with P. A. Bradley and their two families, he drove from his home to the meetings of the American Association of Nurserymen, at Chicago, and the American Seed Trade Association, at Milwaukee, during the last week of June. On the return trip Mr. Crockett became gradually worse and, upon consultation with his physician, he was advised to give up business for a short time. Within the week he was ordered to bed and he gradually became worse until the end came.

Mr. Crockett was born on the farm of his parents, Robert J. and Caroline L. Crockett, May 9, 1876, near Canfield, in Mahoning county, O. He was educated at the Northeastern Ohio Normal College, in Canfield, and following graduation, purchased a farm of his own, where he lived for several years.

His first experience in the seed and nursery business was gained with the old firm of L. Templin & Sons, Calla, O., where he worked for a number of years, during which time he became acquainted with and married the eldest daughter of R. L. Templin. They later went back to their farm and lived there until thirteen years ago, when Mr. and Mrs. Crockett moved to Cleveland to unite with R. L. Templin and P. A. Bradley in forming the Templin-Crockett-Bradley Co.

Mr. Crockett was an active churchman, having served for twelve years on the official board of the Franklin Circle Christian church. His interest in civic affairs was attested to by his activities in the Cleveland Advertising Club, the Lakewood Chamber of Commerce and the Cleveland Automobile Club. He was also in attendance at each of the annual meetings of the seed and nursery associations ever since his company was admitted to membership in these organizations.

Mr. Crockett's love of farm life made his work of the greatest interest to him. He particularly enjoyed the supervision of the nursery, taking great pride in keeping it in such condition as to always bring forth pleasing comments from visitors. His personality was such as to win for him many warm friends. Especially was this true among the employees of the company, with whom he was in daily touch.

Mr. Crockett is survived by his wife, Mrs. Maude M. Crockett; two daughters, Ruth Genevieve, aged 15, and Elsie Elizabeth, aged 9; two sons, Leland Virgil, aged 7, and Robert Richard, aged 4; also by his mother, Caroline L. Crockett, of Canfield, O.; a sister, Mrs. Walter Cook, of the same place, and two brothers, Frank L. and Jay L. Crockett, both of Youngstown, O.

Funeral services were held at his home Monday afternoon, August 2. Burial was at Riverside cemetery. In the death of Mr. Crockett, his firm, the community, the church and his host of intimate friends will suffer a real loss and his family, a loving husband and father. G. F. B.

James Reilly.

The funeral of James Reilly, a widely known landscape gardener, of Providence, R. I., who died Wednesday morning, July 28, was held at 8:30 o'clock Saturday morning, July 31, at his home, 383 Woodland avenue. A requiem mass was celebrated at St. Edward's church at 9:30 o'clock. A number of florists and gardeners of the city and vicinity attended the services. A number of handsome tributes were sent by members of the trade to the Reilly residence.

Mr. Reilly suffered a shock while at work and died at his home after a week's illness. He was born in Ireland in 1850 and came to this country when a young man, settling at Hartford, Conn., where he became interested in gardening and soon became an expert. In 1870 he married Mary Heath. Two years later he moved to Providence, where he engaged in business for himself. For the last eighteen years he had acted as caretaker and superintendent of the cemetery of the Congregation of the Sons of Israel and David. He is survived by his wife. W. H. M.

Joseph Kinder.

Joseph Kinder, of Kinder Bros., Bristol, R. I., died at his home, on High street, Tuesday, August 3, at the age of 53 years. He had been ill for several months, having contracted a cold which resulted in anæmia. He was the son of Ralph and Hanna Kinder and was born at Bristol, where he had always lived. He had been engaged with his brother, Samuel Kinder, in the florists' business for a number of years. His wife survives him. W. H. M.

Patrick J. Hayes.

Patrick J. Hayes, for many years head florist at Oak Grove cemetery, Fall River, Mass., died Wednesday, August 4, at his home, 1526 Locust street, Fall River, after an illness of two weeks. He was a native of Fall River and had always lived there. He was a son of Mrs. Margaret and the late Michael Hayes. He is survived by his mother and three brothers. W. H. M.

INSECTS CHEW LEAVES.

I am sending you a leaf of the Japanese windflower. Can you give any cause for the condition of this leaf and the remedy for it? G. S.—Can.

The leaves have been badly chewed by some insect. Spray with arsenate of lead at the rate of one pound to twelve and one-half gallons of water. This is for moist lead. Dry lead can be applied at one-half the above strength and will be equally effective. C. W.

RESULTS.

We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

THERE are signs that Ficus elastica is coming back.

CASH the profits you have made this season by pressing collections. They will not be easier later.

EXPECTATION of a business revival in autumn is strong in all lines, though a great deal depends on the transportation situation.

COLLECTIONS within the trade are reported as having slowed up to a point below the same period in either of the last two years.

FUEL priorities for lake shipments are likely to make further delay in the florists' receiving their orders. Car movement seems, however, to be better.

THERE are indications that galax will be scarce next winter and much higher in price. But there seems no danger of a scarcity of prepared magnolia leaves, used for the same purpose.

LACK of coal and raw materials delayed a number of glass factories from starting their second operating period for 1920, and the possibility of their catching up on orders is more remote than before.

AS a class, florists still are reluctant to meet the market on the things they need. It would be unwise at this time to buy in anticipation of needs in the far future, but the prosperous florist today is the one who has not held back during the last two years.

THERE are seven, count them, seven double-page advertisements in this issue of The Review and an interesting fact is that, although extremely welcome, not one of these big, impressive ads was directly solicited. In each case the advertiser took the initiative.

W. F. THERKILDSON, no longer in the trade but still in close touch with it as manager of the agricultural division of one of the great advertising agencies, says that a year ago the bulk of the florists were unqualifiedly opposed to Quarantine No. 37, but that he believes that if a vote were taken today a majority would favor its continuance with modifications.

HOT weather is not the deterrent to good business in this trade that it was formerly regarded to be.

WHEN prices are high expenses are apt to be overlooked, which will be a serious impediment when margins are not so liberal.

THE restrictive influence of credit limitation and lower prices is felt most keenly by firms whose growth has been more rapid than their ability to accumulate capital.

ADVERTISING patronage in The Review has been running about thirty per cent heavier than at the same time last year, from which one may deduce a number of interesting things concerning the trade's activity.

IF you think The Review is fairly good value at $1.50 per year, fifty-two copies, tell it to your friends in the trade. The reason for adhering to the low subscription price is to keep the paper within the means of every florist who cares to keep himself posted.

TOO many dealers first cash the check and then cast about to see what they can do toward filling the order. They seem surprised at the suggestion that it would be the honesty which is the better policy to return by next mail the check uncashed unless it is certain the stock can be shipped as promised.

WITH the average issue of The Review now about 148 pages and cover, eleven presses would be needed if the entire publication were printed at one time. But it is impossible, also, to get that many pages ready for the presses all at once. So printing The Review begins Tuesday afternoon and continues uninterruptedly until Thursday, when the job is finished. To make sure of attention for a given issue, advertisements must be received not later than the Monday preceding.

FAVORABLE FOR BUSINESS.

Opinions voiced by business observers throughout the country indicate gradual change to conditions which will be highly favorable for another banner year in the florists' trade. The sole handicap is coal. Many growers, however, have theirs in already. Transportation and labor are likely to be better. And prices, it is believed, will continue high, in other lines, as well as for flowers.

Reports received by the Continental and Commercial National bank, of Chicago, from 500 business concerns in all parts of the country show no marked departure from the feeling of confidence and optimism, says the bank in its annual midsummer review of business and crop conditions. The question of coal supply, however, promises to be a vital problem for several months to come. Labor conditions are easier. Improvement in railroad service is anticipated as a result of the recent wage and rate decisions. As to whether the riot of extravagance has been curbed, opinions are equally divided.

"The reasons why prices will remain high, as compared with 1913, are many and cogent," says the bank's statement. "They may be found in other factors than supply and demand, labor costs and transportation. There has not been a sufficient decline in money and bank credit or a sufficient increase in the volume of domestic trade to justify anticipation of a speedy and marked increase in the purchasing power of the dollar."

Out-of-town florists are invited by the club to arrange to go via Chicago and accompany the party.

IT MOVED.

You may not like things sentimental, but if you meet what is called a moving appeal you are pretty sure to be affected by it and "come across." If it really is moving, it does the job; if it leaves you unmoved, it's no good.

So with a moving ad; it moves, not your emotions or your tears or your hand to your change pocket, but your order blank and your pen. Or, if you are the one who put in the ad, it moves your stock. It does the job. Like this one:

Discontinue our classified ad of Sprengeri. We are cleaned out. Stock moved beyond our expectations.—Jos. H. Cunningham, Delaware, O., August 2, 1920.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

BRIEF ANSWERS.

C. G. B., Ill.—Dig the clumps in autumn, divide and replant.

C. B., Minn.—Use pure water, changed frequently. Chemicals are unavailing.

B. S. P., O.—Start seed now for an autumn crop, or later for winter or spring crops. Set plants two inches apart in the rows and have the rows from two to five feet apart; the later you plant the closer you can put them.

F. H. M., Mich.—Begonia rubra.

H. & S., Neb.—Grow the things your market calls for.

C. F. B., O.—Address any of those who advertise greenhouse building material in this paper.

L. N. B., O.—You can buy hydrangeas from small pots now and flower them for Easter; if larger plants are wanted, buy stock from larger pots now. We never have heard of a white sport of Easter Greeting pelargonium.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The market continues to be on a low level, as to both supply and demand. The volume of business done is small, much more than half of the sales recorded covering stock for window decorations. There is plenty of this material available.

Gladioli are now arriving heavily in the usual grades of quality. Many varieties seen might well be abandoned by the grower, as they have not the power of attraction and must be cleaned out. Asters are also arriving heavily, but really good flowers are only seen occasionally. While a great deal is not usually expected of early asters, the quality this year is poor.

The supply of roses just about meets the demand and clearances are therefore easily made. Special grades of American Beauty continue at about $15 to $40 per hundred, with the supply on the short side. Hybrid teas are of the usual summer quality, but move well. Much difference is noticed in the quality. The opening of the buds is questionable. Some Hoosier Beauty was seen recently with flower heads so small, even on long stems, that they looked like gigantic matches. The bulk of arrivals is made up of yellow varieties, if we may include Ophelia in this description, and it seems to be anything but pink just now.

Cattleyas are scarce, even with a poor demand. Prices are unchanged, the range continuing to be 50 cents to $1.50 per flower.

Lilies are plentiful and drag at times, in spite of attempts to regulate the supply. Last week they went from $10 per hundred to $25 and back again to $10. Buyers seemed to do without them. Lily of the valley is scarce, but there is little demand for it and it moves slowly at $4 to $12 per hundred sprays.

Carnations have about vanished. A few still straggle in, but they no longer attract buyers. The best have brought as much as $2 per hundred.

There is a large amount of herbaceous material, which is bought mainly for store and window decorations. The assortment includes calendulas, Dimorphotheca aurantiaca, mignonette, candytuft, alyssum, gypsophila in both annual and perennial varieties, gaillardias, pyrethrums, chrysanthemums, delphiniums, centaureas, tiger lilies, snapdragons and zinnias.

Various Notes.

Samuel McClements, of Pittsburgh, Pa., was a visitor recently and paid a visit to the Eighteenth street flower market.

During the last week the transportation committee of the New York Florists' Club has had many applications for reservations on the club's special train to leave over the D. L. & W. next Monday morning at 10 a.m., eastern standard time, which is 11 a.m. daylight time. It is expected that, including the delegates from other cities who are to be picked up en route, the party to arrive at Cleveland will not be less than 100. The delegation so far includes: L. W. C. Tuthill, A. L. and Mrs. Miller, Jamaica; A. M. Henshaw and party, F. H. and Mrs. Traendly, Miss Cora Fichtl, C. Lowther, G. E. M. Stumpp, A. T. Phillips, George Crissman and Miss Griffiths and sister, of Scranton, N. Y.

A. Hanig, buyer for Bershad & Trepel, Brooklyn, was last week receiving congratulations on the arrival of a daughter at his home in Brooklyn, July 30.

Latest advices from C. H. Totty announce his arrival at London.

A gladiolus exhibition will be held by the Horticultural Society of New York in the Museum building, New York Botanical Garden, Saturday and Sunday, August 21 and 22. Schedules are now ready for distribution and will be sent on application to the secretary, George V. Nash, New York Botanical Garden, Bronx park, New York city.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

There was a noticeable increase in business last week. This was mostly due to funeral work. An acute scarcity of greens was felt during the latter part of the week. Some extra fine asters were on the market and cleaned up well at $4 and $5 per hundred; Easter lilies, $2 per dozen; gladioli, $4 and $5 per hundred; orchids, $12 per dozen, and roses from $2 to $12 per hundred. Out-of-town business was also brisk during the latter part of the week.

Club Meeting.

The Washington Florists' Club held its regular monthly meeting August 3. Despite the extremely warm weather, this meeting was well attended and much interest was shown.

A committee, consisting of Wm. F. Gude, Adolph Gude and Theodore Diederich, was appointed to attend the S. A. F. convention at Cleveland this year and extend a personal invitation to the society to hold its 1921 convention at this city.

The war mothers no longer have to worry about flowers to decorate the graves of the returned soldier dead from abroad. F. Kramer made the following statement in reference to the subject: "Fellow members, I had the opportunity to witness the burial of a number of our soldier dead at Arlington last week, and I feel that it is my duty to bring this matter up before the club tonight. The organization known as the War Mothers of America, of which Mrs. Wm. F. Gude is the leading worker of this city, has worked faithfully to secure sufficient flowers to decorate every casket and show the proper respect for our heroes who gave their lives for the protection of our country and our homes. Now, gentlemen, I feel that it is the duty of the florists of Washington to donate sufficient flowers for this purpose and see that we are represented at each burial until the last hero is laid in his resting place and I move that we do this without further delay." Mr. Kramer was applauded, and it is needless to say that his motion was carried unanimously.

Plans were discussed for the chrysanthemum show, which will be held here November 10 to 14. The tickets have been printed and all the committees report good progress.

Several applications for membership in the club were received.

A. E. Gude, Jr., vice-president, presided at the meeting in the absence of the president, J. Harper Hetherington, who is spending his vacation out of town with his family. Refreshments were served after the meeting.

Various Notes.

The regular meeting of the Florists' and Growers' Union, 17387, was held August 4. The officers for the ensuing year were installed. Membership and working rules committees were appointed. The membership committee consists of the following: George McCabe, Lawrence Leapley and George Rector. The working rules committee consists of: George White, F. H. Jenier, W. R. Wescott, George Dalghish and Lawrence Leapley. George White, manager of the Marche & Co. store, was appointed as business representative.

Edward Schmidt has extended an invitation to the members of the Washington Florists' Club to attend his annual crab feast, to be held the first Tuesday in September.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

If August maintains the record made by July there is need for a prompt improvement in the market, which does not seem to be in sight. There has been steady retrogression since the first of the month and while business still is ahead of last year, the market is distinctly dull. There are huge quantities of flowers, far more than in any other summer. Weather conditions have been so favorable that the supply of outdoor flowers is much greater than in recent years. This is particularly true of gladioli and asters, which are coming to market from hundreds of irregular sources, as well as from the florists who always have grown them. In general the quality is excellent, but the supply is so large that the average price is extremely low. It is impossible to sell all of the stock coming to market and the waste pulls down the average materially. In addition to asters and gladioli, there are many other summer flowers, affording a greater variety of stock than usually is available at this season.

In the last few days there has been a considerable increase in rose crops. Chicago never before has had so many roses at this date. The supply is much larger than the regular needs of the trade, though shipping demand continues to consume large quantities. The quality is excellent. Anyone who is in position to use a quantity of roses can do business now. The principal varieties are Columbia, Premier and Russell. There are scarcely any Beauties. Ophelia is in moderate supply. Butterfly is beginning to be received in quantity.

Carnations are practically out of the market. Valley is almost the only item on which it is not possible to fill all orders. Easter lilies are received more rapidly than called for. Album and rubrum lilies are offered in considerable quantity. The few sweet peas offered usually are poor.

The abundance of other flowers has disappointed the dealers in peonies, who put large quantities in storage in June. They foresaw no more than a normal summer supply of garden flowers and expected a steady demand for peonies as long as the stock would keep. Without agreement, they held the prices on the basis of a demand which would eventually clean up all the available supply. But the abundance of garden flowers offered at low prices has reduced the demand for peonies. There still are a good many thousands of dozens in the cold storage warehouse. After two months there, not much can be said for the average quality, though some of the stock still is surprisingly good. Considerable quantities already have been dumped and many others will be thrown out within the next few days, a total loss, rather than pay another month's storage charges on them.

Kohout's View.

Problems faced by the grower were stated in the following terms by Joseph Kohout in a letter sent out to growers last week regarding matters to come up at the growers' meeting in Cleveland August 19:

IT IS WORSE THAN EVER—OR BETTER THAN EVER—JUST AS YOU TAKE IT.

If you have your coal on hand you can rest easy about the coming winter—but if you only expect it, you are not so sure about it. However, any way you figure it, the price of coal must be paid for in advance, and the money must be returned to you from the sales returns by your wholesaler—can your wholesaler do it? Will the demand continue to pay the high cost of growing?

It takes just so much money to run your greenhouses—and a profit to keep a bank account—but you don't know whether the carnation blooms will bring a 5-cent average price for a season, or the rose a 10-cent average price.

Your wholesale market has no bottom to it when prices go down, but there is a limit to how high you can go—to stabilize the market, for higher average returns, is an issue to be settled.

For the season ahead of us, to continue to get our share of the money, if you have any suggestions to offer me, for your committee to lay before the national growers' convention, write or phone me within the next week or so.

Your troubles are our problems—your success our endeavors.

but two considerable parties are expected to make the trip. The one by rail will leave on the Lake Shore at 11 p. m., August 16. The one by motor will leave Sunday, August 15. A pilot car is being arranged for. Anyone desiring to make the trip this way should communicate with Mr. French, at 172 North Wabash avenue, the office of the American Bulb Co.

Chicago will be represented in the bowling tournament by A. J. Zech, Eric Johnson, Herbert Amling, Walter Amling and Peter Olsem.

A Gladiolus Show.

The American Bulb Co. is displaying many of the new varieties of gladioli. The flowers were grown in Indiana, where the company has eleven acres devoted principally to novelties, such as Ida Van, Rosella, Giant White, Arizona, Anna Eberius, Daisy Rand, Kunderd's Orange, Mottled America, Governor Hanley, Alice Tiplady, Myrtle, Goliath, Joffre and many others. Of some of the novelties there are considerable quantities, of others only one bulb.

The American Bulb Co. has entered into the growing of gladioli on an extensive scale, having two growers in Michigan, one operating in the northern part and one operating in the southern part, growing varieties such as Panama, Pendleton and Schwaben. The company is working up stock of Myrtle, which is one of the most prized gladioli in Chicago, and in a few years will be able to offer it at a reasonable price. Myrtle is hard to propagate, as it takes sometimes two seasons for stratification of the corms. It is not like varieties that will come up and reproduce quickly. Many large gladiolus growers have discarded this variety, as they find it impossible to increase stock.

Mr. Miller believes that gladioli never should be grown two years in succession on the same soil. He believes it is advisable to have farms located in different sections of the country, in small acreage. He states they now have about forty acres devoted to gladioli, all grown from bulblets. None of the flowers are marketed; they are all cut off to allow the strength to go to the bulbs.

The Kelway variety called Golden Measure he believes will outdo Schwaben eventually. The bulbs now are extremely scarce. The variety has a heavy stem and the flowers are well placed on the stem, making it a beautiful gladiolus for florists' work. The color is cream yellow.

In this week's exhibit there are Kunderd's novelties and those of Diener, of California; Kelway, of England, and Pfiester, of Germany. Nothing stands out so strongly as the purple plush of Diener's Anna Eberius.

Wendland & Keimel Co., Elmhurst, has planted 7,000 of Pierson's new rose, Crusader, and 11,000 of Victor, the variety bought of the E. G. Hill Co.

Painters and decorators have brightened up the store of H. N. Bruns, at 3040 West Madison street, so that it is more than ever one of the trade show-places of the west side. Light green walls and a tan ceiling admirably set off the mahogany woodwork. Mr. Bruns motors in from Lakeside, Mich., in his Twin-Six for a couple of days each week to keep in touch with unusually brisk summer business. He and his son and their families will drive to Cleveland for the convention.

August Lange was born August 7, 1868. He has been in retail flower-selling in the downtown district all his life, at three different locations, and has made steady progress, his present facilities and business being the best yet.

G. Swenson, the successful Elmhurst grower, became 76 years of age August 6. He has been one of the most painstaking gardeners in this section since most of us were boys and still turns out better stock than most of us can grow, but advancing years are causing him to think of retiring.

Richard Salm, at Union Grove, has had an excellent season with his big houses planted exclusively to Beauties and will stick to that one variety for the season of 1920-21. At present he isn't cutting anything, part of the place having been replanted with young stock and the balance of it being in process of resting, pruning and replanting.

The names of George Ball, Fred Stielow, George C. Weiland, Frank Schramm and Charles McCauley, all associated with the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, should be added to the list of those who will motor to the Cleveland convention.

Paul Klingsporn has been entertaining his brother William, another former Philadelphia florist, for several days.

John Ziska says business in staple supplies is quiet just now, but that a few forehanded florists are stocking up for fall. Mr. Ziska avers that the retailer who visits the market now with $500 in his pocket, by buying a season's supply of staple items, can get what will cost $1,000 if bought in driblets as needed during the busy season.

"First Narcissus Paper Whites of the season" was the sign the A. B. C. posted in its window last week. Vincent Neil sent them on by express from Hoboken. Cyclamen seed from Germany arrived August 9.

glass display windows. At the north end of the conservatory will be built another shop. The total cost of the improvements is expected to be $30,000.

Adam Podkrivacky, manager of the New York Wire Lamp Frame Co., which has a large factory at 1132 South Wabash avenue, is planning an exhibit at the S. A. F. convention at Cleveland next week. This concern is a comparative newcomer in the field, but is doing a good business. They started manufacturing wirework for other lines of business and were led into the florists' trade by numerous calls for designs received without solicitation.

The real estate department of the Tribune for August 7 contained the following: "One of Woodlawn's biggest flat buildings, the 42-apartment house at 6032-34 Stony Island avenue, has been purchased by Henry Van Gelder, president of Percy Jones, Inc., wholesale florists, from Charles W. Carman for a reported consideration of $155,000, subject to a mortgage of $130,000."

The gypsophila season having passed, large numbers of florists in this vicinity are trying helichrysums. Last year there was an exceptionally good demand in the winter for dried gypsophila and strawflowers. The result has been a large increase in the production. Thousands of bunches of gypsophila have been put away for winter use and large quantities of strawflowers now are being harvested. It is reported that there are as much as twelve acres under strawflowers within Cook county. The harvesting is something of a task, because the flowers must be picked in the right stage of development or they do not keep properly.

Something unique in the history of the flower business was the house warming on the evening of August 10 at Fred W. Kuhlmann's place at Maywood. It will be remembered that Mr. Kuhlmann, not heretofore a member of the trade, bought the establishment of Ernst C.

Amling, last spring. He has only recently taken possession, but things are going nicely for him. In order to maintain the goodfellowship which always has existed in the greenhouse colony at Maywood, Mr. Kuhlmann invited everyone in the trade in that center to an entertainment at his greenhouses Tuesday evening. Needless to say, they all responded and a number were present from the city.

George Asmus is beginning to get renewed use of his right hand. For seven weeks he has had his forearm, first in a plaster cast, then in a sling and now in bandages as the result of a compound fracture.

Ernst C. Amling and family now are comfortably located at Orange, Cal. The removal there, from Maywood, was in the nature of an exodus, the family party consisting of ten. They have bought a 9-room residence at Orange.

A. Henderson has been quarantined in his home for a week. Not feeling well, he called a doctor, who detected the presence of the Klebs-Loeffler bacillus and notified the board of health, with the result that Mr. Henderson has been transacting business by telephone from behind a large red sign on his front door: "Diphtheria." He has not been sick enough to be in bed. The family is at Lakeside, Mich., where they have a summer cottage.

Things are done more quickly in America than in Europe. For instance: G. A. Mala has worked at Henderson's Seed Store for four weeks, coming directly from Holland. August 7 he was married. The bride was Miss Marie Johanna Van Helvoort. They met on the boat.

G. M. Reburn and wife start August 14 for Cleveland, in the Marmon.

Charles Erne spent August 8 in his car, covering the section west of Evanston, through Morton Grove to Niles and Des Plaines. He says he never has seen so many patches of gladioli and asters in that section; not only the florists but the truck gardeners are growing them. Mr. Erne says, moreover, they are all having good success, due to favorable weather, and there is no probability of a shortage of stock before frost intervenes.

The name of A. L. Randall is a recent addition to the membership list of the South Shore Country Club.

That funereal associations do not diminish interest in good floral work was indicated last week by the attention passing pedestrians gave to a pillow of asters decked with a spray of gladioli and other summer flowers in the window of the Alpha Floral Co.

Although the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co. will have no exhibit at the S. A. F. convention, P. L. McKee is going to Cleveland next week with his wife and daughter. He will establish the company's headquarters at the Hotel Winton.

Visitors.

Among the week's visitors has been Miss L. E. Fellows, whose card reads "Credit Manager, Kerr the Florist, Houston, Tex."

Chicago is a popular summer resort for southern florists and among those seen on the market recently has been F. J. Reyes, whose store in New Orleans is in the busy part of Canal, the State street of the Crescent city.

Extremes meet in the Chicago market and, rubbing elbows with the southerners, was Wm. Jaap, of Duluth, the Zenith city.

J. A. Young, leader of Illinois nurserymen, was in from Aurora August 10, buying supplies to replace some of the things recently destroyed by the fire which gutted his office and packing shed.

Kirby Boerstler, who conducts Kirby's Flower Shop at Little Rock, Ark., is in town.

Mr. Roth, Jr., of Lafayette, Ind., has been combining business and pleasure on a trip to this market.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The first week of August has been dull, with a large supply of flowers. The four summer staples, gladioli, asters, Easter lilies and roses, have been good and cheap in every sense of the term. There is nothing special to comment upon beyond the fact that prices are lower on gladioli and on asters than they were a week ago.

Improvements.

A good while ago the street was much interested in the real estate operations conducted on Ludlow street by Samuel S. Pennock. Mr. Pennock had found that there was a demand for workshops for the Chestnut street stores; so he purchased a number of dwelling houses, rented the upper floors to the Chestnut street stores for workshops and, after taking down the dividing walls, threw the lower floors into his store. This was done with five dwellings adjoining the two occupied by his store. Today the S. S. Pennock Co. business has outgrown this extended ground floor. The upper floors are to be requisitioned for the ribbons and supplies and for the bookkeeping department. This will give all the room on the ground floor for the cut flowers, save only what is needed for the private offices.

Extensive improvements are also being made in the refrigerating plant in the basement, which will make it quite superior in all its equipments.

Our Uncle Sam.

The United States government has shown a disposition to help us in our struggle with insect pests that is worthy of encouragement. Congress has made no direct appropriation for the purpose, but the officials of the Department of Agriculture have arranged for the use of a small sum of money appropriated for the suppression of tropical insects. The work, which is largely experimental, has been aided by state knowledge and state money. We can do a lot to encourage our government in aiding us by writing to the Department of Agriculture, at Washington, D. C., and telling them of any insects that are troublesome in or out of the greenhouse and asking their advice. In our effort to get rid of them, our government is in a position to do this work a whole lot better than we can do it ourselves and some real benefit should result.

The Drift of the Times.

There is a decided movement among carnation growers toward roses this season. The report comes from half a dozen different sections that roses have been planted, not many in any one place—the movement is in the experimental stage as yet—but enough in the aggregate to make quite a difference in the cut flower market. It is curious that this change comes after a season of high prices for carnation blooms, but the plants, as a rule, did not produce well last year. Two reasons are given for the change: That roses are more profitable, that roses require less work. Whether they are more profitable depends on the grower himself. If they are to receive less work they certainly will not be profitable.

While the wholesalers favored the violet men growing sweet peas, they oppose the carnation men growing roses. They believe that the first change was to the advantage of the market. They believe the second change is against the interest of the market. They think the market needs good carnations and that it will pay for them.

Few of them oppose it actively; they just don't think it is a good thing.

Various Notes.

The Market.

It is difficult to write much about the flower market in these uncomfortable, steamy dog days. Truth to tell, there is little market for anything, as is usual in early August, and conditions, which seemed quite encouraging a week ago, started to go to the bad August 2 and have remained on the toboggan ever since. Demand is feeble, shipments to holiday resorts have not amounted to much and funeral work has not been sufficient to care for the surplus.

Roses are of inferior quality and are low in price. For American Beauty there is little demand. A limited number of hybrid teas reach $4 to $8, but larger numbers go at from 50 cents per hundred upwards; the same holds true of the far inferior carnations still coming in. There are larger arrivals of asters and gladioli are starting to arrive in a veritable tidal wave, with a big slump in values. Sweet peas are of fair quality for mid-August. Plenty of Lilium longiflorum and L. roseum arrive, with a feeble call for each.

For cosmos, sweet sultan, bachelor's buttons, dahlias, annual larkspur and other outdoor flowers there is little call. The hardy gypsophila is over and this makes a slightly improved market for asparagus and ferns. Cattleyas have softened in price; Gaskelliana can now be had at $12 per dozen.

Gardeners at Experiment Station.

There was an attendance of 600 gardeners, florists, market gardeners and professional gardeners August 4 at the summer field meeting of the Massachusetts Vegetable Growers' Association and other organizations at the Market Garden Field Station in Lexington. Numerous members of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston, Boston Market Gardeners' Association and other allied bodies attended. There were lectures and discussions on the market box problem, coöperative purchasing of supplies by growers, seed quality and profits, and demonstrations by a number of noted cultivators. The few commodious greenhouses were devoted to cucumber tests. Outdoors 175 varieties of vegetables were being tested, twenty green manure crops were being grown and many interesting tests for controlling cabbage maggot and other pests were being tried.

Some twenty acres of excellent land were devoted to vegetables, the particular manure and fertilizers used on each plat being marked on bold signs.

Onions, carrots and parsnips grown for seed looked fine and the manure economy tests, barium phosphate tests and greenhouse cucumber seed strain tests were of special interest. Stations of this character located in so important a market gardening section as this are of great value to vegetable growers, among whom are an increasing number of florists. As a prominent Arlington grower remarked to me, "the market growers gain many valuable points from visiting this station and noting the experiments which we are too busy to try out ourselves."

Various Notes.

Indications now are for a fairly good representation from Boston to the S. A. F. Cleveland convention. Some of those going are H. H. Bartsch, E. A. Peirce, L. J. Reuter, William Sim; James J. Slattery, of Galvin's Park street store; F. J. Dolansky, John J. O'Brien. If this convention came in cooler weather a more representative party could be secured.

Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Gross, of Hartford, Conn., announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Cecelia Roth Gross, to Harry Quint, the Boylston street florist. Mr. Quint, in addition to his florists' business, also controls the Quint Tire Co., which is doing a lucrative business.

John Eisemann, the genial manager of the Beacon Florist Shop, on Beacon street, is delighted with his first year's volume of business, which has far surpassed his most sanguine expectations. Even at this somewhat dull season he has an encouraging amount of business.

Fred E. Palmer and his daughter left August 7 for the White mountains, where they propose to camp out and enjoy open-air life for the balance of the month. Mr. Palmer has a splendid stock of cyclamens, begonias and primulas at his Newton street greenhouses.

The Gardeners' and Florists' Club is planning to hold a field day at North Abington about the end of August.

Everything points to a magnificent show of gladioli at Horticultural hall August 14 and 15. Copious recent showers have relieved the drought and plants in the field are of surprising vigor. It is predicted that this show will be the largest ever held in New England of gladioli and in addition there will be a great orchid display from A. C. Burrage and other seasonable plants, flowers, fruits and vegetables, which should make a grand exhibition.

The Houghton-Gorney Co., on Tremont street below the historic Park street church, never fails to keep handsome windows, which attract the notice of passers-by. Water lilies, lilies, gladioli, bouvardia, orchids, salpiglossis, larkspur, sweet sultan and annual lupines are a few of the flowers artistically used.

The Market.

Summer flowers dominate the market now, with asters and gladioli in the lead. Weather conditions have been especially favorable for the growth of outdoor flowers so far this season and the quality was never better. Easter lilies are quite prominent and are used in large quantities by the retailers for the better class of funeral work and wedding decorations. Zinnias and dahlias are meeting with much public favor, particularly for basket work, and the smaller outdoor flowers, such as cornflowers, coreopsis, gaillardias, feverfew, cosmos, white and yellow daisies and snapdragons, are seen in much profusion in the flower shops.

For Fifty-three Years

we have endeavored to give the trade satisfactory CUT FERNS. Our summer trade has been larger than in any previous year, so we feel our humble efforts have been appreciated.

Roses are holding their own, with Premier the leader as a summer rose. Russell is also good, but shows a tendency to soften during the hot period. Sunburst is the best yellow variety on this market.

The demand has continued into the summer months far longer than in previous years. Not only funeral work has kept the trade fairly active during July and the first part of August, but there has been a general demand for flowers for the hospitals and for gifts.

Various Notes.

Judge and Mrs. W. J. Vesey are spending the month of August at Leland, Mich., where they have been joined by their daughter, Miss Margaret Vesey, who has been in St. Louis for the last year, where she has been in Y. M. C. A. work.

Miss Alice Flick, of the Flick Floral Co., has returned home after a week's vacation at Chicago and at Clear Lake, Ind., with friends.

Richard Blossom, of the Blossom Floral Co., had charge of the elaborate decorations for the wedding of Pierre Goodrich, the only son of Governor Goodrich, of Indianapolis, Ind., to Miss Frances Dugan, of Decatur, Ind. The wedding took place in Decatur. The decorations were of huckleberry and oak foliage and gladioli, asters and roses in much profusion. The Blossom Floral Co. has an excellent combination, a summer window and an F. T. D. window.

A fine display of gladioli was noted in the window of A. J. Lanternier & Sons. Summer flowers are seen here in much profusion. Business has continued well throughout the summer.

The Doswell Floral Co. enjoys a good out-of-town trade at all times and reports an excellent bedding season, which has just closed. This firm specializes in this line of the business, having the greenhouses near the entrance to Lindenwood cemetery.

The double windows of the Flick Floral Co. are always full of seasonable flowers. Last week they had an especially fine showing of gladioli in fancy varieties and superb asters. They report that the year just closed went far ahead of any preceding year in sales.

Wenninghoff's, on Calhoun street, reports a good sale of large and small ferns this summer. Baskets of well arranged flowers are a feature of the windows.

Japanese bowls of gladioli were a feature of Ralph Tinkham's window last week. Mr. Tinkham has had a good number of weddings this season and is pleased with the year's business.

The Knecht & Freese Floral Co. is doubling the capacity for rose growing for the coming year and will grow twice as many Premier, Russell, Columbia and Shawyer.

The erection of the new range of eight greenhouses, each 250 feet long, of the Flick Floral Co., is well under way. The new range will have a complete new heating system, separate from the old plant. The boilers are now being installed. The rose houses are all planted with the young stock.

TOURING OHIO.

At the Constien Greenhouses, Upper Sandusky, O., B. E. Constien was found busy planting Enchantress Supreme carnations, in which work his wife was taking an active interest. He is making a special effort to get things straightened out in time for a visit to the S. A. F. convention at Cleveland.

Robert E. Gay, of the McCallum Co., Pittsburgh, happened along in his automobile and together we made a trip to Fred Sammet's place, Upper Sandusky, O., a short distance from the town, delightfully located. One can easily understand why a snug business is done so far from the center of the town. Mr. Sammet intends to go to Cleveland to the convention.

While at Bucyrus a call at the Norton Greenhouses found everything spick and span. H. J. Norton was away on a brief vacation. The junior Norton intends to attend the S. A. F. convention. A clever idea was noted in natural floral baskets to sell at $5 each to visitors to an adjoining cemetery.

G. A. Karper, of the Ashland Floral Co., Ashland, O., observed that the invitation by the Cleveland Florists' Club to join in the reception of the visitors in a practical way is a fine idea and will not fail to meet with a general response. The junior Karper expects to accompany his father to the convention.

Lamprecht Bros., Ashland, O., will be among the convention crowd, recalling the profitable visits to past trade gatherings and the pleasant memories associated with them.

The Ullrich Floral Co., Tiffin, O., is gradually reducing stock with a view to retirement from a business which is the oldest in the vicinity and which has enjoyed a good patronage.

E. R. Sackett, of the Fostoria Floral Co., Fostoria, O., remarked that with their facilities for cutting off a section of the range, curtailment, if the supply of coal is not forthcoming, must follow. This would be all the more regrettable when demand is so good and a favorable growing season present in addition.

T. J. Enright, Fostoria, O., is threatened with a coal shortage, growing chiefly carnations and hoping against hope for the necessary fuel.

The Foster Greenhouses, Findlay, O., suffered damage from a hail storm last spring. One 160-foot house will not be repaired, but the others are being put in shape for the winter in the hope of getting sufficient coal. Great scarcity of flowers through the coming season is predicted. W. M.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, H. G. Hastings, Atlanta, Ga.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

THE fall catalogues are now on their way.

BUMPER crops of millets, sorghums and sudan grass are expected in the southwest.

ALBERT HOPKINS SMITH, treasurer of the Leonard Seed Co., was born August 16, 1874.

THE drop in foreign exchange occasioned by complications over Poland has benefited those who pay for importations of bulbs and seeds in foreign coin.

"MAKE Food or Go Hungry," is the warning that heads a half-page survey of the threatened food shortage in the fall catalogue of the H. G. Hastings Co., Atlanta, Ga., just off the press.

THE Budlong Gardens, Chicago, report that their onion sets are better than for several years past. Peter Hollenbach, Chicago, also expects to have a good crop. But not all the growers are agreed as to how large this season's production will be.

So great were the losses on lily of the valley pips in ocean transit last year that agents are unwilling to write insurance on them this season. It is hoped that better vessels will be available for shipments the coming fall, so that the risk of spoiling will not be so great.

JUST how much of the increase in freight rates will be passed on to seed buyers depends on how the dealers judge the market; if any merchants shove cheap stock on the market at low prices, their competition will tend to make it difficult for the better class of firms to shift the increased burden.

IN discussing the probable ups and downs of seed prices for the coming season, N. Sluis, Chicago, expressed the opinion that the comparative failure in the cabbage seed crop would push up prices there, while in some other lines large importations of European stocks would tend to pull down prices.

THE production of Bermuda onion seed in the Coachella valley, California, this year is quite small. No bulbs were planted last fall for seed production, but about 400 pounds of seed was obtained from bulbs that were not harvested in 1919. A small second crop was obtained from a field of bulbs planted in 1918, but this does not seem to meet with a ready sale. Because onion seed crops in this section have been practically a failure for three successive years, contract growers and dealers are endeavoring to develop a new territory. About 500 pounds will be obtained this year from the new area, and contracts have been let for 10,000 pounds in 1921.

"PRESENT conditions indicate that only a small amount of the second cutting of alfalfa will be allowed to stand for seed," reports the Mangelsdorf Seed Co., Atchison, Kan. "Owing to splendid weather conditions and an abundance of moisture, alfalfa made a tall, heavy growth and in practically every instance has been cut for hay instead of being used for seeding purposes. In the middle west the seed crop of alfalfa is dependent upon a long

MORE DUTCH BULBS ARRIVE.

This season's second and third shipments of Dutch bulbs reached New York August 5 from Rotterdam on the steamers Luckenbach and Nieuw Amsterdam, respectively. While Dutch bulbs are coming earlier this year than last, the early cargoes are much smaller; the combined total of 595 cases for these two steamers makes with the 337 cases which came on the Noordam July 29 a total of 932 cases, less than half the cargo brought by the Verentia August 30, 1919, when the season's first shipment totaled 1,895 cases.

The consignments on the Luckenbach were as follows:

CANARY ISLANDS ONION SEED.

The harvesting of the 1920 onion seed crop in the Canary islands was slightly retarded by the unusually cool weather. Confirming previous estimates, growers and exporters state that a small crop will be the result and that this year's production will not exceed 35,000 to 40,000 pounds. Original predictions of a short crop were based on the reduced scale of plantings last fall, but a still further decrease in yield took place through high winds and a black rot, which attacked the stalks of many of the plants.

As formerly, the greater part of the crop has been sold to buyers in the United States. Shipments have already commenced. Prices of the unsold portion will be much higher than usual, and transactions are reported to have taken place locally at 7 to 12 pesetas (1.16 to $2 at present exchange rates) per pound for the Yellow Bermuda onion, which constitutes about seventy per cent of the production. Average prices in past years have been about 90 cents a pound f. o. b. Teneriffe, and expenses of ship-

MORE FRENCH BULBS.

Following by three days the first cargo of French bulbs, which came on the Britannia, the second came into New York August 2 on the steamer Patria from Marseilles. This cargo, with its 1,873 cases, was decidedly smaller than the first one, of 5,651 cases, but the total of 7,524 cases is only slightly less than the corresponding total of 7,753 cases in the initial cargoes of the Canada and Patria a year ago.

SEED CROPS IN DENMARK.

The early frost in the autumn of 1919 damaged the fields of "stecklinge," and in spring many mangold "stecklinge" were found spoiled in the pits. On account of the low prices the growers were, moreover, unwilling to continue the cultivation of seeds, as a consequence of which not only the bad fields, but here and there also fields in good growth were plowed up last spring.

The cool weather during the early part of the summer had a favorable influence on the development of the cruciferous varieties, so that good crops of swede, turnip and cabbage seeds are generally expected. On the other hand, mangolds do not promise well; many plants have been injured by vermin, and without the present stock on hand the new crop will certainly be insufficient to meet the demand in the autumn. With regard to carrots, the same is the case; in the carrot varieties the largest reductions have taken place, and it is not possible to estimate what quantities of prime quality will be brought into the market.

As already mentioned, a great reac-

The KENILWORTH Giant Pansy Seed

No.

26. GIANT KENILWORTH CUT FLOWER MIXTURE. Is a distinct class by itself, surpassing all other strains as a cut flower for inside or outside growing; the large flowers are carried erect above the foliage on heavy stems, 6 or 7 inches long, in the most graceful manner, and stand the hot, dry weather well. 1000 seeds, 40c; ⅛ oz., $1.10; ¼ oz., $2.00; ½ oz., $3.75; 1 oz., $7.50.

28. GIANT MASTERPIECE. A remarkable type, the curled wavy petals giving the flower a double appearance; large flowers of great substance, on long, strong stems, and its ability to stand the hot, dry weather, makes it a favorite for cut flowers. 1000 seeds, 40c; ⅛ oz., $1.10; ¼ oz., $2.00; ½ oz., $3.75; 1 oz., $7.50.

30. GIANT THREE AND FIVE BLOTCHED PANSIES. A superb mixture. Flowers large and of circular form and of great substance. The display of coloring is unsurpassed. A combination of almost every shade of rich, velvety colors; reds are particularly conspicuous, the petals being distinctly marked with three or five large, dark blotches. 1000 seeds, 35c; ⅛ oz., 90c; ¼ oz., $1.65; ½ oz., $3.00; 1 oz., $6.00.

32. GIANT PARISIAN. The flowers are of enormous size and beautifully marked, mostly five dark blotches on white and yellow ground; an unusually showy mixture. 1000 seeds, 35c; ⅛ oz., 90c; ¼ oz., $1.65; ½ oz., $3.00; 1 oz., $6.00.

36. TRIUMPH OF GIANT. Remarkably beautiful. The imposing five-spotted flowers on long, vigorous stalks surmount the foliage in the most graceful manner, are of enormous size, perfectly round and of unusual substance. The individual petals are very broad and cover each other in such a manner as to make the flowers appear almost double, the border of every petal being conspicuously curled. The plants are of a robust growth and form compact bushes of a round shape. 1000 seeds, 35c; ⅛ oz., 90c; ¼ oz., $1.65; ½ oz., $3.00; 1 oz., $6.00.

70. ORCHID-FLOWERED, Mixed. A dwarf, free bloomer, with a range of delicate colors that do not exist in any other Pansies; a remarkable combination of light rose, shell pink, blush mauve, fawn, light brown, orange and chamois. 1000 seeds, 35c; ⅛ oz., 90c; ¼ oz., $1.65; ½ oz., $3.00; 1 oz., $6.00.

10. KENILWORTH GIANT EXHIBITION is the very finest complete mixture ever sent out. Seed carefully saved only from marked plants of the best varieties, with the largest and best shaped flowers and richest coloring. It is impossible to convey an adequate idea of the delightful variations in color and markings of this unrivaled mixture. 500 seeds, 30c; 1000 seeds, 50c; ¼ oz., $1.35; ¼ oz., $2.50; oz., $10.00.

12. KENILWORTH GIANT PRIZE. The enormous flowers are of perfect form and of great substance. Petals overlapped and undulating. The rich colorings and markings are widely varied, some flowers being almost self-colored. 500 seeds, 30c; 1000 seeds, 50c; ¼ oz., $1.35; ¼ oz., $2.50; oz., $10.00.

New Early-Flowering or Winter-Blooming

An entirely new and distinct strain of Pansies. The main advantage of these new Pansies over all hitherto existing Pansies is the extreme earliness of flowering. Sown at the same time as other Pansies, they begin flowering the early part of March or as soon as the snow is off the ground, many times having four or five large flowers to a plant, when all other Pansies are only showing buds. The flowers are large, well formed and fragrant.

No.

4. JOVE. Lower petals violet, upper ones almost white.
5. MARS CORNFLOWER. Blue.
6. NORTH POLE. Pure snow white.
7. WORDEN. Quite black.
8. HELIOS. Pure yellow.
14. WINTER SUN. Golden yellow, with dark eye.

No.

15. ICE KING. Silvery white, with dark eye.
16. CELESTIAL QUEEN. Light or sky blue.
17. CHARM OF MARCH. Dark velvety blue.
18. A mixture of the nine preceding colors and other shades.

500 seeds, 25c; 1000 seeds, 40c; ¼ oz., $1.10; ¼ oz., $2.00; oz., $7.50.

19. TRIMARDEAU GIANT PANSIES. Very showy class of vigorous, compact growth, flowers of enormous size, a fine mixture, 1000 seeds, 30c; 4000 seeds, $1.00; ¼ oz., $1.35; ½ oz., $2.50; 1 oz., $5.00.

22. GIANT KENILWORTH STRAIN. The flowers are of perfect form and substance; many of the immense flowers are 3-inch. It is a striking collection of beautiful colors and markings, rich with shades of red, brown, bronze, mahogany and many others too numerous to mention. Light, medium or dark mixtures. 1000 seeds, 35c; ¼ oz., 90c; ¼ oz., $1.65; ½ oz., $3.00; 1 oz., $6.00.

24. GIANT KENILWORTH SHOW is undoubtedly the largest flowered Pansy in the world; the immense flowers are of circular form. A beautiful collection of colors and markings. 1000 seeds, 40c; ¼ oz., $1.10; ¼ oz., $2.00; ½ oz., $3.75; 1 oz., $7.50.

ATTENTION! ATTENTION!! Do you want the chance of a lifetime to get into the Gladiolus Bulb Business? Big! Big!! One move will put you in the KING ROW.

My land is becoming too valuable for bulb culture and it is our wish to look over California for a year. So will offer entire stock of Gladiolus Bulbs after digging this fall — nothing reserved. This acreage includes large blocks of the newer varieties as well as the standard sorts, and the entire stocks of Coleman's magnificent seedlings (7 years of labor included).

The purchaser can clean up a clear profit of 50% this next winter and spring and still have half the stock left to "carry on."

Farm located at edge of Ravenna. Personal inspection of field invited. Questions gladly answered.

JOE COLEMAN, Cleveland Road, Ravenna, Ohio

tion against the cultivation of seeds has taken place in Denmark. As, however, some stocks are on hand, these, in connection with the new crop, may be sufficient to meet the requirements of the season 1920-21.

With respect to the 1921-22 season the prospects are less encouraging. It appears that contract growing for foreign firms for the 1921 crop is of no interest, as it is expected that the market prices in the autumn of 1921 will be higher than the present contract prices.

RETAIL SALE OF FIELD SEEDS.

The retail sales of field seeds on the whole this year compare favorably with those of 1919, but are somewhat below normal, according to reports received by the bureau of markets of the Department of Agriculture from retail seed dealers throughout the United States.

Of the commercially more important seeds, red and alsike clover sales show the greatest reduction, while alfalfa sales were practically equal to those of 1919, and in most of the large consuming states the sales of timothy were greater than in 1919 and nearly normal.

An appreciable increase is noted in the sales of sweet clover except in the west central division. Little difference is noted between sales this year and last year of Kentucky bluegrass, orchard grass and redtop. Sales of cowpeas were uniformly smaller in every state, doubtless because of the abnormally high price and short supply, while soy bean sales were from two to thirty per cent larger in the eastern, southern and middle western states. A general increase over 1919 and normal is noted in the quantity of millets, sorgos and rape seed sold.

Seed corn sales increased materially in the southeastern, north central, west central and north Pacific divisions and are reported equal to 1919 and normal in other sections. Outstanding among the grains is the ten to fifteen per cent reduction from 1919 and normal in the sales of seed wheat. Seed of the other grains seems to have met with a more ready sale than in 1919, but less than normal in most sections.

Narvon, Pa.—Edward A. M. Helenthal is erecting a greenhouse, which he expects to have ready for use in the fall.

Ames, Ia.—The F. J. Olson greenhouses, west of the college, are undergoing a general overhauling at the hands of employees. The hotbeds are being cleaned out and refilled with fresh soil. Many noticeable improvements are being made about the buildings and grounds.

"Say It with Flowers"

S. A. F. NEWS

NATIONAL PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

Judge Says It.

The front cover page of Judge, in its issue of August 7, designed by that noted artist, James Montgomery Flagg, has for its subject "Say It with Flowers." The drawing depicts a beautiful girl offering to a meek and mild-looking young man what many who have seen the page at once believe to be a sprouted onion, although the large scroll caption is plainly enough "Say It with Flowers." Of course it is not an onion; no girl would have an onion as part of her corsage bouquet and from her bouquet her gift is evidently drawn. We do not know what the artist intended it to be, but we are pleased to identify it as the Poet's Narcissus and its presentation to the young man was evidently intended to check a desire for something better than mushy poetry. Why, indeed, should he not "Say It with Flowers" to such a beauty, instead of expressing himself in fervent verse? Why the lady is giving him a sprouted bulb is, of course, her affair; she might have meant that he could grow to "Say It with Flowers."

Anyway, the mystery, if mystery it be, has set a lot of people thinking and, naturally, our slogan is uppermost in their thoughts. That's where we come in. We have a dozen or more letters before us from florists who also are puzzled; they want to know whether the sketch is a boost or a knock. We have no right to expect anything serious from a humorous paper; therefore we do not consider it a "knock." We may not have interpreted the sketch aright, but, anyway, you buy a copy, "pay your money and take your choice."

Humor Helps.

But we have all along contended that, no matter how it is used, the slogan shows up for itself. It has been used in the "funny" departments of our newspapers constantly, showing its appealing power as a slogan. Does anyone know of another slogan taken up as ours has been? It has been the object of our publicity committee to make the slogan a household phrase. Who shall say that the humorists are not helping us to this end? Some of the world's biggest advertisers have not hesitated to use humorous matter in their advertisements. Many of us can remember that glorious copy put out by the manufacturers of Pear's soap, showing a disreputable-looking tramp writing a testimonial about the soap: "I used Pear's soap three years ago and have not used any other since."

We gain, no matter how the slogan is used. It is a wonderful piece of work and is worth all the money the florists can spend on it. Many other industries would like to have a slogan which draws as ours does. Do you think they would hesitate to back it up with millions of dollars? We do not seem to be able to collect the really small sum of $100,000 to carry out a campaign which we know would give us returns in millions. Just think of this, Mr. Nonsubscriber—you stand in your own way while you do not subscribe. John Young, Sec'y.

COLLEGE SECTION OF S. A. F.

The college florists' section of the Society of American Florists will hold a meeting and luncheon Wednesday, August 18, at Cleveland. Professor E. A. White, of Cornell University, will be chairman of this meeting. It is suggested that the members get in touch with him upon their arrival in Cleveland, to learn the final arrangements.

The purpose of the meeting is to become better acquainted with the work in the various institutions and it is hoped that those planning to be at the meeting will bring with them copies of their college catalogues and be prepared to give a short discussion on the best methods of teaching, the number of hours devoted to floriculture and the number of students enrolled in the various regular, special or short courses. The secretary has been anxious to get in touch with more persons who are teaching floriculture. The Cleveland people have prepared a most interesting convention and it is hoped that everyone in the college section of the S. A. F., who possibly can, will be present. Alfred C. Hottes.

DOUBLING YOUR CAPITAL.

Some of the florists are getting up now and then some advertising copy which has considerable merit. They might, to the mutual advantage of all concerned, send these advertisements to our trade press for republication and through this effort give their fellow florists something different that would be reciprocated later on.

For every suggestion you give, you will get back dozens. And this reminds me of what one of our sages recently said: "If you swap a dollar, you still have only a dollar, and the other fellow still has only one, but when two men exchange ideas, they both double their capital."

There are many good thoughts, suggestions and incidents occurring daily that would be worth-while "copy," so pass it along and progress by the interchange.

PERENNIALS THAT PAY.

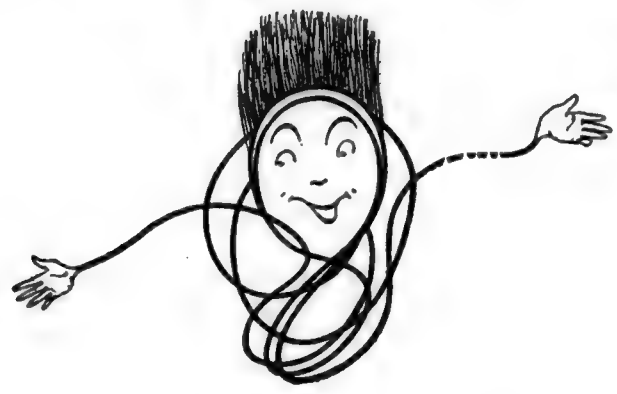
In extremely cold latitudes they can be wintered in coldframes. Ivory's Spotted and gloxiniæflora are good strains of D. purpurea to sow. A large vase of foxgloves makes a handsome appearance.

Gaillardia.

The well known and gaudy blanket flower, Gaillardia grandiflora, with its showy red and yellow flowers, is popular commercially. It comes quickly and freely from seed, blooms over a long period and is one of the best perennials for cutting.

Gypsophila.



No list of perennials for cutting would be complete without the hardy baby's breath, Gypsophila paniculata. Its light, airy, pure white flowers are fine for cutting and of much value in design work and bouquets. The single form of paniculata comes freely from seed. The newer and more double form, G. paniculata flore-pleno, comes partly true from seed and can be propagated by careful root division. The flowers of the double form sell much better than the singles in the market. Give it well drained land and it will not die out in winter.

Helenium.

The sneezewort family comprises some striking and showy plants for the hardy garden and all are fine for cut flower purposes. Probably the golden yellow, Helenium autumnale superbum, is the most widely known and popular, but other excellent sorts are H. Riverton Gem, deep yellow suffused with red; Hoopesii, bright orange yellow, and pumilum magnificum, golden yellow. All are of easy culture and are propagated readily from seeds and divisions.

Helianthus.

In late summer and fall, when the hardy sunflowers are at their best, there

A Live Wire Tangled Up

Yesterday, Live Wire Dick Sayer dropped in.

Had his little hammer out all ready to do some nice polite knocking.

Stop before you begin, Dick, says I.

Know exactly what's on your chest.

You came in here to say that "our advertisements in the Exchange and Review were not worth a hoot.

"Nobody reads them?

"Nothing to them anyway. Nothing to do with selling flowers. Utter waste of money. Don't see how the papers have the nerve to take the money."

Now see here, Dick; you are a live wire alright, only your wires are all tangled up.

Like yourself, Dick, I think the Ads. are pretty punk, but you know all of us here have an ear for music and the way those Ads. seem to be making the cash register ring up F. T. D. orders, isn't exactly depressing.

Oh, you say you were only kidding me.

So was I only kidding you.

In all confidence just between you and me, Dick, I know you are absolutely right.

Nobody really ever reads our Ads.

It just happened all by itself, that increase in F. T. D. orders.

is usually a preponderance of yellow flowers in the hardy garden. A few have decided commercial value and I would specially recommend H. mollis, H. rigidus Miss Mellish and the tall, late-flowering, willow-leaved variety, H. orgyalis. Helianthus plants spread rapidly and need to be frequently divided and replanted.

Hemerocallis.

The various forms of hemerocallis are best propagated by root division. Some handsome new hybrids have been produced in recent years. In many localities H. flava, the lemon lily, proves valuable for Memorial day. It carries golden yellow, sweet-scented flowers. H. aurantiaca major, a little more tender, has large, trumpet-shaped, deep orange flowers. H. luteola is orange yellow; H. Middendorffii is bright yellow and H. Thunbergii is a fine late-flowering yellow sort.

Heuchera.

There can be nothing more graceful or beautiful than a vase of heuchera, especially H. sanguinea or that lovely pink variety, Nancy Perry. For the front of borders or rockeries they are

Iris.

A long article would be needed to enumerate the best varieties of iris for the florist. He cannot go far wrong in planting liberally of the best forms of germanica, like pallida dalmatica, Mme. Chereau, Bridesmaid, flavescens, florentina alba, Mrs. H. Darwin and Glory of Hillegom. The handsome Japanese types of iris, I. Kaempferi, succeed best where they can be artificially watered, but in the average season they do well in an ordinary border. I. orientalis, violet blue, and the pure white form, Snow Queen, are grand for cutting. Then there are the intermediate forms of iris, crosses between germanica and pumila, of medium height and flowering in advance of germanica. A useful quartet would be: Gerda, cream; Helge, lemon yellow; Halfdan, pearly white; Walhalla, lavender with reddish falls.

The variety roseus may safely be recommended as one of the most beautiful and easily cultivated of perennials.

best for cutting. It is a most excellent subject to use in bouquets or design work and it flowers for about two months.

Peony.

Peonies are more widely sold in a cut flower state than any other hardy perennial and their value is known to everyone. Fine commercial varieties are numerous and a selection will not be attempted here. Suffice it to say that it is best to do the planting as early in the fall as possible and that no florist can well afford to be without a few dozen clumps of the best double varieties. Also try some of the singles; they are beautiful, flower earlier than the doubles and appeal to many critical buyers even more than the doubles.

Phlox.

In many respects the herbaceous phloxes are the most satisfactory of all hardy perennials. They flower over a much longer season than other hardy herbs, have a wider range of colors and are extremely hardy. They are accommodating in their wants and are easily propagated from seeds, cuttings or divisions. For cut flowers they are not so good as some other perennials; yet, when not allowed to get too much expanded before cutting, they last well. Miss Lingard is among the best of all phloxes. It is as satisfactory grown under glass as outdoors and produces cuttings in such abundance that it is easily increased. Elizabeth Campbell, R. P. Struthers, Rynstrom, Coquelicot, Le Cygne, Eclaireur, Pantheon and Richard Wallace are all good; so, indeed, are many more, but those named are dependable. Propagation by soft-wood cuttings taken in spring is the best method for phloxes. Take these cuttings from the sand and plant them outdoors on a cool, cloudy day when the ground is moist, and all will grow.

Physostegia.

The physostegia is usually called the false dragonhead or Texas heath. P. virginiana, with rosy lilac flowers, and P. virginiana alba, pure white, appear in our markets to a considerable extent in summer. The flowers keep well when cut. For border purposes, physostegias are among the most useful hardy plants. The seeds germinate readily.

Pyrethrum.

The forms of Pyrethrum roseum are useful for cutting, no matter whether double or single, and when, as often happens, they hit it right for Memorial day, they have great value. Use a packet of mixed seed; sow in spring and you will have strong blooming clumps for next year. The doubles are increased by careful division of the clumps and the sooner this is done after blooming the better. P. uliginosum, the giant daisy, flowering in August or later, makes a striking border plant and produces large, much branched spikes of flowers which are grand for cutting. The plants grow four to six feet high and give a great show of bloom each season, unless, as sometimes happens, the chinch bug attacks them.

Rudbeckia.

The well known and now overplanted Rudbeckia laciniata Golden Glow was once decidedly popular. It was too easy a grower, however, to remain long so great a favorite. R. purpurea, rosy purple, thirty inches high; R. nitida Autumn Sun, large bright yellow, and R. Newmanii, golden yellow, are an excellent trio to grow. All last well when cut and are good border plants.

nials are not overabundant. In Scabiosa caucasica we have one of the best. The large flowers are produced on long stems and last well when cut. They are easily grown from seed.

Stokesia.

The charming stokesia is a native plant of great value. Its large, sky-blue flowers resemble asters and a vase of them makes a fine show. There is a pure white as well as a lavender form, and each comes readily from seed, although there may be some variations in coloring.

Tritoma.

Though tritomas are now classed by botanists as kniphofias, gardeners and florists prefer the old name. The red-hot pokers are striking for window effects in fall. They bloom abundantly for a long season. They are not so hardy as most of the other plants named. In localities where they are doubtfully hardy it is best to lift them and store them on a cellar floor over winter, scattering some coarse sand among them. They come freely from seeds and the forms of Pfitzeri, Express and nobilis are all handsome.

Trollius.

In the spring there are few hardy perennials more beautiful than the trollius or globe flower, no matter whether it is the golden yellow europæus, the orange-colored caucasicus or the newer deep orange-colored asiaticus Excelsior. They last well in water and a bunch of them in a store window attracts immediate attention. They succeed well in any good soil and do not need a damp location, as many imagine.

Veronica.

for the rockery or hardy border. The best commercial sort is Veronica longifolia subsessilis, with rich, deep blue flowers on long spikes. V. spicata and its pink form, rosea, are also good for cutting.

ST. LOUIS, MO.

The Market.

During these dull, hot days little can be said of what is happening at the various wholesale markets. All seasonable stock is arriving in considerable quantity, the quality being fair considering the continuous dry weather, which caused stock to deteriorate. Prices continue the same as last week.

The great increase in the supply of gladiolus spikes caused the price to drop considerably in common mixed stock, which sold at $10 per thousand. The fancy varieties kept up well, selling at $3 to $5 per hundred. A considerable number of roses are arriving daily and demand good prices. Carnations are scarce at present and asters have taken their place. Some excellent asters are arriving daily, which are equal to all demands. Some fine Easter lilies arrived tional Flower Growers' Association at Cleveland were present. They are W. A. Rowe, L. Jules Bourdet, William Winter, Geo. Deutschmann and W. J. Pilcher.

During the evening there were lively discussions on the coal situation, the S. A. F. convention, publicity and the American Association of Gardeners' convention, which will be held at St. Louis next month. Many good points were brought out during the discussions.

The next meeting of the association will take place September 1.

Various Notes.

The officers of the St. Louis Florists' Club held their monthly meeting at the home of Vice-president A. S. Cerny, at Kirkwood, August 3. After the meeting they were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Cerny and Miss Cerny. Refreshments were served. An interesting program was arranged for the club meeting, for which the annual election of officers was scheduled.

Professor H. C. Irish, superintendent of floriculture at the Missouri state fair, was at Sedalia last week completing arrangements and looks for excellent florists' exhibits. The fair opens August 14. Many of the local florists would be glad to attend the fair, but as it is held the same week as the S.

TUPELO, MISS.

Mrs. W. L. Huffman, of 410 Green street, a daughter of the late Mrs. E. T. Povall, is growing flowers for the trade. Mrs. Huffman expects to have about 50,000 asters this season, besides gladioli and chrysanthemums. Mrs. Huffman's mother had been in the florists' business for many years at Booneville and at Tupelo. Mrs. Kate Lacy, an aunt of Mrs. Hoffman, is connected with the Booneville Floral Co.

MACON, MO.

One of the most brilliant functions that have ever occurred at Macon was the marriage ceremony of Miss Helen Williams, daughter of Judge and Mrs. B. R. Williams, of that city, and Hartley Estill, of the Estill Floral Co., Moberly, Mo. The service was read by the Rev. Charles Edwards, rector of St. James Episcopal church, and took place in the First Baptist church, which was elaborately decorated for the occasion, gladioli and roses being combined with masses of greens. The bridesmaids were all members of the bride's sorority, the Beta Sigma Omicron, at Stephen's College, Columbia, Mo. The bride is a young lady of exceptional musical ability and recently appeared in the title role of the musical comedy, "Bob White." Mr. Estill was practically raised in the greenhouse, succeeding to the management of the Estill Floral Co. upon the death of his mother, several years ago. He is well known to the trade. During the war he served in France over a year. Mr. and Mrs. Estill are now on a several weeks' trip through the west and will be at home after September 15 at 707 Gilman road, Moberly, Mo.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

The condition of the market and shipping business shows little change from that indicated in the last report. Roses are still poor and in short supply, gladioli, asters and African marigolds being the best shippers. Carnations simply wilt on arrival and cannot be shipped to any distance. Dahlias are making a fine show.

Funeral work keeps up well and is still the mainstay of the retailers' business.

Various Notes.

A. J. Clarke, of Clarke Bros., Portland, Ore., was in the city visiting the trade last week.

Big funerals in widely separated localities kept F. Lichtenberg's staff on their toes during the week. Some nights they had to work all night to get the designs out.

William H. Rapp, president of the Pasadena Horticultural Society, reports that the society's accounts show that the spring exhibition was one of the most profitable it has ever held and a substantial balance has been the result. Preparations for the chrysanthemum show in the fall are in a forward condition and the liberal prize list will no doubt bring out a strong competition. Speaking of his own business, Mr. Rapp says that he and his partner are rushed with landscape work and that plant trade is good at the Crown City Nursery. A specialty is made here of choice perennials and shrubs in small sizes for shipping.

The new picotee-edged zinnia being worked up by Fraser & Son, of Pasadena, is quite a distinct break and Mr. Fraser thinks it is a sure winner. Flowers on the writer's desk sent by Mr. Fraser are as large as a good, ordinary zinnia, but of the richest and most varied colors. Each petal has a distinct picotee edging and, though all are beautiful, some of the golden yellows with an edging of deep chestnut brown and a pink with crimson edging stand out as especially attractive. In distinct contrast to these are their "dahlia-flowered" zinnias, monsters in size, with the same rich variety in tints and great petalage.

Frank Warner, who for many years has been associated with Ed. Rust, of South Pasadena, has purchased a 10-acre tract at Inglewood, a rising suburban town southwest of the city, and intends to go into business there. At first Mr. Warner intends to go largely into bulbous stock, branching out later into other lines. With his long experience in all branches of the nursery and florists' business, it does not take a seer to prophesy success for him and this is what a host of good friends will wish him.

Another carload of baskets arrived at the store of W. Armacost & Co. last week. W. N. Williamson, the manager there, has left for a well earned vacation.

An unusually big demand for funeral work at the store of the Redondo Floral Co. has kept those of the staff who are not on vacation exceedingly busy, and A. Knopf is looking forward to his vacation. Mr. Knopf intends to go to Little Bear for a week and spend another week at his citrus ranch near Santa Ana. This week Miss Bennett, the bookkeeper, and Dave Goldenson are away and President Borden is busy getting the garden at the new home in the same good condition as the old one at Hollywood.

In the absence of T. Brown, superintendent of the greenhouses of Wright's Flower Shop, T. Wright has been putting in considerable time at "the ranch." The new greenhouse is finished and working, the older houses renovated and everything ready for a big season's business. Mr. Wright is particularly pleased with the way the young cyclamens are coming along this season.

The California Floral Co. reports that it is well satisfied with the way the shipping business is keeping up; it is beyond expectations for this time of year.

The Market.

Asters dominate the market here, both in respect to out-of-town shipments and local demand. There is a heavy crop and the quality of the flowers is considered better than ever before. The stems are long, the blooms large and the colors all that can be desired. They enter into strong competition with other seasonable offerings, the great abundance of which has a tendency to weaken prices generally, although some of the staples, such as high-grade roses, are scarce and correspondingly high.

The good roses that come into the market are cleaned up readily at so-

THE FIRST OF A NEW RACE

NEW CINERARIA—SUNTESTED SEMI-DWARF.
We have long been famed, as wholesale growers, for our SUNTESTED PRIZE CINERARIAS. The blossoms are of immense size, 4 to 5 inches in diameter, splendidly proportioned. Each disk is beautifully raised. This feature is a valuable addition to our Grandiflora type.
Trade packet, 1000 seeds, $1.00; ⅛ ounce, $10.00.

CANDYTUFT—GIGANTEA HYACINTH FLOWERED (New).
A magnificent introduction, each plant having 7 or 8 heads of bloom. EXTRA SELECT STRAIN worked up by us for high-class florist trade.
Trade packet, 1000 seeds, 50c; per ounce, $2.50.

WHOLESALE GROWERS

MIGNONETTE—FRASER'S SPIRAL MACHET. (For Greenhouse Culture.)
The size of this charming Mignonette has placed it in a class by itself. It makes a bushy plant resembling intermediate stocks. The spikes of bloom are larger than any other variety ever offered. Color, bronzy gold.
Trade packet, 1000 seeds, 50c; per ounce, $2.50.

called Christmas prices, the demand being particularly strong for Russell and Columbia. Good carnations are scarce, but they do not seem to be missed.

Gladioli continue plentiful and good, some fine stock coming from Santa Cruz. Dahlias are also here in great abundance. With zinnias and rubrum and auratum lilies, the flower stores make a wonderful showing. Chrysanthemums were in early, but the supply has not increased rapidly, so they still do not cut much figure in the market. A heavy cut of the large-flowering varieties is expected to appear within the next two weeks, however.

Orchids continue scarce, and the receipts of lily of the valley are spasmodic. Gardenias are a little more plentiful.

Various Notes.

The local shippers are bringing all the pressure to bear that they can in an effort to get the express company to give them refrigerator service again. It is pointed out that August and September are the months when it is most needed. At present there is a heavy movement of asters starting, but it is more or less uncertain whether the shipments will pass through the heat of the Mississippi valley in first-class condition without the use of refrigerator cars. With chrysanthemums coming on, the service is much needed. A petition signed by all of the shippers has been filed with the express company for two cars a week.

Frank X. Gorly, of Grimm & Gorly, St. Louis, arrived here recently, accompanied by Mrs. Gorly. This is their first visit to California. It is a pleasure tour, but Mr. Gorly is taking advantage of the opportunity to visit the florists' establishments en route. He has been shown about the city by different members of the trade. Sunday, August 1, he and Mrs. Gorly were the guests of B. M. Joseph on an automobile trip down the valley.

B. M. Joseph reports business about the same as last summer. By the end of August he expects to have a fine stock of oriental pods, grown in the Santa Clara valley, for his trade. He did well with this novelty last year and anticipates a better demand this season. He looks for orchids to con-

Frank D. Pelicano, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., has three promising new dahlia seedlings, which he intends to exhibit at the show next month. Friends are glad to learn that Mrs. Pelicano is able to return home, after six weeks in the hospital following a serious operation. Peter Rosaia, with Pelicano, Rossi & Co., is away on his vacation. Frank Thatcher will leave next, for Blue Lake, in Lake county.

Mrs. R. E. Darbee and family are back from an automobile camping trip among the big trees of Humboldt county, which proved a most delightful outing. She was well satisfied with the volume of business done at the store during her absence, and reports shipping starting in quite briskly again, the principal difficulty being to get long-distance orders through in good shape without refrigerator express car service.

Gus E. Taylor, with the MacRorie-McLaren Co., is soon to marry a young lady from Honolulu, and, it is understood, intends to make his future home in that city, where he will likely engage in the florists' business. The landscape department of the MacRorie-McLaren Co. is reported busy, and store trade is starting off much better in August than it did in July.

Albert O. Stein says there is not much doing in the way of large decorations, but that the store trade is holding up unusually well this summer. Patrick Orr has extended his month's absence to six weeks, which will bring him back August 15. After visiting Auburn and Oroville, he is now at Lake Tahoe. Norman Marcus is back on duty, after a pleasant outing at Santa Cruz. A. Mendosa is in Mendocino county and H. J. Hefty expects to leave shortly for Portland, Ore., on his vacation.

Mark Ebel, Sacramento, Cal., had an unfortunate experience with a recently purchased automobile. It is stated that he bought a new Dodge car and enlisted the services of a delivery boy to teach him to drive it. He stopped at a hotel for dinner and told the boy he could dine at the same time, but when he finished there was no boy and no automobile.

F. C. Jaeger, of F. C. Jaeger & Son, is to be sworn in next week as a member of the grand jury for the city and county of San Francisco, which means that he will be subject to jury duty for the ensuing year. He is enthusiastic about the hunting expedition on which he leaves in a few days. His party is going to Shelter Cove and from there into the Eel river country.

The Art Floral Co. was quite busy last week with a large wedding decoration at the Fairmont hotel, a large amount of funeral work and fairly active store trade.

J. A. Axell considers the help problem one of the most serious questions confronting florists, both wholesale and retail. It seems to him that fewer young men are learning this business each year, and he thinks something should be done to attract their attention and make the industry appeal more strongly to youths just starting to make their way in the world. M. M.

SEATTLE, WASH.

The Market.

Dull trading throughout the week was the general rule in the Seattle market and the scarcity of stock failed to bring any trade inconvenience. There has been enough funeral work to keep the floors well cleared of stock.

In direct contrast with the week previous, gladioli have been rather plentiful and in quality they are equal to anything yet seen this season. The warm weather has advanced all outdoor crops. Everything has kept well except roses and carnations. Asters are about at the height of their season and have been popular; the dark shades are being combined freely with calendulas and snapdragon.

There has been a small cut in the wholesale price of water lilies and good-sized sales of them have been reported. Most of the smaller baskets and funeral wreaths sent out contain a few Lilium rubrum.

While all of the gladioli on the market are of splendid quality, there are three varieties which are real leaders. These are Schwaben, Niagara and primulinus. The primulinus hybrids are being shown in both orange and yellow shades.

About the only new offering from local growers during the week was salpiglossis.

Ulrich Brunner failed to retain the lead as the best rose coming to the market at this time, chiefly the result of the marked improvement of Columbia. Ophelia is of average quality and Caroline Testout is better. Cecile Brunner is better in color, while Ward has about disappeared between crops.

The supply of orchids is really larger than the trade can conveniently handle and only outside orders have saved the growers. Lily of the valley is just as much a rarity as ever. Sweet peas have worked in well and the growers are delivering fine stock. Yellow shades have been especially popular of late. Shasta daisies are used in most baskets.

Carnations being off the market now and roses almost off, gladioli are about the main flowers. Asters are beginning to arrive and will be welcome to take the place of carnations. Sweet peas are still poor in quality.

Various Notes.

July 28 was the date of the florists' annual picnic. A good attendance marked the event. The afternoon program started with a baseball game, retailers vs. wholesalers. The score was 15 to 13 in favor of the wholesalers. The game was followed by races, for men, women and children. The most laughter was caused by the three-legged race, the wheelbarrow race, the centipede race and a tug-of-war in which the women participated. The sporting events of the day ended with a tug-of-war by men, after which all sat down to lunch. The committee in charge included P. Jandle, H. Lozier, H. Hill and E. Hedger.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

WILLIAM PETERSON is spending his vacation at Winona Lake, Ind., and expects to return to Chicago about September 1.

WHILE J. A. Young, president of the Aurora Nursery Co., was attending the summer meeting of the Illinois State Nurserymen's Association at Urbana, the big packing shed and the office of the Aurora Nurseries, Aurora, Ill., was burned Thursday, August 5. The loss amounted to about $8,000 and is partly covered by insurance. All records and books were saved. The firm has temporarily set up its offices in Mr. Young's residence and there has been no interruption of business.

SECRETARY JOHN WATSON has revived the Association Bulletin and No. 1 of volume XX went to members of the A. A. N. under date of July 31. This issue stands out as being what an organization bulletin ought to be, full of discussion of the association's problems and of its members' problems in which the association may be of help. The editorial matter reprinted from various sources is not filler, but valuable views on important topics. One appreciates anew how valuable to the A. A. N. is its executive secretary from this piece of his handiwork.

ILLINOISANS AT URBANA.

For Summer Meeting.

About thirty firms were represented at the summer meeting of the Illinois State Nurserymen's Association at Urbana August 4 and 5, several of the firms having three or four representatives. Their enthusiastic appreciation of the work of their hosts, the members of the department of horticulture of the University of Illinois, was shown in their promises to do everything possible to win from the state legislature the necessary appropriations for the enlargement of the work. Another financial responsibility undertaken was the raising of money to carry out the plan of the committee on cost accounting and uniform grades.

The meeting started promptly at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday evening, August 4. Professor J. C. Blair, head of the department of horticulture, whose address at the February meeting of the association in Chicago made so favorable an impression, told about the nurserymen's school which is being established at the university. He explained that much of the course is already established and that it will require only a small outlay of $15,000 per annum to put the course fully into existence. To conduct properly the experiments and practical side of the course will require some land and some buildings, the total cost of which is estimated at $50,000. The representatives of the different firms agreed to bring every influence to bear to secure the $65,000 needed to set the new course on its feet.

Professor Blair called upon H. B. Dorner, professor of floriculture; Professor Ruth, of the research department, and others connected with Professor Blair's department; their papers and talks were both instructive and interesting.

Hybridizing Tree Fruits.

Professor Crandall was then presented by Professor Blair. He is engaged in hybridizing tree fruits and producing new varieties, work involving experiments which require years to determine their value. The nurserymen present were evidently surprised that work of such value was being conducted and that they had known so little about it.

Prepared by Professor Blair's talk Wednesday evening, the members of the association found especial enjoyment in the tour Thursday morning, when automobiles called for them at the Beardsley hotel and took them through the university campus and out to the fields and buildings where the various activities of the department of horticulture were being carried on. Professor Dorner's department was particularly interesting; there they saw the flowers and plants growing under the skilled hands of his corps of instructors and learned that orchids were successfully produced from seed. The cherry orchards, the vineyards, the chicken farm, the vegetable garden, the small fruit division and the general farm all excited the admiration of the visitors.

Cost Accounting Plan Progresses.

At the association's meeting last February in Chicago a committee consisting of A. H. Hill, Alvin E. Nelson and T. J. Littleford was appointed to consider the inauguration of a uniform system of cost accounting, with uniform grades, by the members of the association. This committee has been working steadily since then and, after making its report, was instructed to continue its work and report at the winter meeting. It is planned to raise $8,000 to put into effect such a program as the committee is tentatively suggesting. Some members of the association expect to contribute, or invest, $100 to $300 for this purpose. The treasurer of the association is Clyde Leesley, North Crawford and Peterson avenues, Chicago.

As a result of the summer meeting at Urbana, the members of the association gained fuller knowledge of the educational and research work which the state is doing for the nursery business; cooperation between the university and the nurserymen will be yet closer than heretofore. The members of the association who attended the summer meeting believed that, not only should the course for nurserymen receive its essential appropriation of $65,000, but the university as a whole should have an increase over the present allowance of $5,000,000 for every two years.

POEHLMANN BROTHERS CO., Morton Grove, Ill.

DULUTH, MINN.

The Market.

The cut flower business is slow, as can be expected at this time of the year. An abundance of outdoor flowers is arriving, which makes the shipments from the growers comparatively small. Funeral work has been heavy for the last two weeks. Locally grown sweet peas are plentiful and good. So are delphiniums and gladioli, which make excellent window decorations. Carnations are scarce and poor. Roses are plentiful, but only of moderate quality. Valley is scarce, with the demand good. A few small decorations for bridal dinners and receptions have helped along the business for the week.

Various Notes.

J. J. Le Borious has a new 8-cylinder Oldsmobile. He says he is going to have a long vacation this year, as he had to work all last summer because of the shortage of help.

William Jaap, of Lester Park, is spending a few days in Milwaukee and Chicago. He has a fine house of cyclamens, which are well advanced in 5-inch pots and will make good stock for the fall trade. Miss Jaap is home from a two weeks' vacation.

Visitors to Duluth last week included Chas. F. Edgar, of the McCallum Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., and Arthur Teweles, of the L. Teweles Seed Co., Milwaukee.

Miss Vera Netsel, of the Duluth Floral Co., is spending her vacation with friends at Minneapolis.

Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Kreimer are spending their vacation at Lake Vermillion.

Joseph Boland is back again at work after a sickness of six weeks.

The Duluth Floral Co. has a fine new delivery car. J. E. S.

Bowling Green, O.—The Misses Marie Rex and Mary Mercer, who have owned the Bowling Green Floral Co. for the last three years, have sold their business to Brigham Bros. Both young ladies intend to enter the business again in another city.

NEWARK, N. J.

Growers in Newark and its vicinity are getting chrysanthemums in shape for fall trade. Plants are in good condition and a good crop is expected. Many growers are making repairs and alterations on their greenhouses. The problem of getting competent help is a serious one. Such workers as can be secured are demanding unusually high wages. This tends to curtail production.

Philips Bros., 938 Broad street, have been making repairs at their store and greenhouse. Both the greenhouse and the interior of the store have also been repainted.

Harry I. Stein, of the Terminal Flower Shop, finds the summer trade keeping up quite satisfactorily. R. B. M.

Greenhouse Heating

Subscribers are invited to write the editor of this department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

CHANGING BOILER.

I am using a tubular boiler, 3x10 feet, which I have to crowd in order to keep up the temperature in cold weather, using steam. I have a boiler, 3½x10 feet, which I think would do the work all right. At the present cost of soft coal, would it be better to install the 3½x10-foot boiler, or get a good cast-iron sectional boiler?

A. L. J.—N. Y.

Whether it will be better to use the 3½x10-foot boiler will depend largely upon its condition, but if it is in good shape, I should not hesitate to use it, provided it is as large as will be needed.

With a grate of ample size, so that it will not be necessary to force the fire, the tubular boiler will be quite economical in its consumption of fuel.

STOPPING TUBE LEAKS.

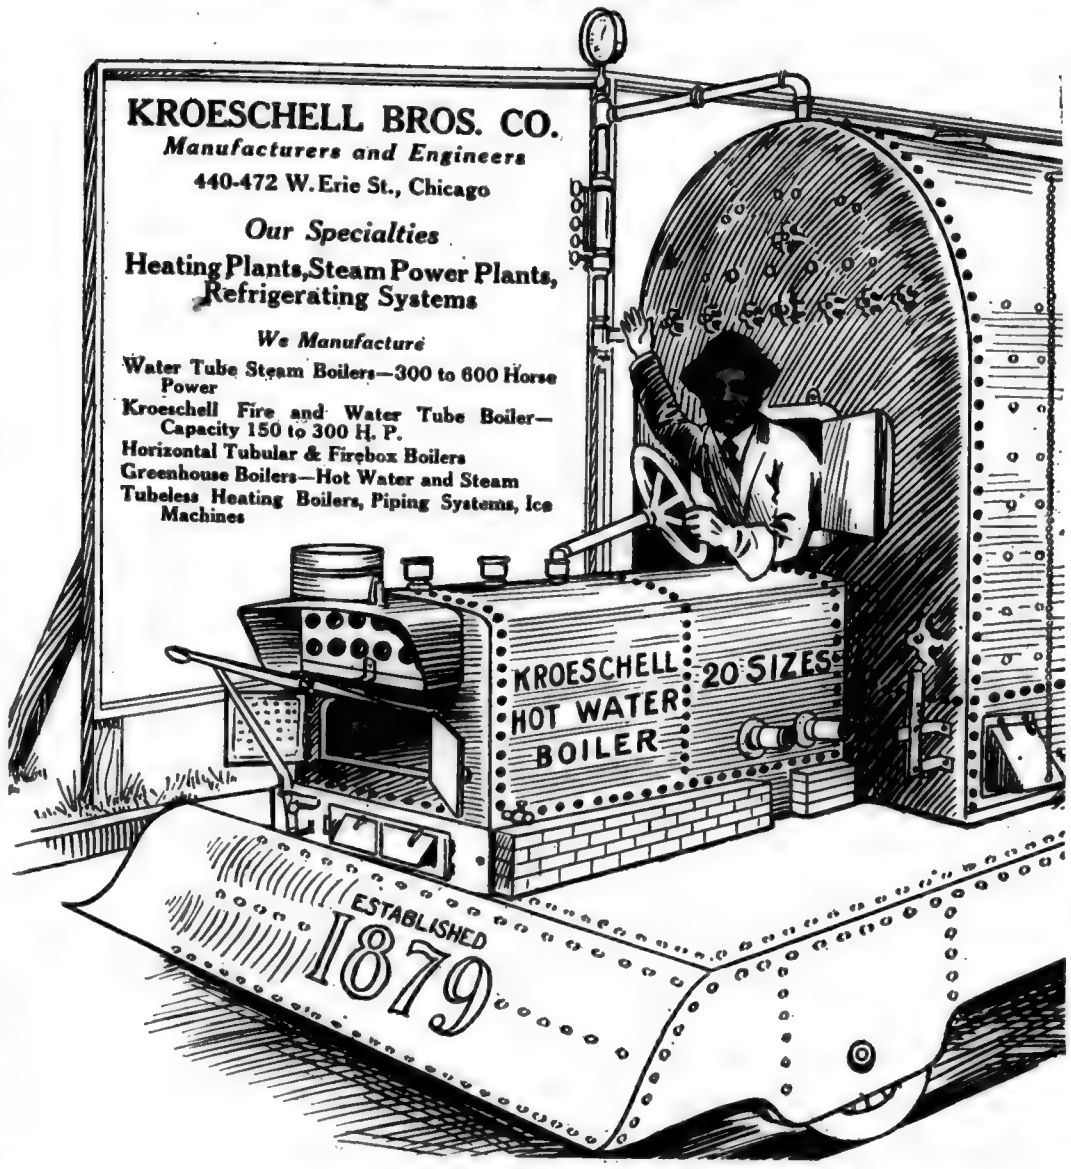
What is the method of plugging tubular boilers when a tube leaks? How does a tube begin to leak? Does it give way altogether, or does it just leak? Can I check the leak before it becomes necessary to shut the boiler off?

J. D.—Pa.

The replies to the questions depend largely upon the age and condition of the boiler. If it is a comparatively new boiler, with the tubes in good condition, and leaks occur where the tubes join the boiler heads, it is generally an easy matter to stop the leaks, which are usually due either to imperfect workmanship when the boiler was constructed, or to the loosening of the tubes where connected with the boiler heads, caused by unbalanced expansion and contraction. These leaks can generally be easily stopped.

In older boilers the tubes themselves may have rusted, or the tubes may have been cracked in some way. If they are badly rusted it may not be possible to stop the leak, but if the tubes are in fairly good condition it will be worth while to paint the injured portion with litharge and burn it on with a gasoline torch. Repeated treatments of this kind will stop a large leak.

CINCINNATI, O.



The Market.

The market is about the same as last week, except for a few particularly good chrysanthemums, asters and some fine Schwaben gladioli. Asters on an average last week were better than the previous week, but they do not find a ready market. The same holds true for gladioli. It seems that everyone who has a lot 10x12 feet is growing gladioli;

PLIBRICO keeps the heat in the furnace because it forms a jointless one-piece lining in your front door arches, entire fronts, side walls, arches, bridge walls, etc. This lining is gas and air-tight, saves fuel while at the same time greatly reducing your furnace upkeep, will last longer, give better satisfaction and can be more easily repaired than a lining constructed of fire brick and fire clay.

Growers Meet.

An adjourned meeting of the flower growers, to complete the business begun at that held in James Hamilton's store July 21, was held at the Hotel Rennert August 4. The meeting began with one of the Rennert's famous dinners. After the table was cleared there was nothing but business from 8 o'clock to 11. President Hamilton was in the chair. The main business of the evening was the adoption of the constitution. The name of the new organization is to be the Flower Growers of Maryland. Some idea of the scope of this organization may be had from a sentence in the constitution, stating that the object of the organization is "to buy and sell anything pertaining to the florists business."

The committee that drafted the by-laws and constitution was appointed to have the organization incorporated under the laws of Maryland. Robert Halliday was elected purchasing agent. Among those present were A. S. Richmond, F. E. Cremer, R. L. Graham, F. C. Bauer, Jas. Hamilton, J. L. Wagner, A. Beckman, Geo. F. Fox and son, John Baer, Chas. Hochsteadt, Wm. Keir, James Glass, A. Anderson, Chas. Seigwart, Jesse King, Samuel Feast and sons and Jos. S. Merritt. Tate.

Robert Tate Paterson has been confined to his home, under the doctor's care, on account of a slight attack of malaria. He is expected to be about shortly.

H. D. Ellis, who four years ago started by growing tomato plants in a hotbed 6x18 feet, now has two houses, 45x85 feet, another, 45x160, under way, and a propagating house just completed. Last spring he shipped approximately half a million plants to points in the southwestern states. He now operates as the Ellis Co. He recently opened a store, the Posy Shop, and now does a regular retail business.

The Market.

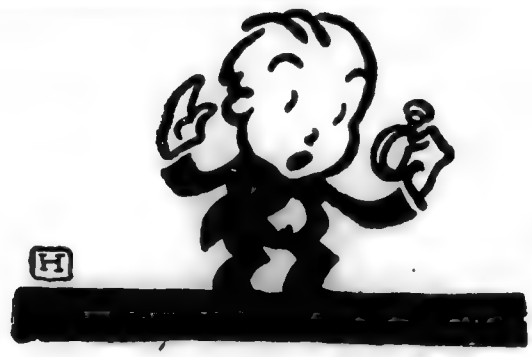
The tramway strike brought business to a complete standstill last week, so that some stock was lost, especially outdoor stock. Gladioli are good now and plentiful. This has brought prices down considerably. The earliest asters are in now, also some dahlias, which are extra fine for so early in the season. Shipping is holding up well; in fact, better than last year, from all reports.

Various Notes.

A visit to the Roberts Rose Co. last week was delightful and instructive. Although the stock had undergone a heavy July cutting, everything looks splendid. Here the new roses, Pilgrim, Dunlop and Crusader, appear to advantage. Mr. Roberts is planning to propagate them exclusively. A new boiler has been installed and a boiler room, garage and cut flower room are now under construction.

Walter Barth has sweet peas in pots ready to plant when the tomato crop comes off.



N. A. Benson has thrown out the last of his carnations. They are being replaced by roses, mostly Columbia. He has also been cutting some fine Butterfly.

E. S. Kennedy, of the Alpha Floral Co., has been enjoying a much needed vacation. He was at Cheyenne for the frontier day celebration and is now at Colorado Springs.

C. A. Benson has purchased a new Packard automobile.

Mr. Chaffer, of the Claussen & Chaffer Floral Co., who was married recently, has just returned from a trip to the Pacific coast. Mr. Claussen is leaving soon by automobile to tour the entire coast.

It's Not Too Late, But There's No Time to Lose

A week of dry weather now, and you must water with hose or your outdoor stock will get a setback, and every little setback these days, costs real money.
The solution of the problem is the Skinner System.

You can buy a line all ready to set up. Hook it on to your hose, or wherever you have a ¾-inch water supply, and have it going 30 minutes after the express company lands it at your door.

A 100-foot line waters a strip 50x100 feet and costs only $45.25. Weight, about 125 pounds.

Or you can have a 50-foot line for only $23.75.

Lines at any time can be made a part of a larger Skinner System.

If you want immediate dry weather relief, don't take time to write; just wire us.

The Market.

Summer business has been light, with just a day or two during the week a little better than the average. The crop of roses is getting better and larger every day. The greater proportion arriving are White Killarney, with a sprinkling of Russell, Columbia, Premier, Ophelia, Stanley, Ward and Richmond. Gladioli are plentiful and are selling quite reasonably in quantities. They are being used in large quantities by many of the trade. Sweet peas are good, but are not moving so well as might be expected at summer prices. There has been little call for valley, which is available at the present time. Asters are coming in more plentifully and are moving slowly. Stock seems to be limited in variety for this time of year.

EVERTITE
GLAZING CEMENT

Here's the story:—

The reasons why Evertite Glazing Cement has largely displaced putty in greenhouse construction are apparent to anyone who has had Evertite on his sash bars.

Putty consists of whiting and boiled linseed oil. Linseed oil evaporates and when the oil is gone from putty, only whiting remains. It isn't any wonder it lets go and the glass blows out.

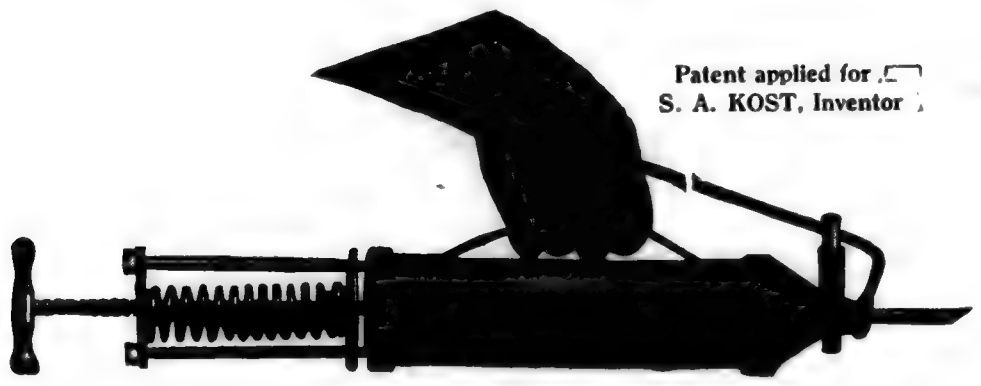
Evertite Glazing Cement is made of pure rock asbestos, combined with non-drying adhesive oils and Gilsonite. It will not run or harden under either extreme of temperature. It will not check, crack or let go, but always retains its plastic, rubber-like condition.

The only chance to make putty hold is to put it under the glass. Quite the opposite, Evertite is run around the edges, lapping over on top of the glass. The glass really holds the putty in (for a while); but Evertite holds the glass in—for years and years.

Evertite Glazing Cement, remaining always rubber-like, will contract and expand as the greenhouse roof heaves under the wind. The Glazing cement does not crack—nor will the glass.

The correct way to apply Evertite Glazing Cement is through the "Oh Boy" glazing gun. The cement flows in a pencil-like stream and stays where you put it. There is no other gun so good.

Heretofore the chief use of Evertite Glazing Cement has been to repair roofs weakened, loosened and leaking by the disintegration of putty. But many hundreds of thousands of feet of new glass this season will be glazed with Evertite. Their owners can forget the glazing problem for the next five to ten years.



Evertite Glazing Cement will cost no more than first-class putty, but if putty were free, Evertite would be cheaper—because of the saving in labor, not to say worry.

Evertite can be had in kegs, half barrels and barrels. The "Oh Boy" glazing gun is furnished only with Evertite Glazing Cement.

WHEN Unsolicited on our part, JOE HILL writes as follows regarding his new 1920 Foley addition shown below, just built:

Richmond, Ind., May 12, 1920

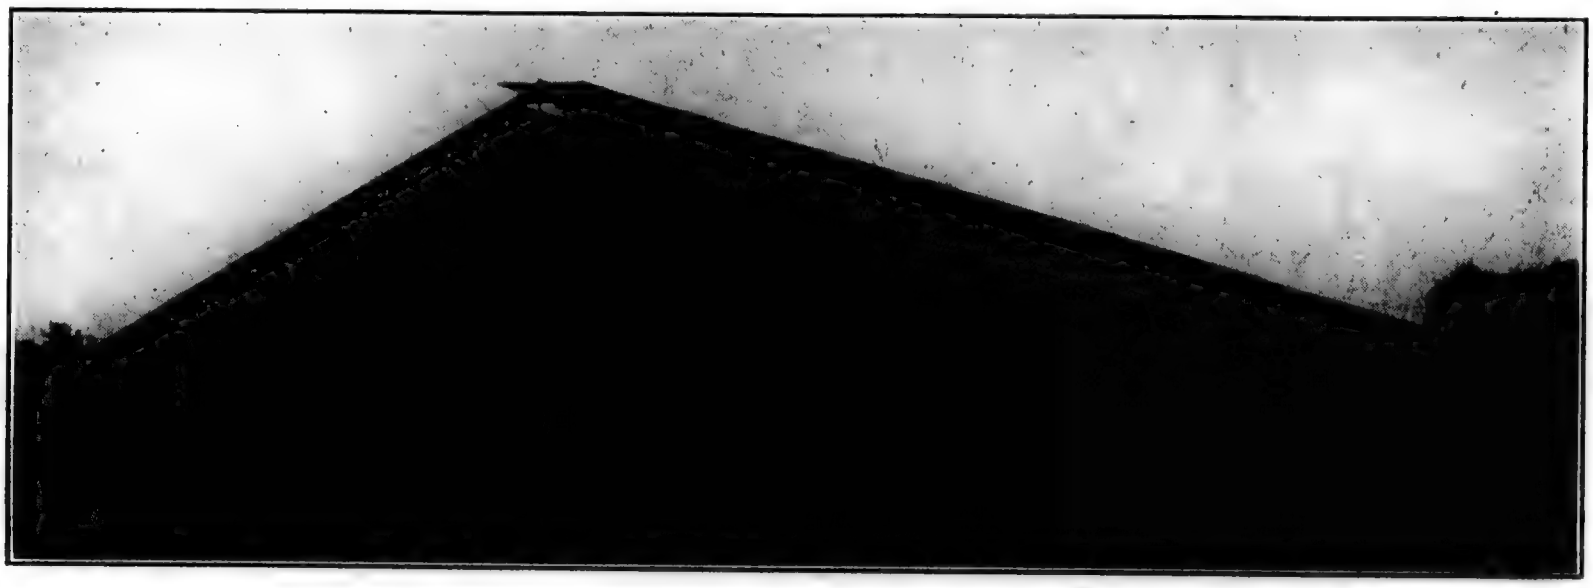
My Dear Phil:—

We have just finished the erection of the two pipe frame houses and I am pleased to say that they are two beautiful houses and a delight to the eye of every visitor.

Yours very truly,

JOS. H. HILL.

You can make up your mind he has good reason for so doing, as Joe has spent a goodly portion of his life in greenhouses, and if "looks count" in determining length of life we hope to build many more houses for Joe in the years to come.



These are built adjoining the range of 4 iron frame houses, 400 feet long, built of our material a few years ago.

LET US HELP YOU plan your addition. Don't wait too long hoping for lower prices; they are not in sight yet. Get busy now and produce flowers while the prices are good.

Write us for sketches and estimates

The Foley Greenhouse Mfg. Co.

3248 West Thirty-first Street. CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

Somebody dubbed this, "Gasser's Rose Mine." Fred Brown, the hustling manager, says figures talk. From what we have heard, some of the figures must have talked right out loud.

We caught our genial friend Coe in the act of "looking after things." His creed is to look after a thing BEFORE it needs looking after.

Important to Convention Goers

Unless the Cleveland Convention is radically different from all others, several of you will slip away and visit some of the greenhouses in the vicinity.

Aside from the Gasser house, which you doubtless have in mind, here are a few, am sure you will want to see, because of the up-to-dateness, not alone of the houses, but their owners. The latter, of course, is the cause of the former.

The Cleveland Florists' Club is generously providing automobiles to take guests to any greenhouse range or other points of interest which any of you may care to visit.

Mr. Merrick, our Cleveland Manager, is Chairman of the Committee. Any time you want to go any place, just drop around at the Lord & Burnham Exhibit, and whoever is in attendance will at once arrange it for you.

What Fred Brown claims for the paying powers of the Gasser Company's rose house is enough in itself to make you want to take a look at such a money maker.
Fred is accountable for its being a big Iron Framer. That is to say, it was his idea, the building of a house of permanency.
30 minutes by motor.

2.

Mrs. Kirchner's range is unique in many ways, not the least of which is a charming flower shop attachment.
Here is a striking example of what a plucky woman can do in establishing a thriving business for her children.
Greenhouses and shop located Riverside Road, West Park. 30 minutes by motor.

When you visit the Lisy house, hope the boss is home. He doesn't claim to be a big grower, but one thing sure, he has a big way of growing.

The Kirchner house is 60 ft. 7 in. wide and 200 feet long. Mrs. K. is the general manager, but her older son is the rustler, with the daughter a close second.

Asher M. Coe, one of the grand old men of the business, was the first to build a 30-foot Iron Frame house in Ohio.

He calls himself a farmer.

If he is, then he farms extensively outside, and intensively inside.

To meet Mr. Coe is to be convinced that life itself is just one of the finest, happiest things going.

45 minutes by motor; a delightful ride.

When it comes to a pipe frame house of moderate size, you can't beat Thomas W. Lisy's, with its giant arch and V-shaped bracings.

Aside from Mr. Lisy knowing how to grow top-notch carnations, he's just such a sound-sensed, sturdy character as makes a fellow feel better for knowing him.

The house is 30 minutes by motor.

Within 25 miles or so of Cleveland we have a goodly number of houses; full particulars about which you can find at our Exhibit, where, be assured, you will be most welcome.

Some people win by driving. Others by leading. While still others by inspiring others. When you are privileged to meet Mrs. Kirchner you will feel the power that inspiration has.

Who wouldn't buy flowers and fixings from a homey shop like this? Nothing elaborate or costly, but a charm that abundantly reflects the rare good taste of the Kirchners.

Interior of Beardsley Park 30-ft. house. Note its roominess. Think of the countless plants it will hold. Compare it in your mind with the narrow, cramped houses so many parks and cemeteries have to get along with.

Why Parks and Cemeteries Should Build 5-Bench Houses

As a comparison, take a 5 and 7-passenger automobile.

No sooner has a man bought one for 5, than he wishes he had a 7.

Then he would have room enough for either.

It's a noticeable fact, however, that he generally rides with all seven seats filled.

With a greenhouse—an 18-footer gives you 3 benches; a 24-footer, 4. A 30-footer, 5, three of which are each 4½ feet wide, which surely is none too wide.

The roof is so high that palms and the like from outside can be put on the three center benches without bumping their heads against the roof.

Being our Semi-Curvilinear construction, the sides are extra high.
No need to point out that advantage to you.

Furthermore, you get a lot more for your money.

That is to say, a 30-foot house costs less in proportion than an 18. In other words, a little more money buys a lot more house.

After saying which, let us add that we go anywhere for business.

Or to talk business.

In your judgment—

What factors would control in a business deal conducted by such a man as R. A. Long, the millionaire lumberman, president of the Long-Bell Lumber Co., chairman of the board of directors of twenty-four subsidiary companies—a man owning twelve sawmills, one hundred eight retail lumber yards and some railroads—president of the R. A. Long Real Estate & Investment Co., and director of the South West National Bank of Commerce and of the Commerce Trust Co., and owning one of the finest office buildings in Kansas City?

Answering this question in the light of results shown from previous deals, you'd say—

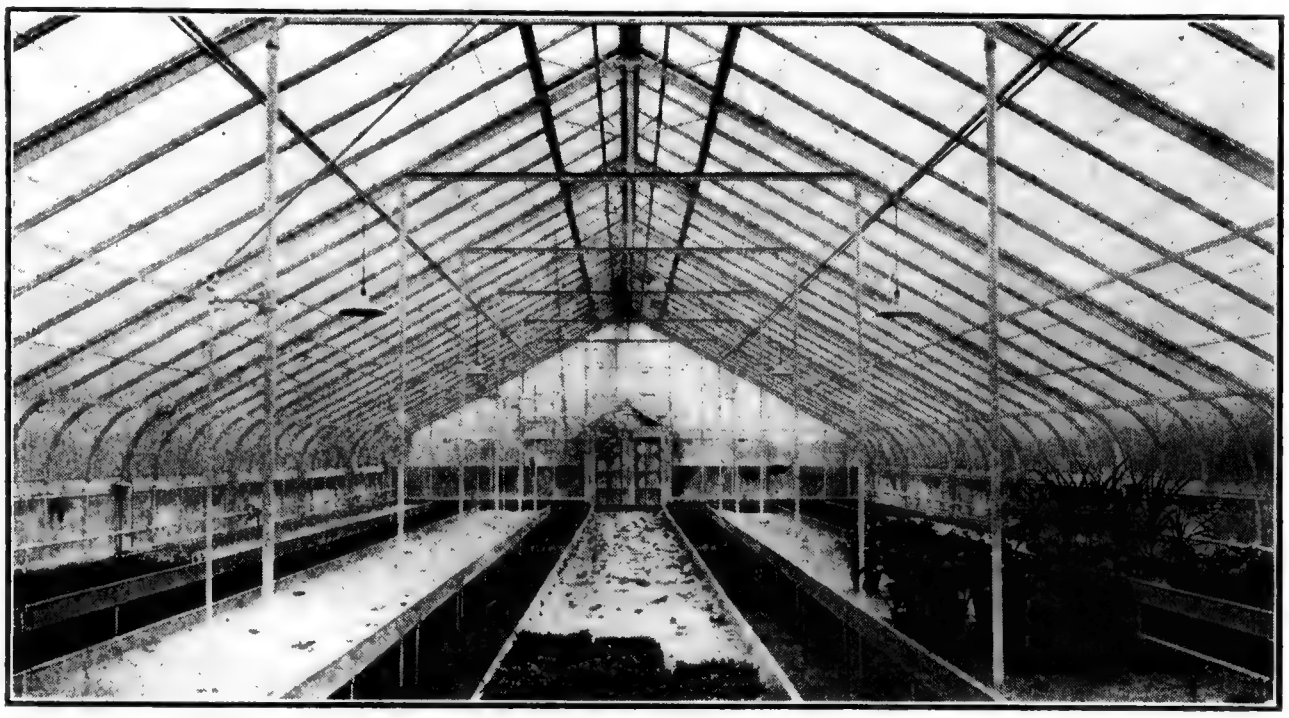
Thorough knowledge of the matter in hand; well balanced judgment tempered by vast experience; awareness of relative values; insistence on the best in material, workmanship and design; faith in the integrity of the company assuming the contract.

With these factors searching, sifting, selecting, discriminating, the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co. was awarded the contract for the erection of a greenhouse on Mr. Long's country estate, Longview Farm, Lees Summit, Mo.

The type selected was the AGMCO 85-foot steel frame, 450 feet long.

Mr. Long trusts his judgment—his friends trust his judgment—and you?

P. L. McKee will meet S. A. F. visitors next week at Hotel Winton, Cleveland.



Why not profit by their example?

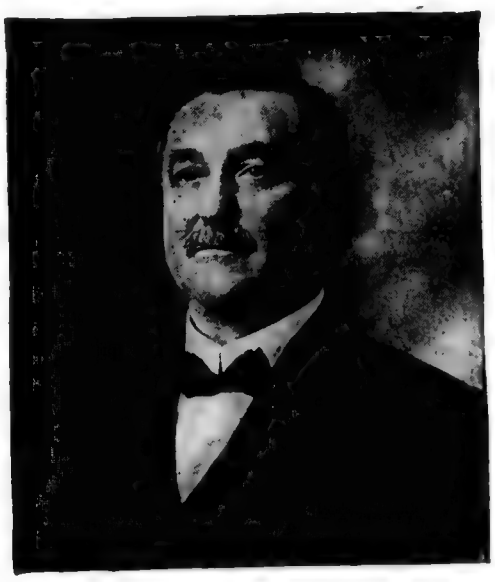
A JOURNAL for FLORISTS, SEEDSMEN and NURSERYMEN



CONVENTION NUMBER

Greenhouse Builders

Note those two big tubes, giving free passage of the burning gases, instead of the usual small ones that choke down the draft, requiring high chimneys, besides requiring frequent cleaning.

Even each of the return flues is not less than 4 inches in inside diameter.

There isn't an inch of dead surface, as the fire box is water surrounded. There is no dead bridge wall. Even the combustion chamber at the rear ends of the tubes, is water surrounded.

No bricking-in to be done, doing away entirely with the usual expensive masonry.

A. L. Miller, President of the S. A. F., Sold Himself an L. & B. Tubular Boiler

When we say that "A. L." sold himself one of our tubular boilers, we mean exactly that.

When we heard he was in the market for a boiler, we just naturally hot-footed it down there.

He received us most courteously, as is his way with visitors; and sort of half looked at the illustrations of the boiler—but he wasn't interested.

Finally, he hit the desk with his hand, and said: "I don't care a whoop how your boiler looks; what I want to know, is what it has done."

"I don't care a hurrah for what your ratings say it will do; I want to know what it has done."

Alright, our man replied; here are the names of a dozen men, right here on Long Island, who have one or more.
Go and see them.
Hear what they have to say about it.
Come to your own conclusions.

So, he did.
That is how he sold himself one of our Tubulars.

The question now is: Should he have a salesman's commission for selling that boiler to himself?
Or should he pay us extra for having called our salesman off, and left him in peace?

Kindly send your answer to our Irvington Office.

Cyclamen Seed

Cyclamen plants are now the most popular house plants in America.

They last longer than any other plants under ordinary care in the home.

In order to supply our customers with the highest grade of Cyclamen Seed, we sent a member of our firm to Europe to visit the world's best Cyclamen seed growers. Our connections are such that we can offer to the trade Cyclamen seed that holds true to color and remains true to the large-flowering type. European climatic conditions are so suited for the development of the seed and holding it true to type that there is safety and confidence in planting Ferd. Fischer's seed. Our seed offered here has a world-wide reputation. American florists have been using it for years. Our grower holds hundreds of recommendations from the best American and European Cyclamen plant specialists. Mr. Ferd. Fischer, who supplies us with this seed, has been in the Cyclamen seed business for many years. Previous to the war he supplied the leading American Cyclamen plant growers and some of the leading seed houses in America. This in itself is a strong recommendation and assurance for every Cyclamen grower to be certain that he gets Cyclamen seeds that are the best and truest to type. Mr. Fischer has introduced some of the foremost varieties, including the Salmon and Red shades that are now favorites of the American grower.

We are the sole agents for Ferd. Fischer, and in ordering through us you secure Ferd. Fischer's most reliable Cyclamen seed.

The following is part of a letter received by Ferd. Fischer from one of the leading American florists' publishing companies:

"The demand for Cyclamen plants has been greatly increased by recent conditions. Then there is the fact that many of your old customers have never had as good success with seeds from other sources as they had with the seeds from you."

YOU SHOULD ORDER GOODS SHIPPED AT ONCE

We want to move all shipments out as early as possible, to prevent congestion at the factory later on. Then too, better freight and express service can be expected now than later on. To those who have already placed orders with us for later delivery, we suggest that you have goods shipped at once and thus insure promptness in delivery at the same time relieving, to a measure, conditions which will probably exist in our factory during the rush season.

The Florists' Review

[illegible] making

The exhibit of the evening consisted of several pots of double cinerarias raised by Frank A. Volz, of Cincinnati, O. These were in violet, blue, lavender and various shades of red. They were sturdy in growth and highly decorative in appearance. Peter Pearson, when called upon by President Kohout for his opinion on the exhibit, said that the plants seemed to be of good habit and, because of the season at which they came, should fill a distinct demand.

A discussion, participated in chiefly by Otto Amling, Peter Pearson and N. J. Wietor, of prices and of ways of educating the public to a wider and stronger demand for flowers, was of interest [illegible] value to all pres[illegible]

LE MARECHAL FOCH

GLADIOLUS

Le Marechal Foch

First-class Certificate Haarlem, August 4th, 1919. Its color is a shade brighter than America, flowers twice as large as America and its habit of growth is like America. It is as early as Halley and multiplies as Halley. In a few years Le Marechal Foch will be grown all over the U. S. A., and when you are talking about Gladioli you will talk about Le Marechal Foch, because it is the best fine pink color, very early, has extra shipping qualities, and every first size bulb gives three and four strcng flower spikes direct out of the bulb.

Notice re Import

Last year we had several shipments for customers in the U. S. A. All have been inspected by the F. H. B. in Washington and no pests at all have been found, so all customers have received the goods in good condition. As the inspection by the F. H. B. is very exact, you have to be sure that you get absolutely sound stuff. We therefore beg to inform you that you cannot order Gladioli everywhere, because the inspection has to be done also on our side very carefully, and although our cultures are absolutely pest free, we hand-select all our bulbs before shipping. If you give us your order you can be sure that you will have no trouble at all, as we know all about inspection, packing and shipping. Bulbs for propagating are duty free.

CANADIAN BUYERS are kindly requested to send their list of wants in Gladioli of 1½-inch and over for lowest price quotation.

For Import License

address the Federal Horticultural Board in Washington, D. C., which gives it freely for propagating bulbs.

We allow 7% discount for cash with order, otherwise three months' credit with good references. Hundred at thousand price.

Besides Le Marechal Foch we are offering the principal commercial varieties, which are very well known, but few grown.

for Austin Originations

Herada—A beautiful opalescent lavender, shading to plum. Very popular.

Gretchen Zang—Soft, melting shade of pink, blending into salmon.

Bertrex—Large white flowers of good substance, the size and form of America.

Evelyn Kirtland—Beautiful shade of rosy pink, darker at edges, shading to shell pink at center.

THE PHILADELPHIA CUT FLOWER CO., in close touch with a critical market, wrote:

"Herada is the most popular flower of the season and is admired by all."

A. F. J. BAUR, the noted carnation breeder and member of the wholesale firm of Baur & Steinkamp, Indianapolis, Ind., wrote:

"Please quote us on Bertrex and Evelyn Kirtland, giving prices on various quantities. Evelyn Kirtland turned out to be what the writer thought. It is the finest pink in existence. Bertrex is an unusually good white. Both should become leaders."

JAMES F. RYCKLIK, florist and grower, of Painesville, Ohio, said:

"Please let me know if you can spare 2500 Gretchen Zang. I had spikes of Gretchen Zang over five feet in height, and with 18 to 26 blossoms."

All the best standard varieties and other "Austin Originations" in our price list. Write for it.

GLOEKLER FLOWER STORE REFRIGERATORS

Gloekler Fixtures in Store of A. W. Smith Co., Pittsburgh.

THE essential feature of a refrigerator for cut flowers is a cold, dry circulation of air. That is the fundamental principle of Gloekler Flower Refrigerators. The stock keeps to its full limit, and at the same time results in a saving of ice. It requires perfect insulation to produce this condition, and the Gloekler method of reinforced cork insulation has been proved by test the only practical way of producing such a result.

And then, the selling quality of the refrigerator—that is a big point for consideration. These refrigerators display flowers so attractively that the flowers almost sell themselves. They are as valuable as an extra salesman in your store. They present an insistent argument to the customer to buy, but in an unobjectionable way. And, after all, the first aim of the florist, and his equipment, is to sell.

Gloekler Refrigerators are made of selected materials, finished to exactly harmonize with your store interior, and completed with our own heavy, attractive hardware.

Many splendid styles and sizes in stock for quick shipment. We build any size or style to order. Any finish.

Our CATALOGUE of FLORISTS' REFRIGERATORS shows flower store interiors in full color. Send for a copy. It's free and it's worth while. Write TODAY.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

RECORD CONVENTION CROWDS CLEVELAND

Both in size of the trade's display and in point of attendance the S. A. F. convention at Cleveland this week exceeds the record set at Chicago in 1912. After a splendid season just past, and facing another full of opportunity, the trade shows prosperity and enthusiasm.

MANY favorable factors have combined to make the thirty-sixth annual convention of the Society of American Florists, which opened at Cleveland August 17, probably the most successful that the organization has ever held. The trade has had its most prosperous season in history. It is looking forward, barring untoward developments, to another season as prosperous. So florists are spending the money they earned last year to journey to meet their fellows in the hope of learning how to handle business next year.

There is need for such mutual consultation and discussion, for the outlook presents problems that florists must solve in order to profit fully from the opportunities ahead. The coal supply, the labor question, problems arising from transportation difficulties, and others as perplexing are among the things that vex this trade. In the face of them, florists from communities rarely represented in convention have come to Cleveland to hold council with their fellows.

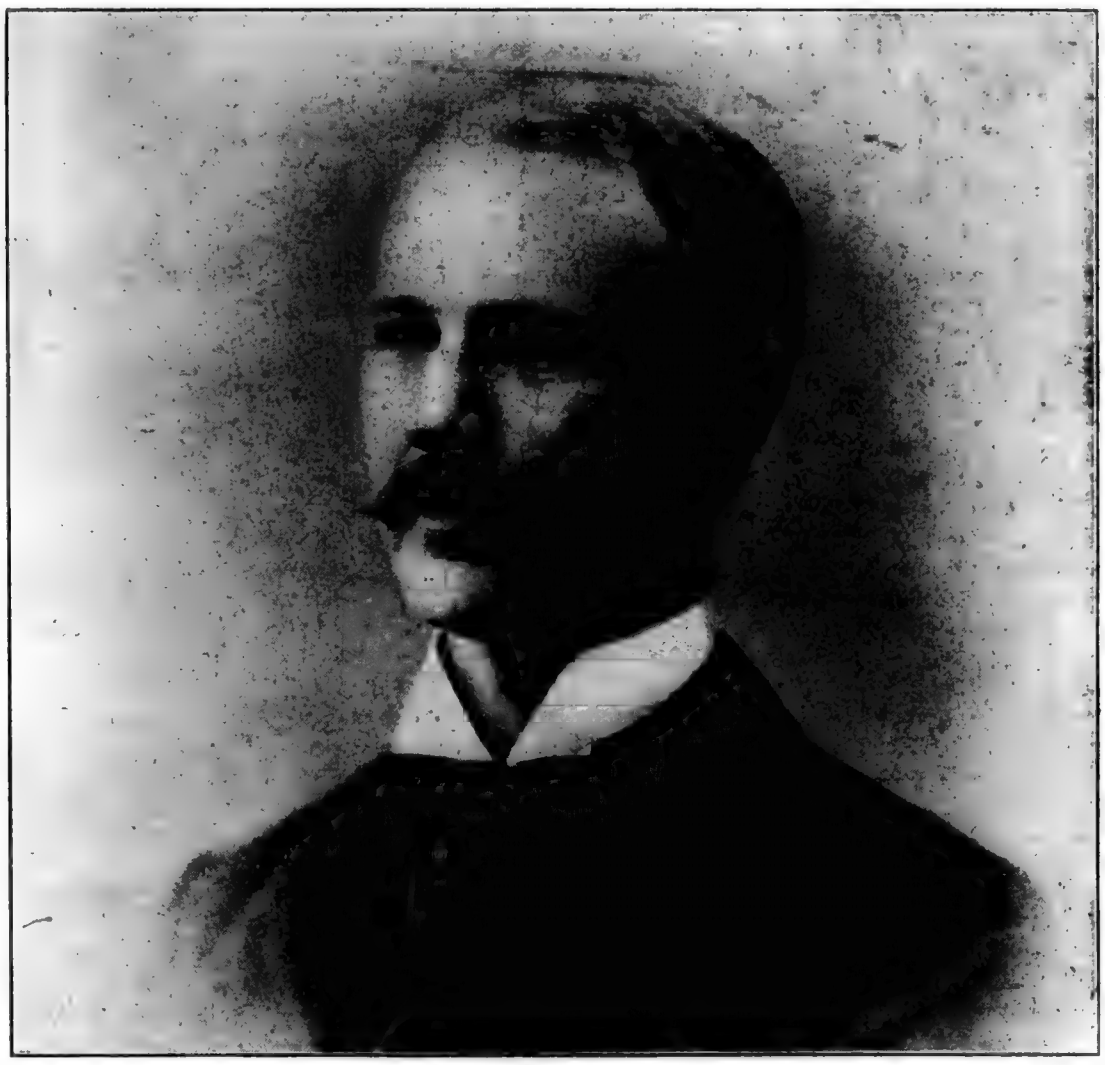
Busy Buying.

It seems, moreover, that many florists have held off placing their orders for merchandise in view of the uncertainties they have been viewing. So this year more buying is being done than was the case last year. The buying, be it remembered, is from the supply houses. The plantsmen have little to sell. But in baskets, ribbons, chiffons and other such supplies, the variety is better today than for some time past. There are imported stocks at this trade's display which were unobtainable since the outbreak of the war.

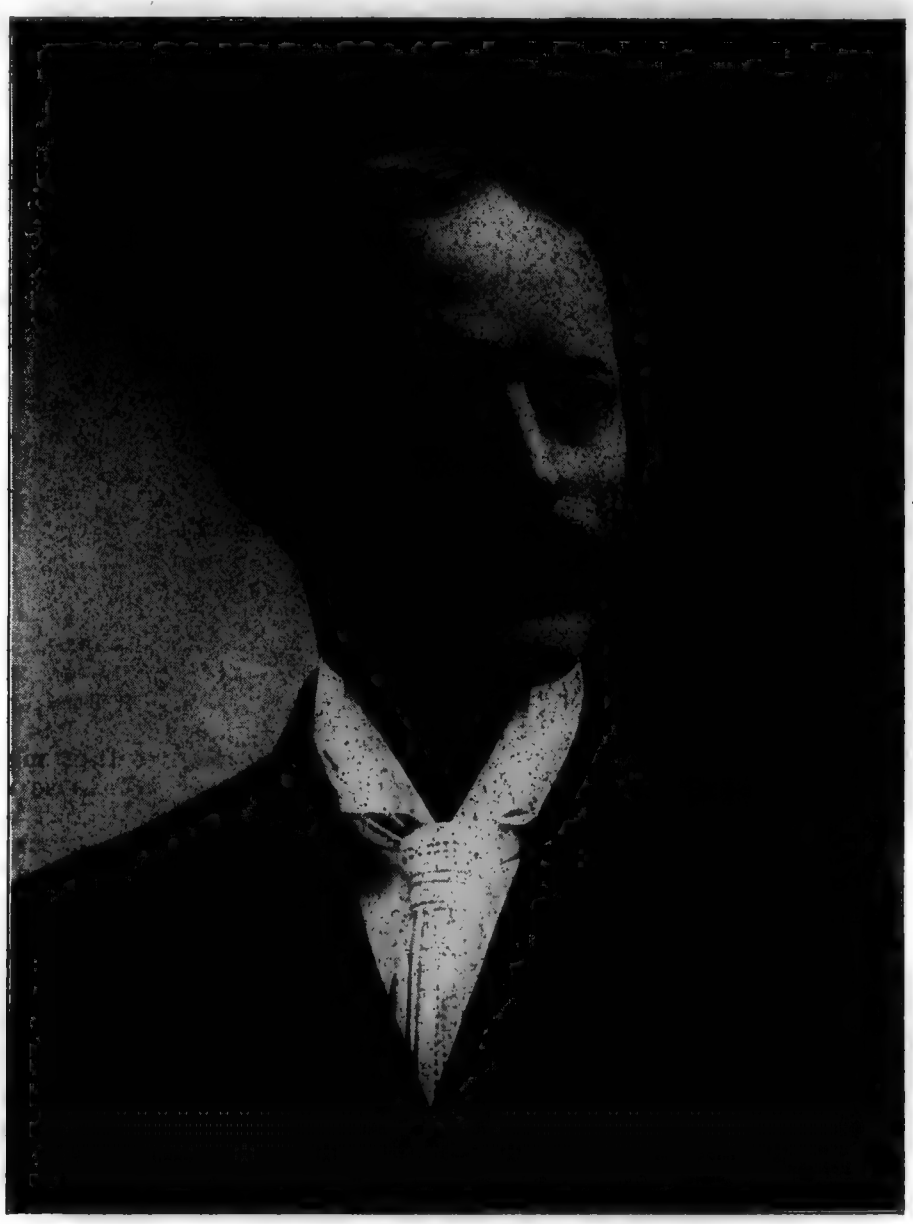
The last two years, when flowers were in so strong demand, have made florists more dependent upon others for supplies. Shipping business has never been so good. This intercommunication and interdependence has brought the trade more closely together than it had been before. So their desire to attend the S. A. F. convention is greater than in the past.

Another big factor that made for a large attendance is the ease of travel to Cleveland from both east and west. Probably the erstwhile sixth city—it is now the fifth—is as central a point for the florists' trade as there is, being about equidistant from the Atlantic seaboard and the central west, the two thickest sections, floriculturally speaking. The eastern states have a bigger representation at this year's convention than at Detroit a year ago. The Mississippi valley states have far more. The southern trade probably was never so much in attendance at a meeting of the S. A. F. north of the Ohio.

To the other attractions must be added that of Cleveland itself. Few cities, if any, posess so many real "live" florists, live not only in their own business, but in connection with the trade as a whole. Moreover, in the state of Ohio are many noted places, where visitors to the convention think it worth their while to stop, either on their way to or from Cleveland. This added inducement doubtless has added a considerable number to the convention register.



The Hall.



From the point of view of the exhibitor, this year's hall is the best in a long time. From the outside, the Ninth Garage doesn't look like a great deal. Those who saw its exterior the week before the convention were dubious as to the possibilities of holding the display there. But the faith and hard work of the Cleveland leaders won the day, and, inside, the hall, though crowded, was quite good for exhibition

THE CONVENTION

For the first time in the history of journalism for the florists' trade, The Review has made use this week of the U. S. Airplane Mail Service in reporting the S. A. F. Convention. The flying time, Cleveland to Chicago, is about three hours.

purposes. First of all, the trucks could drive right up into the convention hall and deposit the heavy cases on the exhibitor's space. There was no danger, either, of spoiling the concrete floor—as there has been of ruining some dance floors at previous conventions—by dragging boxes about. Plantsmen could water their stock all they wished and pay no heed to the surplus moisture underfoot. There are some who believe the unpromising aspect of the exterior of the building and the climb up the incline deterred the unwelcome public from coming in and discouraged the florist from wandering out, since he must then make the grade a second time.

Only one circumstance was criticized—the necessity of holding the meetings away from the convention hall. The absence of space in the garage building and the noise of construction compelled the sessions' being held at the Hotel Hollenden. But whether the exhibition or the meetings suffered in consequence depends upon one's viewpoint.

Secretary Young said more space had been sold than there was at Chicago in 1912, and, if the aisles had not already been pruned once, perhaps more could have been disposed of. There certainly was no surplus space for the inspecting florists.

The Amenities.

The convention opened with the usual amenities. Following the invocation the call to order was by the president of the Cleveland Florists' Club, H. P. Merrick. He introduced Adam Graham, the grand old man of the trade in Cleveland. Mr. Graham spoke for the florist, after which there was the customary official welcome. The S. A. F. has been handed the keys to practically every large city in the country, but seldom in a more hospitable manner than upon the present occasion. The response was by our silver-tongued orator, Mr. Ammann, of Edwardsville.

After the glad-handing was over, Chairman Merrick introduced President Miller, who read the carefully prepared address which appears in full in this issue of The Review. It was referred to a committee for later action.

The report of the secretary and treasurer were followed by those of the finance committee and Washington representative. The minutes of the board of directors were passed over, as were the reports of the state vice-presidents, as the hour was late, the hall in the Hollenden hotel was crowded and there was much routine on the program.

President's Reception.

That time-honored function, the president's reception, though purely informal was amid impressive surroundings, taking place in the Hollenden hotel. President Miller and his official family, assisted by several past presidents, shook hands with a long line of members, after which there was dancing.

Washington Next.

The place for the meeting for the succeeding year is decided during the president's reception, invitations having been extended earlier in the day. Provision is for a ballot, but this time it was a matter of form, as Washington, D. C., was the only place considered.

Officers Elected.

A smaller number gathered at Wednesday morning's session, which assembled at 10 o'clock. William F. Gude opened the proceedings with the report of the tariff and legislation committee, published in full elsewhere in this issue of The Review. Upon motion of Z. D. Blackistone, it was placed on file.

When nominations for the office of president for 1921 were asked for, Herman P. Knoble presented the name of Thomas Roland, Nahant, Mass. W. F. Gude seconded. S. S. Pennock moved the nominations be closed. Philip Breitmeyer and Wallace R. Pierson, in seconding the motion, urged the unanimous election of Mr. Roland, which resulted.

Z. D. Blackistone nominated Adolphus Gude, of Washington, D. C., for vice-president and S. S. Pennock seconded him. Since no other name was presented, he is the unanimous choice of the convention.

George Asmus urged the reëlection of John Young, of New York, as indication of the society's appreciation of his work as secretary. Wm. F. Gude seconded the nomination.

Treasurer J. J. Hess, of Omaha, was also chosen to succeed himself.

For directors, Thomas Joy, of Nashville, Tenn., was nominated by W. W. Gammage; H. G. Berning, of St. Louis, by August Hummert; Carl Hagenburger, of West Mentor, O., by James McLaughlin, and Harry Papworth, of New Orleans, by S. S. Pennock.

Create Committee on Finance.

After the nomination of officers an address on mutual insurance was delivered by F. H. Stearn, of the J. S. Kemper Co., Chicago.

Discussion of the proposed amendments to the S. A. F. by-laws followed. The change inaugurating an audit and finance committee was made.

The treasurer was relieved of the responsibility of the society's investments.

The appropriating power of the executive board was raised from $100 to $1,000.

The number of voting stations in elections was increased from four to five.

Draft on Permanent Fund.

After much frank discussion of the publicity campaign and the result to the society's finances from the appropriations made to it, it was decided to empower the proper officers to effect a loan of $10,000 from the permanent fund to the general fund, to be returned "when circumstances allowed."

A wireless message was read from C. H. Totty, on board the steamship Altic, sending best wishes to the convention.

At the opening of the afternoon session August 18, Robert Pyle, president of the American Rose Society, presented to E. G. Hill the Hubbard gold medal for Rose Columbia. Mr. Hill responded in his usual apt fashion, looking much refreshed by his European journey.

Afternoon for Publicity.

The afternoon of the second day was given over to a discussion of the national publicity campaign. The report of Henry Penn, chairman of the publicity committee, appears in this issue in full. Major P. F. O'Keefe, of Boston, addressed the meeting on the society's publicity in national publications. On this subject a good deal of discussion followed, since it was closely connected with the organization's finances, brought to light by the finance committee's report.

R. S. Latshaw, of the Butterick Publications, New York, also made a striking address on "Publicity."

F. R. Pierson made his report as chairman of the committee on the development of American products and his talk was followed by E. G. Hill. Their purpose was to stir up interest in the subject and receive suggestions on which the committee might work.

Wednesday evening a lecture on retail work was delivered by Max Schling at the Hotel Hollenden, in which he showed by lantern slides what can be done with flowers by a skillful florist.

SECRETARY'S FINANCES.

Included in Secretary Young's report was the financial statement supplementary to the statement which was presented to the executive board at its annual meeting and which appeared also in the society's journal. In commenting on it, the secretary says: "Our expenses have, of course, increased in common with the expenses of all organizations, the old-time dollar now standing for only 50 cents or less, but against this is the increase in the income from membership and the increase in the treasury from all sources."

The statement, which covers the period from January 1 to July 31, 1920, is as follows:

President—Mrs. George Asmus, Chicago.

First Vice-president—Mrs. Wm. F. Gude, Washington, D. C.

Second Vice-president—Miss Martha C. Gunterberg, Chicago.

Secretary—Mrs. Albert M. Herr, Lancaster, Pa.

Treasurer—Miss Perle B. Fulmer, Des Moines, Ia.

NEXT NATIONAL SHOW

MY REPORT will be to cover the activities of the national flower show committee since the convention of 1919, held in Detroit. There was one meeting of our committee held since that time, in New York city March 17, 1920, while the New York spring show was in progress.

After going over places that would be logical for the next national flower show, the city of Cleveland was selected as most desirable, in view of the fact that there is in the course of construction, a few blocks from the place where we are now holding our meeting, a wonderful building with plenty of space available.

Cleveland's Big Building.

The committee has been careful about spending any money or going to any expense whatsoever until we are positive that the building will be completed in time for our exhibition. It perhaps would be surprising to know how few buildings there are in the United States suitable for holding our wonderful show. There should be at least 200,000 square feet of floor space at our command. Then, too, from an advertising point of view, the wonderful possibility of opening a large municipal building with our exhibition would mean much toward financial success.

Our committee has a quorum present for the purpose of ascertaining the exact conditions that exist insofar as the building is concerned. The committee feels positive that it will have no trouble in securing exhibits that will compare favorably with, if not be superior to, anything we have had in the past.

At the meeting held in New York city the American Rose Society and the American Carnation Society were represented, and arrangements were made for both of those organizations to cooperate.

Dates Set for Show.

Easter in 1922 falls on April 16. The committee selected for the opening date of the show Saturday, March 25, and for the closing date Saturday, April 1. The committee has had a preliminary schedule set up and printed in galley form, and as soon as definite arrangements are completed for the building, which we hope will be soon, the preliminary schedule will be mailed broadcast.

The premium list prepared is based on an expenditure of $20,000. This amount, of course, would be greatly reduced by the special premiums that are offered by the various horticultural interests. We know that there is a feeling of impatience on the part of some, but when the gigantic task is considered, and all the necessities that go to making our wonderful exhibition what we always want it to be, the last word in floriculture, the committee must move carefully and cautiously.

Involves Large Expense.

The expense of the last exhibition, held in Philadelphia, was approximately $52,000. This does not include the expense of the exhibitors, which possibly was double that amount. So that it is safe to say that the amount of money that is involved, outside of the value of precious plants, etc., is about $150,000.

Conditions have changed regarding the exhibits. The quarantine act took away a number of the various plants that were formerly a prominent factor in our exhibitions. Then, too, it has taken several years to restock the houses that were closed on account of the war. But if there is no hitch—and appearances seem to indicate that there will be none—we hope to have open for the members of this society and the people of this country the largest exhibition ever held, in one of the finest buildings in America. All of which can only be obtained by the cooperation and help of all those engaged in our noble profession.

THE WM. R. SMITH MEMORIAL.

[The report of William F. Gude, chairman of the committee on memorial to the late William R. Smith, presented at the Cleveland convention August 17.]

Since the last report of your committee on the late William R. Smith's memorial nothing has been done; we have just been marking time, waiting the action of the United States government in having the botanic gardens enlarged or moved. Then we may have a large building erected in memory of the late William R. Smith.

The Burns library, collected by the late William R. Smith and said to be the largest collection of Burnsiana in existence, has now found a permanent home in the beautiful Southern Scottish Rite Temple, on Sixteenth street, a building which cost over $2,000,000 to build. This library occupies a room devoted exclusively to itself. The size of the room is 40x100 feet, furnished in oak throughout. The books are all catalogued and anyone may go there and consult the library any day of the week.

A more fitting tribute to the memory of the late William R. Smith could hardly be found than this. The disposition of this library is really more magnificent than he could have hoped for.

At either end of the room is the following inscription in bronze:

ROBERT BURNS

First Poet Laureate of Freemasonry
The Smith Collection of Burnsiana
Collected and Donated by Wm. R. Smith 32° of Washington, D. C.

We are indeed fortunate in having so splendid a place established in the memory of the late William R. Smith. It is a literary cairn, as he was pleased to call it, erected where it will stand for all times. Indeed, it is said by architects from all over the world that this building is the finest piece of architecture in existence.

LOCAL ARRANGEMENTS.

Cleveland lived up to its reputation as a city of hard-working florists. Those in whose hands the arrangements had been put spared themselves not at all in their efforts to make the convention a success.

F. C. W. Brown, vice-president of the S. A. F., kept pushing with his accustomed zeal and by dint of that trait got the exhibition hall in shape at the appointed time.

Of the general committee of arrangements, Carl Hagenburger, past-president of the Cleveland Florists' Club, was chairman, and he hustled for the S. A. F. just as he does at West Mentor, where the Cleveland cherries grow.

In charge of finance were H. P. Knoble and H. P. Merrick, president of the Florists' Club, and enough is said when it is stated they raised ample funds for the occasion.

Charles Schmidt was the able assistant to Secretary Young in regard to the trade display.

Many sung the praises of James A. McLaughlin when they found how well he had taken care of them in the matter of hotel accommodations. After experiences last year, some were pessimistic regarding possible quarters when they heard of the large attendance. But the able secretary of the local club put his acquaintance with the hotel managers to good avail.

Entertainment was in the hands of Frank Ritzenthaler and Robert Weeks, who did their part well. Decorations were handled by Raymond Kester, John Kirchner and C. W. Kent, and their job was a thorough one. George Bate, as head of the transportation committee, and Charles J. Graham, in charge of the bowling, were also commended on their efforts and results.

One should not overlook the ladies' efforts to make pleasant the stay of the gentler members of the trade from other cities. On the introduction committee of the Ladies' S. A. F. served Mrs. Charles Maynard, Mrs. J. A. Peterson, Mrs. Ella Grant Wilson, Mrs. A. H. Austin and Mrs. Witthuhn. On the general welfare committee were Mrs. H. P. Knoble, Mrs. E. B. George, Mrs. Frank Friedley, Mrs. A. L. Miller and Miss Ida Peterson. The entertainment committee was composed of Mrs. Charles Graham, Mrs. A. M. Herr and Mrs. Philip Foley.

J. C. Neilsen had just returned, with his wife, from a 5,000-mile western trip in behalf of Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, in time to accompany its exhibit to Cleveland.

Real class was given to the entrance of the exhibition hall by the tubbed evergreens from Storrs & Harrison Co., Painesville, O., and the white-clad black man with a cap bearing "Ninth Garage" in gold letters.

Convenience was the keynote, particularly for the motoring florists, who could park their cars on the first floor of the Ninth Garage while they viewed the exhibition upstairs.

The prevailing odor of fertilizer in the exhibition hall, it is maintained, robbed the blooms of their fragrance and the artificial sachet corsages of their perfume.

Secretary John Young said that a conservative count of the space sold was 17,000 square feet, the amount at the big Chicago convention, in 1912. But space sold in those days at 40 cents per square foot, and this year at 60 cents, so that the income was fifty per cent greater.

Nobody in the coal business, it transpired, cared to address the S. A. F. convention on the fuel situation. Whether they did not wish to make public statements or did not dare face an audience of greenhouse men, was not ascertained.

* * *

Alex Lurie, who is at present in Cleveland supervising the city's school gardens, and his partner, W. S. Wells, who came down from Detroit, gave out cards with the advice, "Meet me at the F. T. D. meeting at Indianapolis, October 12 and 13." On the other side was their business address, BluMaize Blossom Shop, Ann Arbor, Mich.

EXHIBITORS AND EXHIBITS

LARGE as it was, the second floor of the Ninth Garage was crowded with trade exhibits. After all spaces had been sold once, allotments were rearranged and aisles narrowed so that more might be accommodated. Even after these additional spaces had been taken, there were more applicants. Secretary Young reported that more space was sold than had been in the big Coliseum at Chicago in 1912. The total was in excess of 17,000 square feet.

The largest areas were covered by the supply houses, who had a lavish assortment of retailers' accessories, in staples and novelties, domestic and imported, fancy and plain, and at all prices. The plantsmen, as a rule, had small displays, when one recalls the great groups of other years. They have not so many to sell as they had then, and their fine specimens are particularly valuable.

The construction companies and boiler manufacturers were not so conspicuous as at other conventions. One greenhouse was set up for inspection, but besides that there was little in mechanical lines. Transportation difficulties and the necessity of keeping the workmen on the erection jobs accounted for their absence.

Probably the average area was smaller than before in the exhibits this year. But the number of firms represented was larger. In addition to those on the convention floor, some others had headquarters, with samples, at one or another hotel.

The exhibits of gladioli lent a decidedly attractive note of color to the hall and drew the notice of all the visitors. The Ohio and Michigan growers showed some fine stock.

Good business was anticipated and ample provision was made to care for it. In some cases the list of those in attendance on an exhibit would be as long as that of the wares shown. But that made it the more interesting.

Brief descriptions of the various exhibits follow:

Acorn Refining Co., Cleveland.

Glaseal is a black glazing compound for greenhouse use put out by the Acorn Refining Co., Cleveland. Nuroof, for gutters and leaky channels, acts as a roof and structural preservative, put on with a brush in semi-plastic form. Boilerseal is an air-proofing material for covering brick settings about boilers, thus aiding combustion. Samples of these materials and of their forms when applied were included in the exhibit.

Alabama Evergreen Exchange, Cleveland.

A rustic shelter decorated with greens and ornamented by carved bark vessels in odd shapes was the exhibit of the Alabama Evergreen Exchange, Cleveland.

American Bulb Co., Chicago.

Named varieties of gladiolus and tulip bulbs and cases of fine Paper Whites and Soleil d'Or were conspicuous in the exhibit of the American Bulb Co., Chicago. Some Godfrey calla, Purity freesia, hyacinth and crocus bulbs also looked well. Baskets and other retailers' supplies occupied several tables, and some pots of well grown rubrum lilies won much notice.

A number of vases of gladioli from the firm's growers attracted much notice by their excellent quality.

Atlantic Machine Mfg. Co., Cleveland.

The Merry Garden auto-cultivator, with its lawn-mower attachment, and cultivating tools, were shown by the Atlantic Machine Mfg. Co., Cleveland. The machine is run by gasoline and has been found useful by those cultivating a fair-sized acreage. It can straddle a 12-inch row or work between 24-inch rows.

W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago.

Some fine tulip bulbs, just from Holland, and excellent hyacinth bulbs were shown by the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, as well as some crocuses and narcissi.

Baum's Home of Flowers, Knoxville, Tenn.

Three huge baskets of gladiolus stalks of the same sort occupied the table of Baum's Home of Flowers, Knoxville, Tenn. They were the Wilhelmina Gude variety, a deep pink fading in the throat to a lighter shade. Plants showing the bulbs were also shown.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia.

Strong as was the showing of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, of baskets, there was still ample room in their large space for a liberal display of the other lines the firm handles, including wreaths, foliage and beaded; dyed grasses and ruscus, favors, chiffons, artificial flowers, etc. Among them were many imported novelties that awakened admiration. In the extensive groups of baskets were ivory, two-tone, rustic and some delicately shaded finishes that appealed to the visitors.

Bergmann-Koropp Co., Chicago.

The brightly colored dyed grasses and foliage of the Bergmann-Koropp Co., Chicago, lightened up one end of the hall. Silvered and tinted tropical ferns were a novelty of the exhibit.

B. S. Blake & Son, Rochester, N. Y.

B. S. Blake & Son showed their new lever loop clips, which act as stake holders for roses, mums, carnations, etc., saving much labor in the greenhouse.

Botanical Nursery Co., Lapeer, Mich.

A white birch tent-frame structure was the attractive setting of the wild flowers exhibited by the Botanical Nursery Co., Lapeer, Mich.

Burlington Willow Ware Shops, Burlington, Ia.

The products of the Burlington Willow Ware Shops, at Burlington, Ia., included a line of icebox and display baskets for use in the flower store. They provide a means of avoiding the bare appearance of the florists' icebox. In them are heavy galvanized liners, so that long use may be had from them. An extensive variety of handle baskets was shown, comprising many tones and styles.

Chicago Printed String Co., Chicago.

Sample rolls of the many different colors and patterns of printed tape used for tying florists' bundles were in the exhibit of the Chicago Printed String Co., Chicago. There were also spools of ribbonette, a higher grade of tape in different colors.

Cohen & Hiller, New York.

Fancy weaves of many sorts composed the novelty ribbons that occupied the tables of Cohen & Hiller, New York. Staple lines of ribbons, chiffons, pins, etc., made a good showing also.

Robert Craig Co., Philadelphia.

In the two large groups of foliage plants from the Robert Craig Co., Philadelphia, were a number of interesting things. All showed excellent culture. Nephrolepis ferns were numerous, as were nicely colored crotons. The kentias and pandanus looked fine. Ficus elastica, begonias and a number of other foliage plants also were worthy of note.

Crowl Fern Co., Millington, Mass.

Hardy cut ferns and mountain laurel, in wreaths and festooning, from the Crowl Fern Co., Millington, Mass., covered one of the pillars of the exhibition hall and an adjoining table.

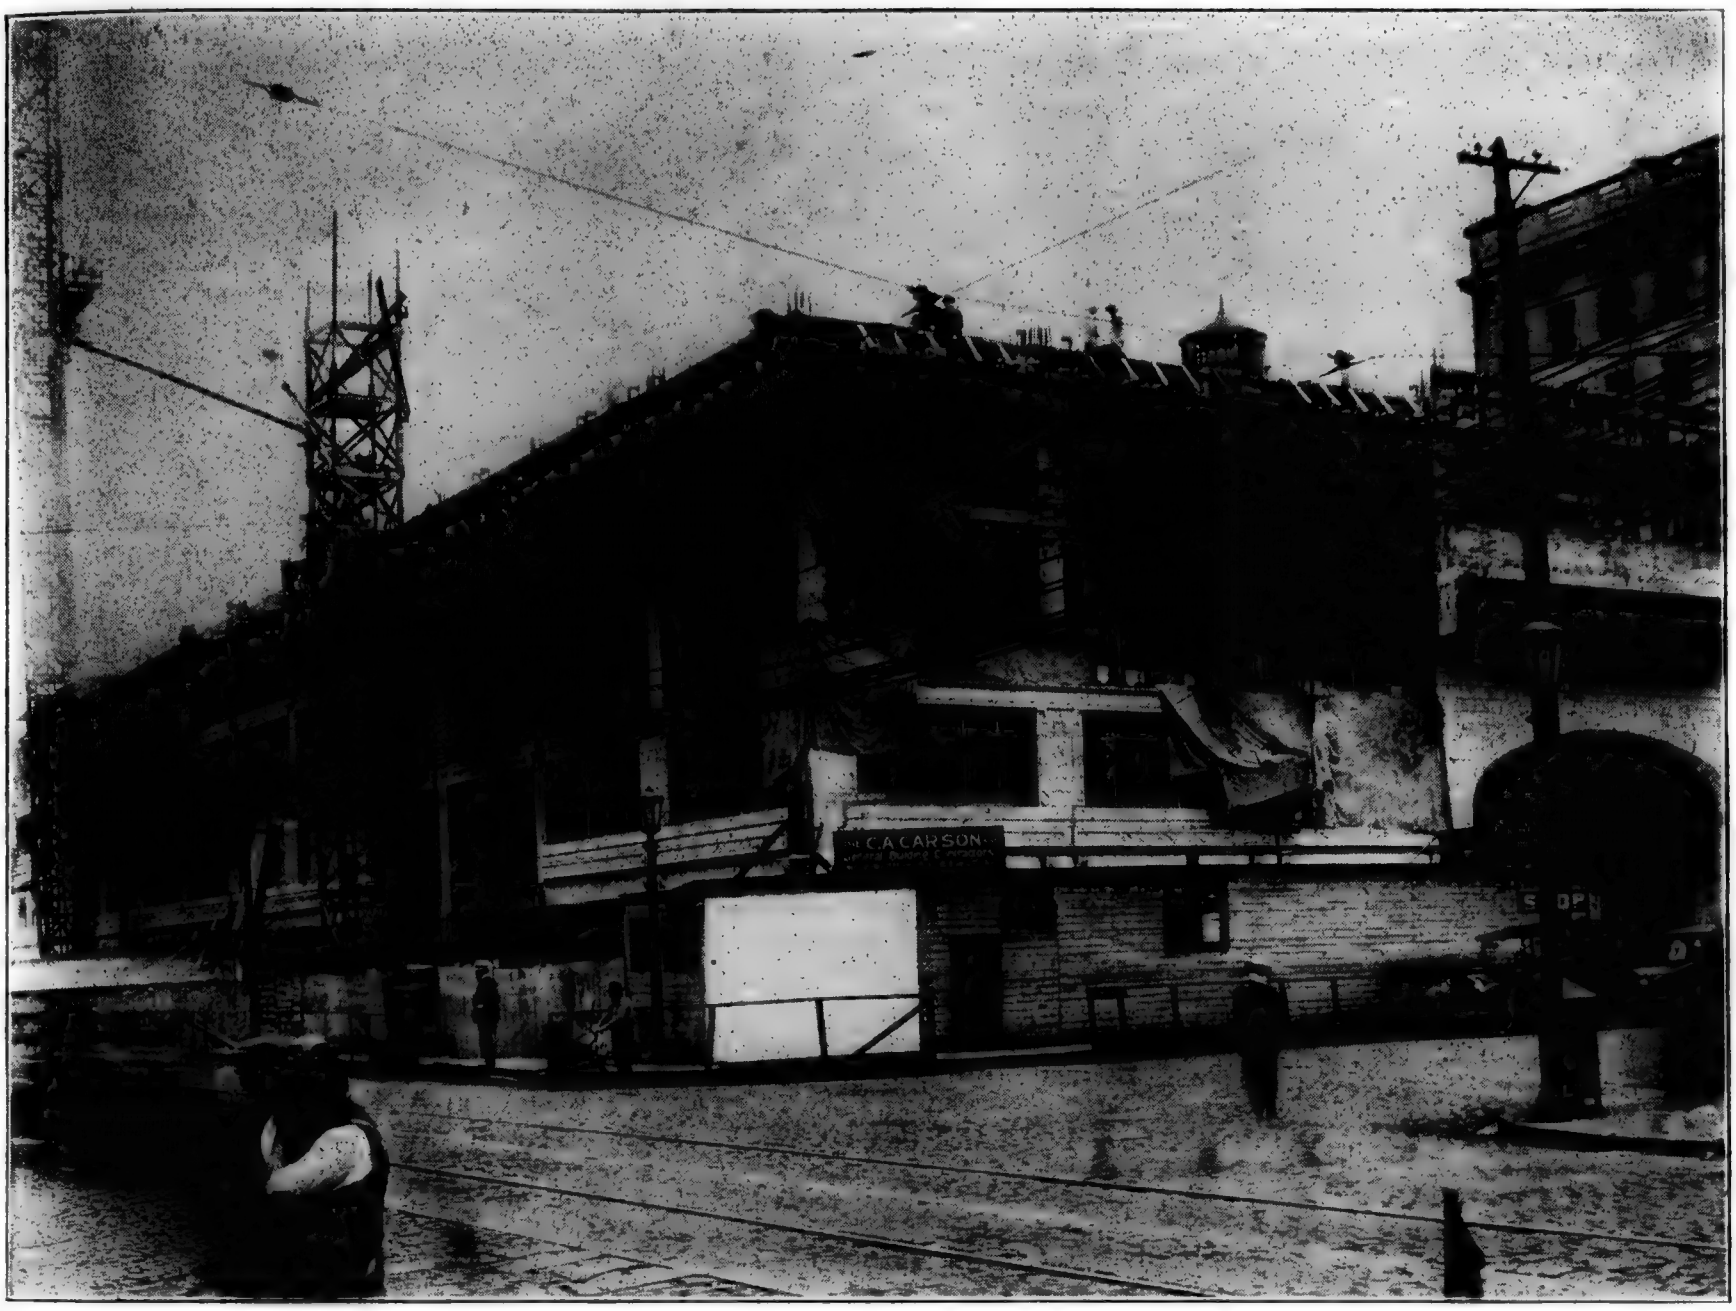
A. T. De La Mare Co., New York.

A table filled with horticultural books and pamphlets constituted the exhibit of the A. T. De La Mare Co., New York.

Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia.

Excellent collections of kentias and crotons were shown by Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia. Handsome specimens of phœnix, ficus and nephrolepis in large sizes were also included. A table of small kentias, selaginellas, adiantum and other ferns also attracted much interest.

Durable Products Co., Cleveland.



Samples of Duroplastic and the glazing gun furnished by the Durable Products Co., Cleveland, were on view, together with excerpts from the trade press regarding the officers of the company, L. M. Greene and Henry Dunker, and other literature for prospective users.

Duro Paper Products Co., Chicago.

Boxes in all the sizes and colors used by florists were exhibited by the Duro Paper Products Co., Chicago.

W. H. Elverson Pottery Co., New Brighton, Pa.

Red pottery in all the sizes in general use among florists was shown by the W. H. Elverson Pottery Co., New Brighton, Pa. Some jardinieres of the same material were in the display. A few of the pots were filled with plants from Carl Hagenburger, West Mentor, Ohio.

Excello Mfg. Co., Cleveland.

3311 MEMBERS

IT IS pleasing to report at this convention that the society made considerable headway in the year just closed. Our membership has increased materially. From August 1, 1919, to August 10, 1920, we have taken in 609 new members. Within the same period we have added 848 to our life membership roll. Our total membership is 3,311, of whom 1,509 are life members. This latter total necessarily includes a number of members who have not yet made good for their 1920 standing, but we have always this problem to contend with when we have occasion to go into statistics. I might say, however, that defections from our membership are less now than they have been for some years. There evidently exists a better feeling in regard to keeping up a membership in the society and it is hoped that in the future our dead wood will materially decrease. Our dues now are $5 per annum, but it has not yet been found that the increase from $3 has been detrimental. A great deal of missionary work has been carried out in the secretary's office and the results are shown in the increase in our membership and particularly in the additions to our life membership list. A few of our state vice-presidents this year have made considerable effort to add to our membership and their results are worthy of our appreciation.

The publicity campaign has again been chief among the society's work for a year. A separate report on this work will, of course, be presented at the convention session devoted largely to the work of the campaign.

The plant quarantine has been a lively issue during the year, but little or nothing has been accomplished of benefit to the florists' trade.

Administration Offices.

The prospect of a material advance in office rental and the need for more working room led last April to our taking office quarters in the Sixth avenue building, in New York, in the part of the building occupied by the new wholesale flower market. This has proved to be a wise move in every way and it brings the offices in closer touch with the trade and especially with florists visiting New York. The offices are headquarters at all times for such visitors and for meeting purposes, both for our own committees and for those of affiliated and auxiliary societies. We have now ample room for our detail work, which, as we progress, necessitates space, and we are able to accomplish more and do it at less expense than was possible in the limited quarters previously occupied.

Since our executive board opened the journal to trade advertising we have been able to place the publication on what from now on promises to be a paying basis. Certainly it is now practically paying its own way, relieving the society of much expense, and all this in spite of the fact that paper, material and labor entering into the cost of publications have at least doubled in the last year. When we consider that our last volume of convention proceedings was produced only at heavy cost and that publication and distribution of a full account of our proceedings under the new order of things now promises to cost us nothing, we gain a good deal. It also serves in the same way for the publication of all informative matter issued from the society. In addition it continues to be a most valuable aid in extending interest in our work and, I believe, arouses considerable interest in our work in keeping up the society's membership.

The trade exhibition this year is another business success to the credit of the society and can be numbered among the largest in our history. The exhibition was well advertised to the trade, both through the trade press and by direct approach, and we may be congratulated upon having an excellent attendance at the convention and an unusually large showing of exhibitors.

GROWERS FORM NATIONAL BODY

NO OPPOSITION was felt to the organization of the National Flower Growers' Association, to which the afternoon of August 19 was devoted on the convention program. Since the meeting of the American Carnation Society last January J. F. Ammann, then chosen temporary secretary, has worked indefatigably in its behalf. F. C. W. Brown, as temporary president, has also been active, and the other members of the executive committee, Wallace R. Pierson, C. E. Gullett and R. C. Kerr, have lent their efforts toward the formation of this highly promising body.

Since its conception, no opposition has developed to the growers' organization. The time, indeed, seems so ripe for it that everyone awaits expectantly for its work, instead of arguing for or against it as in the case of some of the older societies.

Locals Send Delegates.

Where steps have been taken to form local bodies in conformation with the general plan of the organization committee, the following delegates represented their cities:

CHICAGO—W. J. Keimel, Peter Pearson, Paul R. Weiss, George Ball and Joseph Kohout.
ST. LOUIS—W. A. Rowe, W. J. Pilcher, George F. Deutschmann, Jules Bourdet and William Winter.
BOSTON — George Elliott, Alfred Potts, Thomas Roland, Herman Bartsch and S. J. Goddard.
PHILADELPHIA—E. A. Harvey, H. J. Faust, R. A. Craig, J. T. Thompson and James Heacock.
SPRINGFIELD, ILL.—C. E. Gullett, W. J. Hembreiker, F. L. Washburn, Philip J. Daut and James Cole.
CLEVELAND—Carl Hagenburger, Ed. George, S. C. Templin, George Bate and H. P. Knoble.
NEW YORK—A. L. Miller, Joseph Manda, W. R. Pierson, A. M. Henshaw and Robert Simpson.
WESTERN NEW YORK GROWERS' ASSOCIATION—C. F. Trichler, Conrad Galley, C. T. Gunther, B. S. Meyers and H. B. Brookins.
INDIANAPOLIS, IND.—E. H. Mann, A. Rasmussen, A. F. J. Baur, L. E. Hits and Joseph Hill.
PITTSBURGH FLORISTS' AND GARDENERS' CLUB—Edward Blind, Benjamin L. Elliott and J. C. Walley.
KANSAS CITY—Frank Stuppy and P. A. Manson.

There were in addition representatives from Baltimore, Detroit, Washington, Albany, N. Y., Rochester, N. Y., Lancaster, Pa., Milwaukee, Wis., and some other places, as well as a general sprinkling of members of the trade from most parts of the country.

Ammann Reports for Committee.

Secretary Ammann delivered a report for the committee on organization appointed last January. In it he said:

"I shall endeavor in this brief report to summarize the work of your temporary officers, who also constitute the committee on constitution and by-laws, and the sentiment so far as we have been able to gather for or against a national growers' organization. We began immediately after the meeting last January at Chicago to discuss a proposed form of constitution and by-laws through correspondence. After we had this in a fairly tangible form, it was decided to have the chairman, Fred C. W. Brown, call a meeting of the committee for a conference at New York, during the flower show last March. Wallace Pierson was authorized to consult an attorney with reference to the draft, and at his suggestion W. H. Siebrecht, Jr., of New York, was requested to meet with us in the capacity of adviser.

"The meeting was held as scheduled; those present were Mr. Brown, Mr. Pierson and Mr. Ammann. C. E. Gullett and R. C. Kerr were absent, being unavoidably detained at home. Those of the committee present, with Attorney Siebrecht, held two sessions and after due consideration prepared the draft of constitution and by-laws as presented for your consideration.

"It was also agreed by the committee that this draft be submitted to all the trade papers for publication and that several thousand copies be printed for distribution. The secretary was also instructed to have copies of addresses on growers' organization printed for distribution. All this was done in order to get all the information to the growers of the country that was possible before the meeting here to consider the matter of a permanent organization.

"There seemed to be a strong demand already from many parts of the country for some speaker who could appear before a body of growers and give in detail the proposition and advise how to form the local organizations. So it was agreed that the secretary should answer such calls as he could and assist growers everywhere, when desired, to form a temporary local organization. This was done, not always in a personal way, but largely through correspondence, and the results so far have been quite satisfactory.

"Now a word about the sentiment as we found it in the different localities among the leading growers.

"I will say first of all that we really were surprised at so little opposition as has so far developed; usually the opposition is strong against any good reform right from the beginning. I hope this is no bad omen. It may be that those growers who would oppose it were so busy in these present prosperous times making money that they had no time to give thought to this subject. If such is the case, the opposition had no chance to develop.

"There have been really few instances where a grower has come right out against such an organization, but many have insisted on being shown the real benefits to be derived from organizing the growers before they would consent to the use of their names in connection with it. We can say in all fairness that nearly everyone who has expressed himself at all is in favor of organizing and it seems in the opinion of most growers only a question of how best to bring this about. That is what we are here for today—first, to decide whether or not we shall organize, and if so, secondly, how best to do it."

FLORISTS' HAIL ASSOCIATION.

Ammann Becomes President.

The Florists' Hail Association spent a long morning in session in a committee room in the Hotel Hollenden August 18, not adjourning until 1 o'clock. The revision of by-laws was discussed, including a possible increase in membership fees, opportunity to take out larger insurance, a raise in rates of hazardous risks and perhaps a higher assessment. These will come up for action next year, upon recommendation of a committee appointed to consider them. The next assessment will be levied January 1, instead of March 1, 1921.

Officers for next year were elected as follows:

President—J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill.

Vice-president—J. S. Wilson, Des Moines, Ia.

Secretary—John G. Esler, Saddle River, N. J.

Treasurer—James W. Heacock, Wyncote, Pa.

To fill the place made vacant by the resignation of Fred Burki, of Pittsburgh, upon his removal to California, Charles L. Washburn, of Chicago, was elected to serve one year. To fill the remaining two years of the term of E. G. Hill, whose health compels his resignation, Earl Mann, of Richmond, Ind., was chosen.

The directors elected for three years are: J. S. Wilson, Des Moines, Ia.; J. C. Vaughan, Chicago; Julius Roehrs, Rutherford, N. J., and Samuel Murray, Kansas City, Mo.

Secretary's Report.

Secretary John G. Esler stated in his report that despite the efforts of rival associations the Florists' Hail Association in its thirty-third year showed an increase of over 3,000,000 square feet of glass insured and of over $4,000 in the reserve fund. He presented a table showing the glass insured by states and the losses by states, a total of $34,726.51, of which over eighty per cent was paid to florists in five states, as follows: Colorado, $1,421; Kansas, $6,990.92; Missouri, $14,053.10; Ohio, $1,449.45; Texas, $4,466.66.

Other interesting paragraphs in Secretary Esler's report were:

"The total of the association's insurance is equivalent to an insurance on 48,837,418 square feet of glass.

"The number of members at date of closing this report is 1,612.

"The cash balance on hand is $40,202.21, of which $2,440.90 belongs to the reserve fund.

Treasurer's Report.

Treasurer James W. Heacock presented a statement of the association's income and a table of expenditures and one of losses. The summary was as follows:

DEBIT.

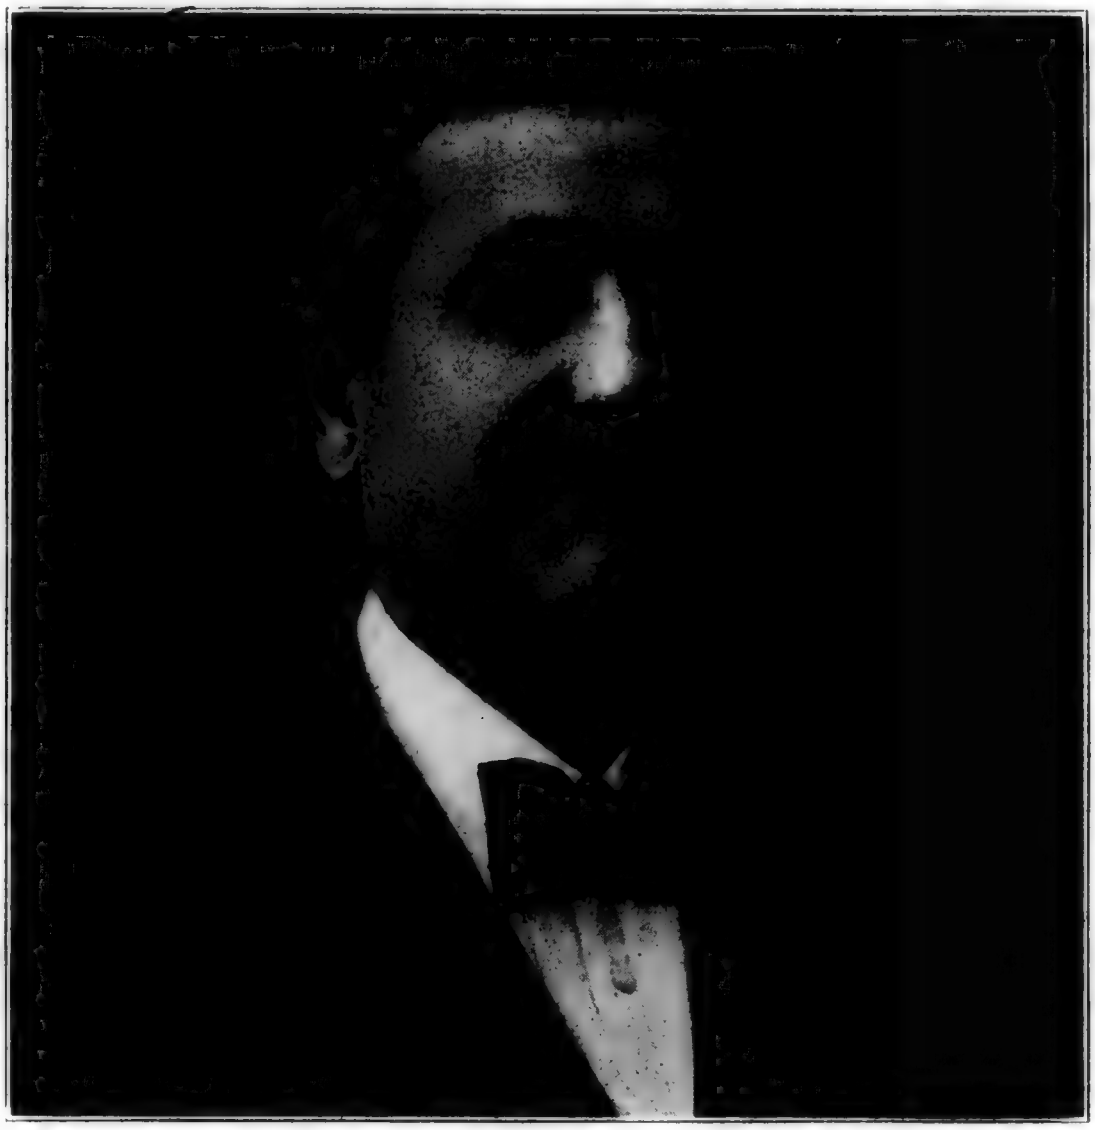
PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS

AFTER an interval of twenty-four years, we are again meeting in the Forest city, Cleveland, one of the most important cities on the Great Lakes. Many of us who were present at the previous meeting are impressed with the marvelous advances made in the city of Cleveland in little less than a quarter of a century, not the least of which is observed in the development of our own industry. Our society, too, has advanced in this period of time. The recorded membership for 1896, the year of the last convention in Cleveland, was in the neighborhood of 800, while today, I believe, we are approaching closely the 3,500 mark, an advance upon which we may surely congratulate ourselves. Still, we have not advanced to the extent that we should have done. I fear that we are somewhat behind the average of trade representation to be found in other industrial organizations, whose interests are not greater than our own.

There are many florists' establishments of conspicuous size not yet represented on our membership roll, but I am sure that in their various territories is scattered a goodly number of our members from whom a word of encouragement would suffice to bring these neighbors into the fold. There is no danger of our becoming too big—we know what it means to be too little. Organization is everything nowadays; without it an industry is sorely handicapped. We all are mindful of the effort we as an organization were called upon to make in the troublous times now happily behind us, to establish our industry as one essential to our existence as a nation.



Organized Power.

While our field of operations was limited by restrictions which, to some extent, hampered us in our work, but which through the resourcefulness of most of us we were able to bear, we might have had much more imposed upon us had it not been for our organization, which made a stand in the interests of our industry and obtained modifications in a procedure which, as proposed, threatened our existence itself. All this is to show the value of, and necessity for, organization. Undoubtedly, all our members are familiar with the work engaged in by the society and this familiarity should enable them to present to a florist who is not a member the desirability of joining with us. The secretary's office accomplishes much through persistent correspondence and in other ways, but it is for our members to make the best of their opportunities for heart to heart talks with their neighbor florists and they are assured that when an application for membership comes in, with the credit for its origin endorsed on the form, the credit is made a matter of record.

Reconstruction Problems.

In the reconstruction of business following the war, it cannot be said that the florists' industry has been much affected, except in the shortening of available help. The scarcity of labor has been and is a serious problem for many of us and doubtless there are many who had arrived at a point where they expected to take things easy from now on, but who have been obliged to get back into harness without thought of relief in the immediate future. The high prices of iron, steel, glass, lumber and other material pertaining to greenhouse building have stood in the way of additions to existing ranges and of the establishment of new ranges, but those of us who must of necessity build, rebuild or expand, may as well meet conditions, for no one can foretell the time when they may change and in the meantime opportunity counts for a good deal. We have not yet reached the apex of the florists' business and, in my opinion, we never can, for there is not any apex to it, at least so far as we can judge at this time. Reconstruction has not, wonderful to remark, hindered the florists; it has only made us adapt ourselves to conditions.

At the last convention our society went on record as opposing Quarantine No. 37. Our opposition to the order was based upon the belief that such a drastic order was unwarranted by conditions as stated and would work injury to our industry. The action of the society has been endorsed by several other organizations interested, to such an extent that there is now organized opposition to the quarantine, opposition not so much to the object of it as to the manner in which it is enforced and the power which the Federal Horticultural Board assumes. The fact that florists can make the best of opportunities presented through stock which is more or less staple in this country is poor argument in favor of this quarantine. It is true that, under certain conditions, growers may bring in limited stock for purposes of propagation, but few growers would risk such importations under the inspection requirements as laid down by the board, requirements which necessitate delays in delivery fatal to most stock. Our committee on tariff and legislation has this matter well in hand and is watching its development closely.

A. L. Miller.

Shows.

The national flower show committee will report at this convention upon the arrangements made for the next national flower show, which it has arranged shall be held in Cleveland in 1922. I am sure I am not encroaching upon its report when I say that its selection of Cleveland for the next show meets with general approval. The enforced interval between these shows, which are of such immense benefit to our industry, has been a matter for regret, but it is hoped that hereafter there will be nothing to prevent their continuance with intervals no longer than absolutely necessary.

With the better classes of the public now educated in the direction of buying the best flowers and plants available, we should now bend

GROWERS FORM NATIONAL BODY

NO OPPOSITION was felt to the organization of the National Flower Growers' Association, to which the afternoon of August 19 was devoted on the convention program. Since the meeting of the American Carnation Society last January J. F. Ammann, then chosen temporary secretary, has worked indefatigably in its behalf. F. C. W. Brown, as temporary president, has also been active, and the other members of the executive committee, Wallace R. Pierson, C. E. Gullett and R. C. Kerr, have lent their efforts toward the formation of this highly promising body.

Since its conception, no opposition has developed to the growers' organization. The time, indeed, seems so ripe for it that everyone awaits expectantly for its work, instead of arguing for or against it as in the case of some of the older societies.

Locals Send Delegates.

Where steps have been taken to form local bodies in conformation with the general plan of the organization committee, the following delegates represented their cities:

CHICAGO—W. J. Keimel, Peter Pearson, Paul E. Weiss, George Ball and Joseph Kohout.
ST. LOUIS—W. A. Rowe, W. J. Pilcher, George F. Deutschmann, Jules Bourdet and William Winter.
BOSTON — George Elliott, Alfred Potts, Thomas Roland, Herman Bartsch and S. J. Goddard.
PHILADELPHIA—E. A. Harvey, H. J. Faust, R. A. Craig, J. T. Thompson and James Heacock.
SPRINGFIELD, ILL.—C. E. Gullett, W. J. Hembreiker, F. L. Washburn, Philip J. Daut and James Cole.
CLEVELAND—Carl Hagenburger, Ed. George, S. C. Templin, George Bate and H. P. Knoble.
NEW YORK—A. L. Miller, Joseph Manda, W. R. Pierson, A. M. Henshaw and Robert Simpson.
WESTERN NEW YORK GROWERS' ASSOCIATION—C. F. Trichler, Conrad Galley, C. T. Gunther, B. S. Meyers and H. B. Brookins.
INDIANAPOLIS, IND.—E. H. Mann, A. Rasmussen, A. F. J. Baur, L. E. Hitz and Joseph Hill.
PITTSBURGH FLORISTS' AND GARDENERS' CLUB—Edward Blind, Benjamin L. Elliott and J. C. Walley.
KANSAS CITY—Frank Stuppy and P. A. Manson.

There were in addition representatives from Baltimore, Detroit, Washington, Albany, N. Y., Rochester, N. Y., Lancaster, Pa., Milwaukee, Wis., and some other places, as well as a general sprinkling of members of the trade from most parts of the country.

Ammann Reports for Committee.

Secretary Ammann delivered a report for the committee on organization appointed last January. In it he said:

"I shall endeavor in this brief report to summarize the work of your temporary officers, who also constitute the committee on constitution and by-laws, and the sentiment so far as we have been able to gather for or against a national growers' organization. We began immediately after the meeting last January at Chicago to discuss a proposed form of constitution and by-laws through correspondence. After we had this in a fairly tangible form, it was decided to have the chairman, Fred C. W. Brown, call a meeting of the committee for a conference at New York, during the flower show last March. Wallace Pierson was authorized to consult an attorney with reference to the draft, and at his suggestion W. H. Siebrecht, Jr., of New York, was requested to meet with us in the capacity of adviser.

"The meeting was held as scheduled; those present were Mr. Brown, Mr. Pierson and Mr. Ammann. C. E. Gullett and R. C. Kerr were absent, being unavoidably detained at home. Those of the committee present, with Attorney Siebrecht, held two sessions and after due consideration prepared the draft of constitution and by-laws as presented for your consideration.

"It was also agreed by the committee that this draft be submitted to all the trade papers for publication and that several thousand copies be printed for distribution. The secretary was also instructed to have copies of addresses on growers' organization printed for distribution. All this was done in order to get all the information to the growers of the country that was possible before the meeting here to consider the matter of a permanent organization.

"There seemed to be a strong demand already from many parts of the country for some speaker who could appear before a body of growers and give in detail the proposition and advise how to form the local organizations. So it was agreed that the secretary should answer such calls as he could and assist growers everywhere, when desired, to form a temporary local organization. This was done, not always in a personal way, but largely through correspondence, and the results so far have been quite satisfactory.

"Now a word about the sentiment as we found it in the different localities among the leading growers.

I hope this is no bad omen. It may be that those growers who would oppose it were so busy in these present prosperous times making money that they had no time to give thought to this subject. If such is the case, the opposition had no chance to develop.

(President of the Society of American Florists.)

Shows.

The national flower show committee will report at this convention upon the arrangements made for the next national flower show, which it has arranged shall be held in Cleveland in 1922. I am sure I am not encroaching upon its report when I say that its selection of Cleveland for the next show meets with general approval. The enforced interval between these shows, which are of such immense benefit to our industry, has been a matter for regret, but it is hoped that hereafter there will be nothing to prevent their continuance with intervals no longer than absolutely necessary.

every effort toward the production of high-grade stock. It used to be that we had misgivings as to how far we could finish our plants so as to keep within the amount we thought we could receive for them. I think now we need have no anxiety in this respect. It is easier to sell the best stock than the poorer grades and it should be our object to produce the best in our power. The hit-or-miss idea of going about things, once so common, is exploded. With proper care there should be no missing and quality should result. Around Christmas and Easter the best material always is taken first and the poorest grades go last of all. To get the full advantage of our labor, we should aim to grow only the highest quality of stock. In these days the cost of fuel ought to be sufficient reminder that we cannot pull through on low-grade products and we must produce high quality to command the prices we are compelled to ask. We should keep our houses working day and night, as the interest on our investments does not cease when houses are empty. An empty house is a decided expense. The florists' industry has taken its place with the biggest industries in the country and we must improve and advance with the times.

Heating Economies.

The fuel situation is particularly grave and occasions us all much worry. A discussion on this subject is on our program for one of our sessions and I hope we may then get a clearer view of the situation. To me it looks as though, in the near future, we shall have to look for a substitute for coal as fuel unless conditions change materially.

All growers, in the last three or four years, have had to look closely to their production cost. In the operation of a range of glass the heating cost is a subject occasioning much thought and in working out conclusions we are left largely to our own theories and experiences, although occasionally, as at our conventions, we find opportunities to discuss with our brethren our pet ideas in regard to economies which we believe we can effect. With many others, I hold the opinion that an impartial investigation of heating installations and methods of operating them, if properly carried out, might be productive of a basic system of heat production, which would entail minimum cost for fuel and would result in maximum efficiency. Through insufficient knowledge many of us suffer fuel wastes which might be avoided. I am quite aware that an investigation such as suggested would, necessarily, be attended with considerable expense and would be beyond individual effort, but perhaps an organization such as the S. A. F. could evolve a plan whereby investigation would become possible and I recommend that a committee of three or more be appointed to consider ways and means for promoting it.

New Organizations.

Since the establishment of our society various other societies have been formed for the advancement of horticulture, mainly along special lines, or in the interests of certain flowers, and some of these organizations are affiliated with our own body. At this convention there is a movement to establish another organization different in character, but with objects, according to its proposed constitution and by-laws, identical with those of our own society. This new organization, if perfected, is to serve as a parent body to a number of local organizations. I refer to the proposed National Flower Growers' Association. Originally, I believe, this association, promoted within our own ranks, was to be formed for the purpose of providing means for obtaining publicity for flowers through the inauguration of local publicity campaigns, a portion of the funds collected for this purpose to be set over to the use of the national publicity campaign for national publicity, just as local organizations in western New York, Texas, St. Louis and one or two other cities are doing. While no discouragement should be given to any such movement, I am of the opinion that none of the functions of our own society should be abrogated. As a national body, we should be able to take care of all the industrial problems likely to arise in the promotion of floriculture commercially.

It is not suggested that local problems cannot best be solved by local bodies, but surely one national or parent body might be considered as sufficient. I am not convinced that the work laid out for the proposed new organization is outside the scope of this, the parent organization, although I am now and always have been in favor of local bodies in affiliation with the S. A. F. Do not let us rock the good old S. A. F. boat any more than is necessary. We are proud of our offspring, specializing as they do along particular lines, but I am not sure that another organization with objects almost identical with our own can do more than split our work and lead to rivalry which in the end might be disastrous to one or both.

Publicity.

The matter of our publicity campaign will be taken up at a later session of this convention and therefore I need not refer to it, although I must express the gratitude I feel, indeed that we all must feel, for the work accomplished and the responsibility assumed by our publicity committee and others who have been actively engaged in it. Without a doubt, our industry generally has derived considerable benefit from the campaign, and in the establishment of our slogan, "Say It with Flowers," we have an asset of incalculable value, provided we are not sparing in our efforts to perpetuate it. In my opinion the time is coming when we shall need even greater publicity than we are now providing; therefore, let us not relax in our publicity work, but rather seek to extend it in every way possible.

Flower Days.

It used to be that Christmas and Easter were the chief flower days for florists; but, in response to our own efforts to advance it, Thanksgiving is now an important day for sales of flowers and Mothers' day business has exceeded our fondest anticipations. We ought to be able to make Memorial day business better than it has been; the public is demanding and buying better stock for this day than was formerly the case and if more such were available a greater business would be done. Florists catering to cemetery trade should take notice of this and give more heed to the quality of their stock; it is to be regretted that the quantity of poor and almost worthless plants offered in some sections for this day should occasion the disgust of would-be buyers. It is possible that through publicity we can establish one or two more flower days, Armistice day, for instance, and later, when our government closes its war period by a declaration of peace, we might also feature Peace day—and what can better symbolize peace than flowers?

Garden Clubs and Gallantry.

The activities of a large number of garden clubs have been closely observed by many of us and we have appreciated the efforts of these organizations to increase interest in floriculture and horticulture. Their influence is widespread and the encouragement they give to amateur gardening deserves all the recognition we can give it. The educative value of their work is great and we must look upon them as valuable aids in our own work looking to the advancement of horticulture in America.

I should not conclude my address without a word in praise of our valuable auxiliary, the Ladies' Society of American Florists. Their efforts to make our conventions attractive to our wives and ladies who accompany us to these gatherings are welcomed by all of us and I hope their activities will continue for many years. It is pleasing to know that the affairs of their organization are in good shape, and they have our best wishes for a happy reunion at this convention.

GUDE ON THE GO

IN ADDITION to the briefer reports on the William R. Smith memorial and the work of the tariff and legislation committee, which are published elsewhere in this issue, William F. Gude gave account of his activities as Washington representative of the S. A. F. In this capacity he has been during the last year, as in previous years, exceedingly busy and wholeheartedly devoted to the society's interests. As he stated, "while the last year has not been as strenuous as the former two or three years, still there was at all times enough to keep your representative out of mischief." Mr. Gude cited enough matters called to his attention to prove his statement beyond possibility of doubt. As he said, all of these were at the time fully treated in the columns of The Review and do not require repetition.

U. S. Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Gude told of his attendance, with the other officers of the S. A. F., at the convention of the United States Chamber of Commerce, at Atlantic City, last October. Following discussion with the Belgian delegates, the services of the S. A. F. were tendered the Belgian mis-

PROGRESS BY PUBLICITY

The report of Henry Penn, chairman of the national publicity committee of the Society of American Florists, submitted to the convention at Cleveland, August 18, 1920.

WHO of us will deny that one of the most important elements of progress in the floral world is the influence of our publicity campaign, an influence quite gratifying in view of the small outlay actually expended? It is a tribute to our craft to have had so many who had the spirit of foresight and generosity to link up and put our slogan, "Say It with Flowers," across, and in such short order as to have already made of it an international byword.

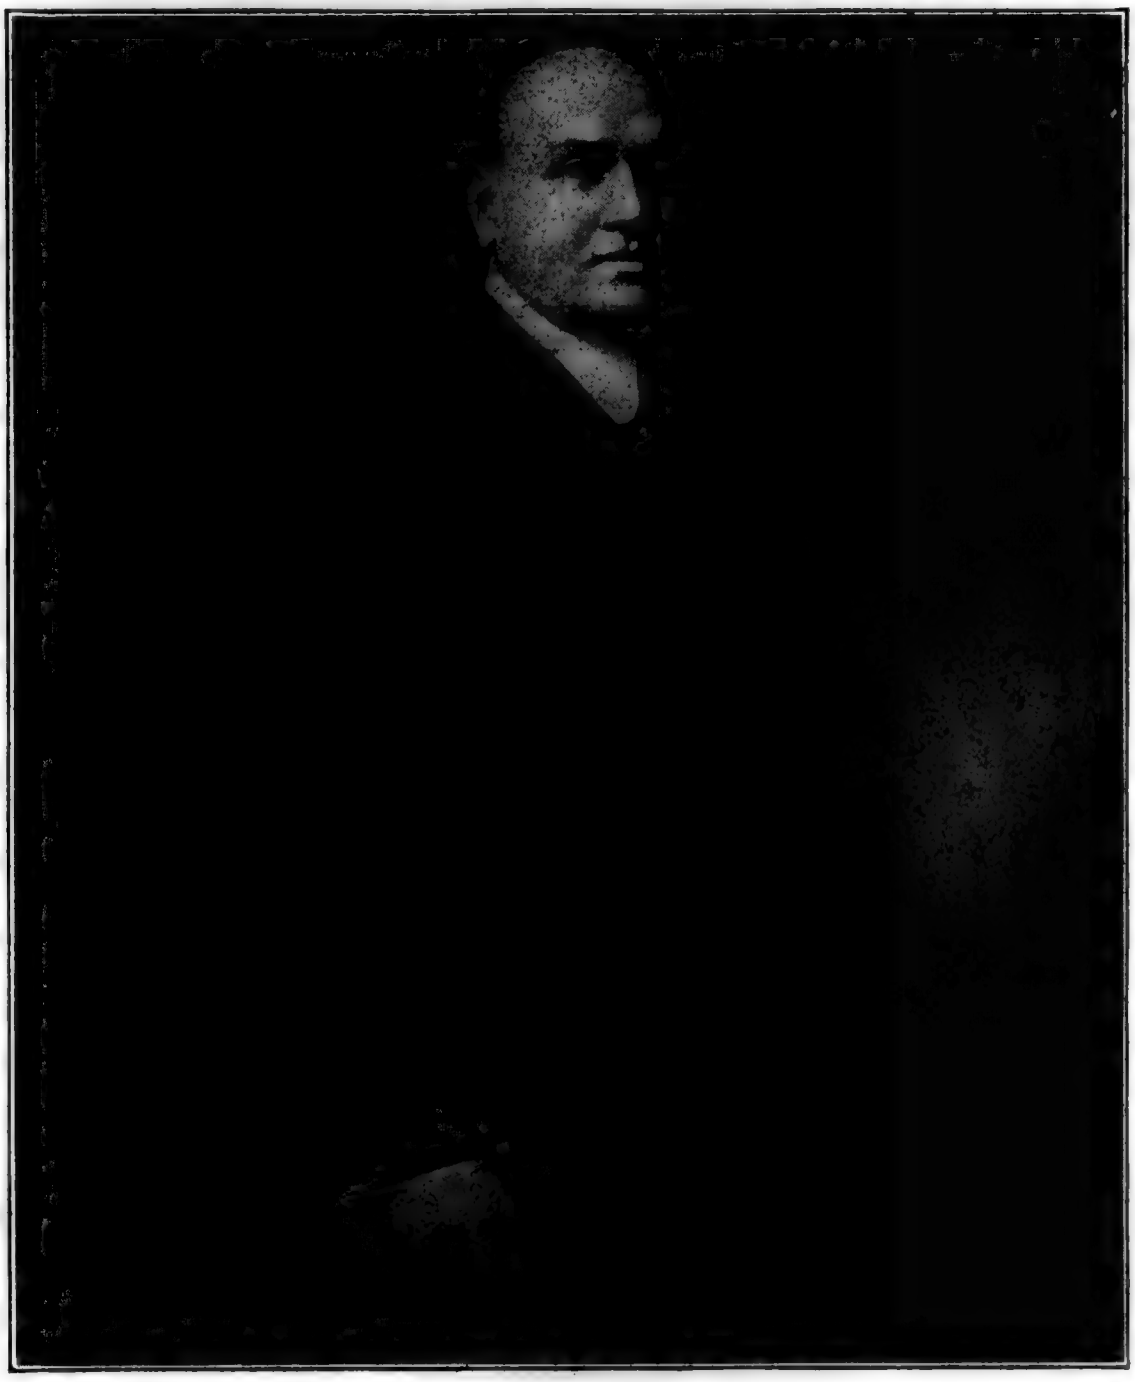
It augurs well for our business that we have been so fortunate as to possess this slogan, but it is necessary to keep it constantly before the world so that its power may continue to grow. All of us have felt its motion already, but we need to speed up a great deal before we can feel satisfied with the growth of our business; we should at the same time progress with our national fund in the same proportion. And, in our analysis of the last two years, the weak spot seems to be that we should continually have to keep waiting for more funds to carry on this most important work.

During the last year advertising space in national mediums has increased in price and your committee would have contracted for space at the old rates had we been assured that the proper amount would be forthcoming. However, under the circumstances, we fared well and no little credit is due to the O'Keefe Advertising Agency, which went as far as it could in this direction and saved our association a great deal.

For Funds.

We have succeeded beyond our own dreams in our national campaign for the small appropriation expended so far, but the members of your committee feel the need of more financial assistance in order to give the impetus to our work for next year and we hope that some plans will be formulated which will make this possible at this time. Everyone acknowledges the importance of this fact; advertising, in order to become efficient, must be used frequently, or else the campaign fails. To do this we should plan to spend at least $100,000 for next year. The florists are sold on the publicity campaign, but we must have a better method of receiving our subscriptions than that which we have used during the last two years, although we are grateful for the start and the success already made.

Sparking for Progress.



Make the convention this year one of the best we ever had, but let the master hand of Fred Ammann's past effort be, in your thoughts, one of the salient points of generosity of purpose which might be emulated by others who would like to serve their profession, so that all may benefit by sharing each other's success. And your national publicity campaign is the way to solve our problem for bigger and better business.

Advertising is the spark of electricity that ignites the gas to make the engine go and with its motion everything else moves. It was this factor which was the weakest part of our business, but, thank the stars, we have opened our eyes to its benefits and we are going to keep it up.

Herbert Casson once said to a convention of automobile salesmen, "You knew how to sell them ten years before you knew how to build them." This was another tribute to the worth of advertising.

Just imagine the beneficial results of national advertising, with a good-sounding, well written advertisement, when the man in Boston reads the same ad as the man in San Francisco or Seattle, and at the same time. All that is needed to put the idea across is to have every florist tie up by advertising in local newspapers and cash in on the announcements. Millions of people are reading these ads at the same time and the florist who makes use of this opportunity is the one who will eventually increase his volume of business and at the same time automatically raise his standards.

Whenever you see an establishment constantly rising, make up your mind it is enlarging its advertising campaign. Shall we go forward? The answer rests with you.

For Success.

John Wanamaker, one of the best merchants of our country and considered an expert of the highest type in advertising, once said: "While I have always recognized that the object of business is to make money in an honorable manner, I have endeavored to remember that the object of life is to do good. Hence, I have been ready to engage in all new enterprises and, without incurring debt, to risk in their promotion the means which I have acquired, provided they seemed to me calculated to advance the general good."

How well this quotation applies to our national publicity campaign, so that all may extol the merits of our slogan, "Say It with Flowers," and sion toward securing importation of plants now barred by Quarantine No. 37. No response, however, was received from the Belgian mission. Again in April Mr. Gude attended the annual meeting of the United States Chamber of Commerce, representing the S. A. F. In this connection Mr. Gude said:

"Since there is so much to be gained by associating with these big interests of all the businesses of the United States of America, florists should be represented. I therefore recommend that the Society of American Florists become an annual member of this great organization. This would give us standing and voting powers at once, by which we could take an active part in all their deliberations and which would be helpful in securing necessary legislation at Washington, D. C., in case it might be necessary. The influence of the United States Chamber of Commerce is powerful indeed and reflects the public sentiment in a most emphatic way, molding congressional action in numberless instances."

Copyrighting the Slogan.

Since there has been at times talk of copyrighting the florists' slogan, Mr. Gude's investigation regarding this matter is of much interest. Concerning it he said:

"November 25, 1919, I received a letter from our secretary, asking me to ascertain from the proper authority whether our slogan, 'Say It with Flowers,' could not be copyrighted. I immediately took up the matter with the Patent office and was told positively that 'Say It with Flowers' could not be copyrighted and that anyone could use that slogan, as it was not a subject for copyright. Anyone could write a piece of music or poetry and have it copyrighted, but not the slogan."

The publicity concerning the high prices charged at Mothers' day was reviewed by Mr. Gude, who quoted the dispatches of the Associated Press, which were given in The Review at the time. Mr. Gude was responsible for a statement counteracting Miss Jarvis's charges, which he obtained by calling on the president and manager of the Associated Press. Mr. Gude remarked, "While we were unfortunately classed as profiteers, this publicity on Mothers' day seemed to have the effect of largely increasing the sale of flowers throughout the length and breadth of the land."

Concluding his report, Mr. Gude commented on the prospects before the trade in an optimistic tone, saying:

"Generally speaking, the outlook for the florists' business at the nation's capital is all that can be expected. All florists, both large and small, are beginning to realize that to be a florist is not to be a slave, but that you can work eight or nine hours and call it a day as well as people in other businesses can. During the past season the Sunday closing of most stores has gone into effect and so far has worked out quite well. So, in general, we believe the florists' business is on the upward trend and particularly in Washington."

ABOUT NO. 37

DURING the last year the committee on tariff and legislation had before it Quarantine No. 37, which excludes almost everything from the United States in the plant, bulb, root and flower line. There were many meetings held by the Federal Horticultural Board on the different subjects. All meetings were largely attended and in most cases delegates at these hearings seemed to be in favor of the quarantine.

Nearly a dozen meetings were held by the Federal Horticultural Board directly affecting in one way or another floriculture and horticulture. Timely notice was given for all of these meetings and they were all largely attended. In some instances where a special quarantine affected a special locality they were more largely attended than others.

S. A. F. Attitude.

Thursday, March 25, a meeting was called of the tariff and legislation committee at the home office of the S. A. F., in New York city. At this meeting the subject of what to do in reference to Quarantine No. 37 was thoroughly gone into from every angle and it was the consensus that, in view of the fact that so many organizations and individuals were in favor of Quarantine No. 37, for the present there was nothing that we could do to alleviate the seeming hardship caused by this regulation.

During the hearings of the Federal Horticultural Board a number of the members of our committee and other florists made the trip to Washington to be present at these hearings to look after the matters in which they were particularly interested. I personally attended many of these meetings and hearings and took part in the discussion whenever it seemed necessary as chairman of the committee on tariff and legislation.

Meeting of Protest.

A conference was held of delegates from fifty or more associations interested in or connected with horticulture at the American Museum of Natural History, New York city, June 15, 1920. F. R. Pierson was delegated by the S. A. F. to attend the conference.

The call for the meeting was sent out by the presidents of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, the Horticultural Society of New York and the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, for the purpose of considering Quarantine No. 37.

This was a most representative gathering. Most of those present were not men in the trade and had no selfish reasons, but were interested in the advancement of horticulture. So it could not be claimed by anyone that it was propaganda or originating from selfish or interest motives.

The general feeling of the meeting was that while those present believed in plant inspection, and even in plant quarantine if necessary, they were opposed to plant exclusion; that the present regulations of the Federal Horticultural Board are so stringent and exacting that they amount to an embargo on the introduction of new plants; and that all unfavorable and unjust conditions could be obviated by reasonable changes in the regulations of the Federal Horticultural Board and by the establishment of ports of entry.

Points of Opposition.

A formal statement was presented by John C. Wister, on behalf of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, which presented in brief five particular grounds on which that organization found the present condition undesirable and that particularly represented the opinion of the conference. The five points were: First, it can find no proof of the necessity for a general quarantine; second, it resents the assumption that plant pests are brought in only on plants; third, it objects to the arbitrary and inconsistent rulings of the Federal Horticultural Board in carrying out the regulations of Quarantine No. 37; fourth, it favors an inspection service at ports of entry as more logical and effective and more desirable than the present arrangement; fifth, it objects to the attitude and action of the Federal Horticultural Board in assuming the tasks not only of the prosecuting attorney against plants and introducers of plants, but also of the judge and jury as well.

It was the unanimous opinion of the meeting that a man versed in plants and their cultivation should be added to the Federal Horticultural Board.

Practical Suggestion.

One suggestion of great practical importance was that the Federal Horticultural Board on the treatment of all quarantine matters should call a conference of all state commissioners of agriculture, so that there would be certain unity of action between the Federal Horticultural Board and the state commissioners of agriculture, who are primarily charged with the state regulations. It was suggested that a conference of state commissioners of agriculture and the Federal Horticultural Board would probably result in a more safe and sane application of the law.

As the result of the general discussion a permanent committee was appointed consisting of the persons representing different organizations at the meeting. An executive committee was appointed as follows: J. Horace McFarland, chairman; William P. Rich, secretary; A. C. Burrage, Massachusetts; E. C. Vick, New York; John C. Wister, Pennsylvania; Frederick C. Cranefield, Wisconsin; Mrs. Francis King, Michigan. The committee will have power to plan further work and to report back to the general committee.

THERE'S A NEW IDEA IN THIS

Synopsis of the address of Major P. F. O'Keefe of the P. F. O'Keefe Advertising Agency, Boston, which has charge of the S. A. F. advertising, delivered at the Cleveland convention August 18.

SINCE the florists began their cooperative advertising campaign back in 1917, a large number of such campaigns have been started. And this has been so, not only because advertising in general, during this period, has been greater proportionally than at any other period, but because the sound economic principle underlying coöperative campaign advertising has been established without any question of doubt.

This principle is particularly applicable to the business of selling flowers, because it is directed toward stimulating and broadening the basic market. Coöperative advertising applies, through publicity, the full powers of cooperative organization. It means the enlarging of business for everybody rather than the artificial stimulation for certain periods of the year or for certain sections or for certain kinds of flowers or for certain kinds of dealers. It does not make more business for one at the expense of another, but for all alike.

We should consider the tremendous extent of the market which lies before us, so that, by using a little greater effort than we have used and by employing a little more courage in our expenditures, we may reap a harvest commensurate with the limits of our market.

The United States, as a people, has found itself. What we have done as a nation, and for the nation during the war, we want, now that the war is over, to do for ourselves. When the country was told to sacrifice and to use thrift in order to raise enough money to go to war, people raised the money and found that the sacrifice amounted to little. Not only did they raise tremendous sums of money through the purchase of Liberty bonds and thrift stamps, but they were also able to purchase an unbelievable number of automobiles, amusements and so on.

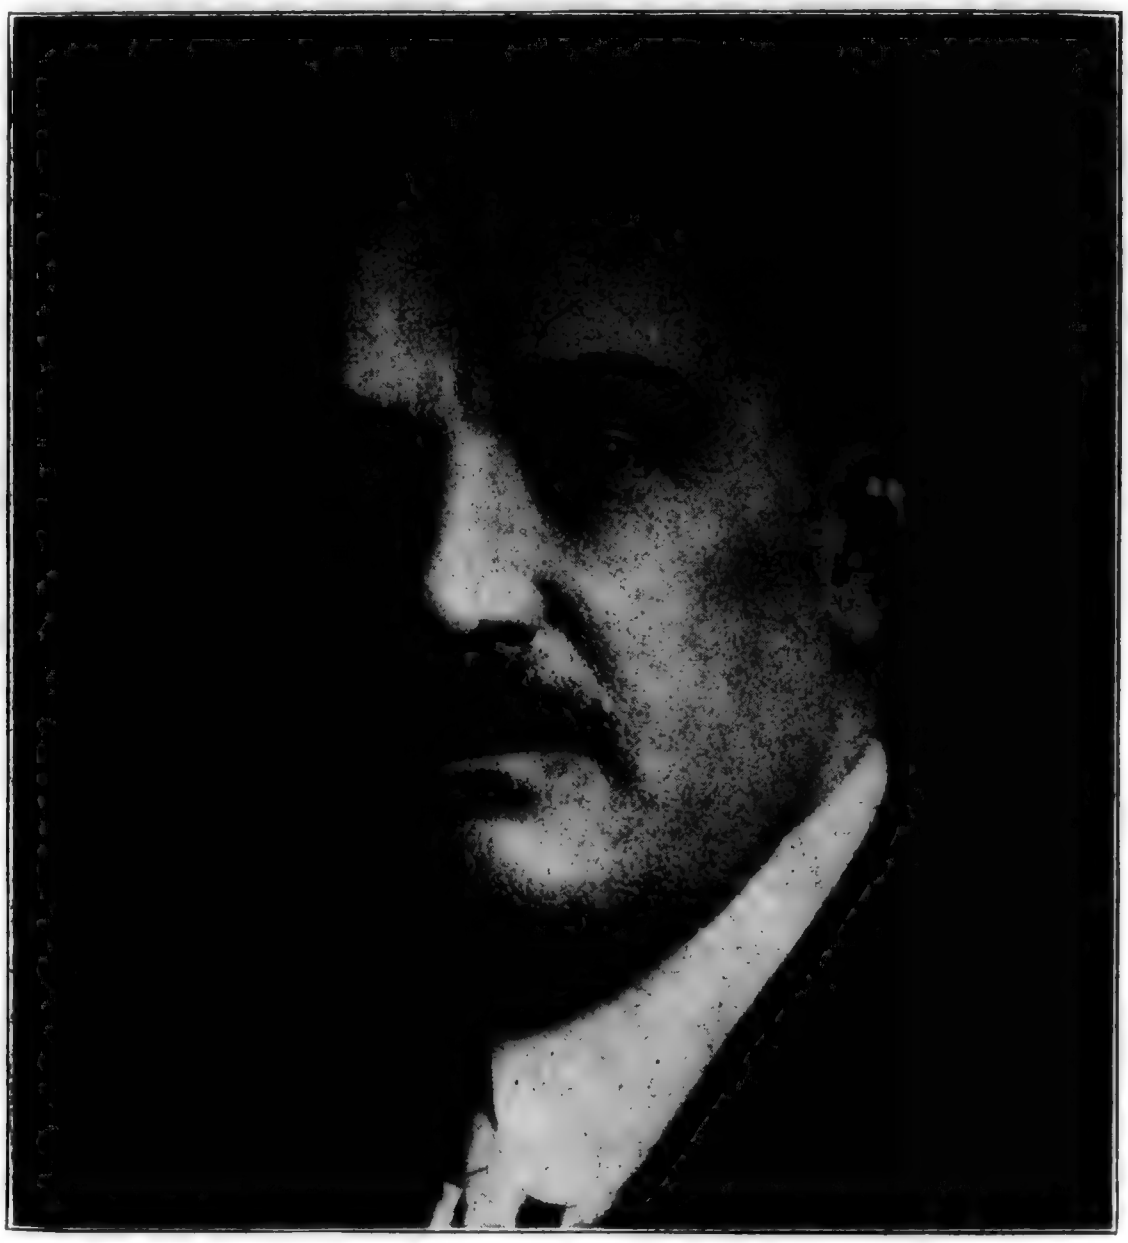
Ready to Pay.

They will continue to purchase; they will continue to surround themselves with luxuries and comforts to make their houses more livable. While it is true that the market is turning from a seller's to a buyer's market, it is also true that the recognition of any big achievement will be quite definite. People are in a receptive mood. They desire to surround themselves with those things which make life more worth living. They know they can pay. They are eager to go ahead with no fear of the future.

We have, as our potential market, 100,000,000 people living within the confines of the United States. What we are chiefly concerned with is the buying power of these people. So it is interesting to see how much money people are earning and what they are doing with it.

How People Spend.

Only a small percentage of the people belong to the wealthy class, it is true. Only two and one-half per cent of the entire population receive an income of over $4,000, only five and one-fourth per cent receive an income of from $2,000 up to $4,000 and only seven per cent receive an income of from $1,000 up to $2,000; the average of eighty-five and one-fourth per cent, which is over three-quarters of the entire population, is receiving only $1,000 or less.



If we did not know other things these figures would make us feel that our resources were so small that only bare necessities could be purchased by the people.

The United States Bureau of Statistics compiled figures in June, 1920, to show the division of the dollar by the average family. According to the bureau's statistics, that average family spent 43 cents out of every dollar for food; 13 cents went for clothing, 18 cents for rent; 5 cents for fuel, heat and light, and 21 cents was thus left for sundries.

I should like you to keep that 21 cents in mind, because it shows the magic of the multiplication table when extended far enough.

We shall show from this 21 cents, in the average family, when multiplied by 20,000,000, that the families of the United States during 1920 purchased $2,000,000,000 worth of automobiles and parts. In addition to that, they consumed $1,000,000,000 worth of candy. And they enjoyed themselves in theaters at a cost of some $900,000,000.

So it is not true, as some would have us believe, that, because 21 cents is all that is left of the dollar, in the case of the average family, with which to buy sundries, in which should be included furniture, shoe shines, face massages, shaves, hair cuts, doctor's bills, donations to the church, fire insurance, life insurance, flowers, theaters and any other things you can think of which are not covered by these four divisions shown, that they would not be able to buy anything else.

Major P. F. O'Keefe.

Custom.

Now, applying these figures to the florists' business, we should find out how much of the business was derived from a real desire on the part of its public to buy flowers and how much from custom. I am informed—though I do not state this as an indisputable fact—that fifty per cent of the florists' business is derived, not from the desire of the people to purchase flowers, but because of the established convention which makes it correct to send flowers in the case of deaths. A number of the florists we talked to stated that the percentage was even higher than that—that it totaled as much as seventy-five per cent—but we believe that fifty per cent would be nearer the mark. So one-half of all the florists' business in the country is not due, as yet, to the desire of the people to use the services of a florist other than for the one purpose of fulfilling the obligation which they feel they owe, as citizens, one to another.

In other words, to put it in figures, according to the Agricultural Record, the total value of cut flowers purchased by retailers per annum amounts to $12,500,000, which would show that $6,000,000 went for the one item of funerals and the balance for the intermittently purchased flowers for other occasions. This estimate, taken from the Department of Agriculture's yearbook of 1912, is the last date on which figures for cut flowers was given and applies only as a fixed selling price of $6 per hundred for roses, $4 per hundred for carnations and $1 per hundred for violets. Later figures are contained in the Department of Agriculture's yearbook for 1919, for plants and cut flowers combined, and show that, during the period from 1899 to 1919, the increase in the value of cut flowers and plants amounted to $16,000,000, the exact figures being $18,000,000 in 1899 and $34,872,000 in 1919. Later figures than these are not available and I would suggest, in passing, that one of the things that we should do is to urge the necessity of proper statistics on the cut flower industry, so that we might base our advertising appropriations on increases.

Other Sources of Revenue.

We will assume that fifty per cent, or one-half of the florists' entire revenue, is derived from only one of these big sources of revenue and that the revenue from this one source has reached as high a figure as it can reach; then it is equally right to assume that our expansion will come from other uses of flowers. Eliminating gifts entirely and eliminating flowers used simply for decorative purposes for the homes and for holidays, we have two other phases of life which are really of more importance to the nation than deaths. When one person dies, two are born, and there are ten marriages which take place for every fourteen deaths.

If it were a custom as deeply rooted in the habits of people to send flowers for a birth as it is now a custom to send them for a death, you can see what an increase would be effected in the florists' business.

Our advertising is for the purpose of reminding people that flowers should rightly be sent on these occasions. During the three years in which we have conducted publicity campaigns, our aim has been to get the slogan "Say It with Flowers" so engraved upon the minds of people that, whenever these happenings occur, they will make flowers their messengers of condolence, joy or good wishes. Our purpose has always been to link flowers with something joyful—to make flowers sing the song of happiness, rather than to have them remind people of the departure of a friend. We have constantly kept in mind that other half of the florists' business, which is the buying of flowers for birthdays, holidays and gifts and which can, with proper expansion, be trebled in the volume of business done.

What We Have Done.

We have carried this message into 8,000,000 homes, which means exerting an influence upon 40,000,000 people. Unfortunately, however, our appropriation has never been large enough to make our appeal as impressive as the task in hand warranted.

What manufacturer, for instance, would feel that he was doing justice to his product, which could be used by 8,000,000 families, or 40,000,000 people, if he expended only one-twelfth of a cent for each person? That is what we did in 1920 with our appropriation of $35,000 for advertising.

And yet, with that twelfth of a cent, we have laid a splendid foundation. Our slogan "Say It with Flowers" is known from coast to coast. It is just beginning to work for us. We have spent three years in placing it in the position to create a market for us. We can go out now and cash in on our efforts, provided we show the people that we take our slogan seriously. They are waiting for us to show them. Now that they know that they should "Say It with Flowers," we should show them just when and how to say it. We have attracted their attention. They are in a receptive mood and one of the greatest calamities which could overtake the florists' business would be to have the florists disappoint—I do not believe that I am putting it too strongly in saying that—the reading public of the United States by not following up the campaigns of the last two years.

Making Flowers a Commodity.

What we want to do is to make flowers a constant commercial commodity and, during the next three years, to double the business. This we believe can be done by working upon the seventy-one per cent of the happenings that take place every day, rather than devoting fifty per cent of our business toward only twenty-nine per cent of the possible sources of revenue. Every day, in the United States, there are approximately 3,000 marriages and 3,841 people die, but 6,301 are born and we still have that vast source of revenue to think about.

Educational campaigns to stimulate the desire on the part of the people for more luxurious and better ways of living are now being conducted with such success that there will be no cessation of such advertising in the magazines and newspapers during 1921. These coöperative campaigns have for their subject bricks, linen, bicycles, cranberries, magnetos, printing, wood wheels, ball bearings, peanuts, milk and the church. So you see there is no limit to the character of the products which can be advertised in this way. So also there is no limit to the scope of publicity in putting across either a commodity or an idea.

I do not believe there is one single florist who will not agree with me, and with the publicity committee, that a cessation of advertising on the part of the florists now would be a calamity. All are agreed that 1921 should see a continuation of publicity for flowers in even larger volume than we have ever seen before. To do justice to the proposition we have in hand will require $100,000, and, in applying this amount of money, we should make up our minds that we are going to spend this amount every year for three consecutive years—$300,000 for advertising for three years! Does that amount of money stagger you? Does it seem possible? Does it make you feel as though another quarter of a million had been added to the overhead of the florists' business?

Then I am going to relieve your minds. I am going to show you that you can spend that amount of money and put back into your business, not only the profits which this advertising would bring you, but also the principal.

Here's the Bright Idea.

This is the plan—one of many, I admit, but one which I think is simple enough and practical enough to appeal to everybody. In order to obtain a fund which will enable us to spend $100,000 a year, we have to obtain first a trust fund of $2,000,000. This trust fund draws interest at the conservative rate of five per cent. We shall not try to get a higher percentage, because we guarantee the return of the principal to each subscriber, at the end of three years, if he desires it.

The subscribers will number 4,000, divided into 500 growers, 500 wholesalers and 3,000 retailers. That makes our 4,000 honor list of men who are in earnest about making the slogan "Say It with Flowers" a really national institution. The slogan itself is now public property. Every florist can use it. Every florist should use it. The more they do so, the more it helps the florists' business. But, to belong to the 4,000, it will be necessary for you to do something to warrant recognition in that gathering.

Your membership in the Florists' Four Thousand will require simply that you loan to your own business a matter of $500, which comes back to you intact at the end of three years, and you have a chance of spending $300,000 in an investment that will give you as big returns as any other project you can think of—and remember that I come from the home of Ponzi and should know what I am talking about.

I will leave to the publicity committee the problem of working out how to bring this message home to the 9,000 retailers and 4,000 growers and wholesalers with such strength that the Florists' Four Thousand will be formed.

NEW ENGLAND SOCIETY NOW.

The Massachusetts Gladiolus Society held a meeting at Boston August 14 and reëlected the old board of officers. They also voted unanimously to change the name of the society to the New England Gladiolus Society. They now have fifty-two active members and the wide field now taken in will bring in many more. A committee on rules and regulations was appointed, consisting of F. E. Spencer, A. L. Stephen, Jelle Roos, John Zeestraten and Irving S. Moody. The initiation fee was fixed at $1 and annual dues at $1.

GLADIOLIANS FOREGATHER

THE GLADIOLUS SHOW.

Largest and Best to Date.

The combined show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, American Gladiolus Society and Massachusetts Gladiolus Society, August 14 and 15, brought out by far the most extensive display of gladioli ever seen in Boston, and the quality, thanks to abundant rainfalls, was superb. Large displays came from New York, including Long Island; Vermont, Maine, New Hampshire, Ohio and other states, also Canada, and it was the opinion of many experts that there was by far the largest and most representative display ever seen in America.

Some of the largest exhibitors were S. E. Spencer, of the Brooklands Gardens, Woburn, Mass.; Madison C. Cooper, Calcium, N. Y.; St. Thomas Horticultural Society, St. Thomas, Ont., whose large display arrived in grand shape; Thomas A. Havemeyer, Brookville, L. I.; C. W. Brown, Ashland, Mass.; Jelle Roos, Concord, Mass.; H. E. Meader, Dover, N. H.; John Zeestraten, East Bridgewater, Mass.; C. F. Fairbanks, Concord, Mass.; E. Gilchrist, West Toronto, Ont.; A. L. Stephen, Waban, Mass.; S. S. Thorpe, Medway, Mass.; W. N. Craig, Brookline, Mass.; Thomas Proctor, Wrentham, Mass.; Robert Hutcheon, Stoughton, Mass.; Peter Robertson, Lexington, Mass.; Blue Hill Nurseries, South Braintree, Mass.; R. R. Walker, Mansfield, Mass.; Mrs. M. B. Hawks, Bennington, Vt.; Thomas Cogger, Melrose, Mass.; W. W. Hays, Waban, Mass.; Eugene Fischer, Jamaica Plain, Mass.; F. E. Bennett, St. Thomas, Ont., and many others.

Some of the Best.

So numerous were the entries that long before noon the large supply of vases and bottles at Horticultural hall was completely exhausted and many flowers could not be staged, while others were badly crowded. The exhibition completely filled Horticultural hall and the annex.

S. E. Spencer had a magnificent display of high-grade flowers. Specially fine were: Rosea superba, Mrs. Dr. Norton, perhaps the most admired variety shown; Herada, May Toy, Mrs. F. Pendleton, Mrs. G. A. Moulton, Crimson Glow, Niagara, Loveliness, Prince of Wales, Pink Perfection, Panama, Myrtle, Penelope, Empress of India, Rouge Torch, Mary Fennell, White Giant, White America and a grand new strain of primulinus with distinctive borderings.

From the Cedar Hill Nursery, Brookville, N. Y., came a beautiful collection, including Alice Tiplady, General Langlois, Muriel, Mrs. Dr. Norton, Byron L. Smith, Gold Measure, Elizabeth, Catherine and Europa.

Jelle Roos made a big display and specially fine were Schwaben, candidum, Electra, Lily Lehman, Maud, Amstel, Ida Van, Minnesota and Frilled Pink.

In the large collection of Thomas Cogger were Pride of Hillegom, Miss Helen Franklin, which is becoming extremely popular; Mrs. D. W. Halliday, Goliath, Crystal White, White America, Myrtle and Mrs. Cogger, a seedling which seems to be a glorified and much improved Myrtle.

George F. Stewart showed a grand specimen of Dipladenia Brearleyana, seven feet high and of proportionate width, beautifully flowered, awarded the Appleton gold medal. He also received a certificate of merit for a seedling dipladenia of splendid quality.

A. C. Burrage's superintendent, Douglas Ecclestone, introduced a novelty in orchid arrangement. The plants, instead of being grouped in a mass with palms and ferns, were each placed on a pedestal of white pine about six feet high, in avenues, so that each specimen could be studied the better. The idea is one worthy of repetition at other shows, if space will permit. A silver medal was awarded to Brassocattleya Ilene, and first-class certificate to Læliocattleya Lustre Magnifica, Cattleya Hardyana alba, of which many plants were shown, and Cattleya Dupreana superba. Some other specially fine things shown were Cattleyas Kienastiana, Lord Rothschild, aurea, gigas, Hester; Brassocattleyas Maron, Veitchii and Ilene; Læliocattleyas Schultziana, Dominiana, Beatrice and callistoglossa, also many lælias, miltonias and cypripediums.

There was a fine show of fruits and vegetables. For twelve varieties of vegetables arranged for effect prizes went to W. N. Craig, Hillcrest Gardens and James Donald.

In addition to gladioli, many dahlias were shown at the exhibition and the excessive heat did not prevent crowds of visitors from attending. W. N. C.

"CANADIAN FLORISTS" NOW

"COUSINS" CHANGE NAME.

Old Title Misnomer.

At the closing session of the Canadian Horticultural Association, which held its annual convention at Hamilton, Ont., last week, it was decided to change the title, the members being of the opinion that the word "Horticultural" is too broad to fit with sufficient accuracy a body composed as this one is. The selection of a new name, however, was not so easy as it seemed to those who are only growers or retailers. The suggestion that the organization become, simply, the Canadian Florists' Association was not approved by those who are gardeners and, in deference to them, the title finally adopted is Canadian Florists' and Gardeners' Association.

Officers Elected.

The following officers were elected:

President—W. E. Groves, of Hamilton.

Vice-presidents—C. J. Hay, of Brockville, and F. D. Clark, of Toronto.

Secretary-treasurer—H. J. Eddy, of Montreal.

Executive commitee for three years—W. H. Gray, of Dundas; A. Terrill, of Calgary, and H. Simpson, of Toronto.

The location of next year's convention will be decided by the executive committee, of which the officers are members.

Live Trade Topics.

Coöperation and service were the keynotes of the address of S. McFadden, of S. Toddy & Son, Toronto. Speaking on the topic of "The Retail Florist's Business," Mr. McFadden emphasized that more was expected of the retail florist than of the ordinary merchant, as he must cultivate the qualities and tastes of an artist as well as those of a business man. Greater coöperation with their fellow tradesmen and service to the public were necessary for the full development of the florists' business, the speaker stated. A custom which the speaker urged should be discontinued was the granting of large discounts to customers. This was injurious to the business, he stated.

In the absence of Arthur Gibson, Chief, Division of Field Crop and Garden Insects, Ottawa, W. A. Ross, of the Dominion Branch of Entomology, Vineland, read a paper on "Insect Pests." Four of the most commonly known insects were dealt with by the paper. Formulas for the control of each were recommended.

The Florida fern cutter, now quite commonly known in Canada, was not discovered until 1915, and caused serious damage to ferns. Its growth is readily controlled by spraying. An insect which is probably one of our most destructive greenhouse pests is the greenhouse leaf tyer. Its destructive work extends to all the favorite species of plant life. Striking evidence of the damage wrought by the chrysanthemum and rose midge was obtained. Last year, Mr. Ross stated, in one greenhouse alone over $12,000 of damage was done by the chrysanthemum midge. The rose midge is found to be difficult to control; a tobacco dust coating on the bed has been found as effective as any known protectives, the speaker concluded.

A Recess.

A pleasing feature of the convention took place immediately following the adjournment of Wednesday morning's session, when the ladies in attendance were motored down to the home of Mr.

Major John Connon.

(Treasurer Hamilton Convention Committee.)

and Mrs. J. W. Beaumont, Breezy Hill Floral Nurseries, Stony Creek, where they were guests at luncheon, and taken over Mr. Beaumont's extensive grounds before leaving for the convention picnic, which was held later on Wednesday afternoon at the establishment of Ofield & Son, Grimsby.

W. H. Gray, of Dundas, on "Foreign Importations," was the first speaker Thursday morning at the fifth session of the association. In the course of his interesting and helpful paper Mr. Gray paid particular attention to European importations. Speaking of the difficulties encountered in importing, he stated one of the main difficulties was the lack of knowledge on the part of steamship and railroad employees with regard to bulbs. As a remedy to this he urged the adoption of organized and coöperative efforts for the betterment of the conditions of importation.

"Foreign Importations, with Special Attention to the Retail Dealer," was the subject of the paper by W. W. Gammage, of London. Mr. Gammage stated that though it still is necessary to import many varieties of flowers from the United States, thus increasing prices through transportation, the articles should be kept before the public at all times, in order to insure the success of the business. "Let us produce more and at the same time hold what we have," he advocated, "and thus increase trade."

Thursday afternoon the ladies were the guests of Mrs. Shearer on the lawn of the home of W. A. Wood in Ancaster.

Thursday afternoon F. D. Clark read a paper on "Private Gardening."

The convention concluded Thursday evening, when a banquet was held at the Royal Connaught hotel, at which E. B. Hamilton was toastmaster. "Our Guests from Across the Line" was proposed by J. H. Dunlop, of Toronto, and responded to by Roman J. Irwin, of New York. "The Canadian Florists' and Gardeners' Association" was proposed by Prof. Macoun, of Ottawa, and responded to by James McKenna, of Montreal. W. W. Gammage, of London, proposed "Sister Societies," to which W. F. Gude, of Washington; Mack Echling, H. Dillemuth, W. H. Gray and C. A. Smith responded. Silas S. McFadden, of Toronto, proposed "The Ladies," and the response was by W. C. Hall, of Montreal.

A life membership certificate, a traveling bag and a fountain pen were presented to E. B. Hamilton, the retiring president.

RETAILERS REORGANIZE.

Under Wing of the C. F. & G. A.

The Canadian Retail Florists' Association held its annual meeting during the convention of the Canadian Horticultural Association at Hamilton last week and decided to disband as a separate organization and to form a section of the Canadian Florists' and Gardeners' Association. The following officers were elected:

President—George M. Geraghty, of Toronto.

Vice-president—Victor MacAlpine, of Sudbury.

Secretary—Silas A. McFadden, of Toronto.

Treasurer—Mrs. Percy Waters, of Toronto.

Directors—A. Terrill, of Calgary; A.

King, of Winnipeg; F. G. Dicks, of London; F. B. Smith, of Hamilton; W. C. Hall, of Montreal; H. G. Dillemuth, of Toronto, and J. J. Higgins, of Toronto.

The organization, in its new form, has aspirations to be to the retail florists' business in Canada what the F. T. D. is to the trade in the United States.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

There is little change in flower market conditions. The demand is exceedingly weak and the supply, although hardly abundant, is much greater than the demand.

Gladioli and asters are the chief arrivals and in quanity such as to make remunerative prices impossible. The finer gladioli, such as America, Panama, Pendleton and similar varieties bring occasionally 50 cents per dozen, but inferiors go at five bunches for $1 or even less. The quality of the asters is not of the best and clearances are made quite frequently at eight and ten bunches for $1, while a few good bunches bring 25 cents per bunch.

Roses are not plentiful and move fairly well at the prices quoted last week. The quality is poor throughout and the stock shows the effect of the close, muggy weather experienced through many days.

There are practically no carnations, except a few from field-planted stock.

White lilies are abundant and clearances hard to make. The prices have dropped to a range of $4 to $6 per hundred. Lily of the valley is in short supply and the quality is below normal.

There are not many cattleyas, nor is the demand strong for them. About $50 to $150 per hundred is the range of prices for the better grades.

There is an immense supply of herbaceous material, much of which is moved only with difficulty.

Various Notes.

C. H. Totty, of Madison, N. J., was expected to arrive home August 17 or 18.

Mrs. A. M. Henshaw, with Mrs. Wallace R. Pierson, of Cromwell, Conn., started for Cleveland by automobile, intending to stop a day in Pittsburgh en route. In Cleveland they expected to be joined by their husbands.

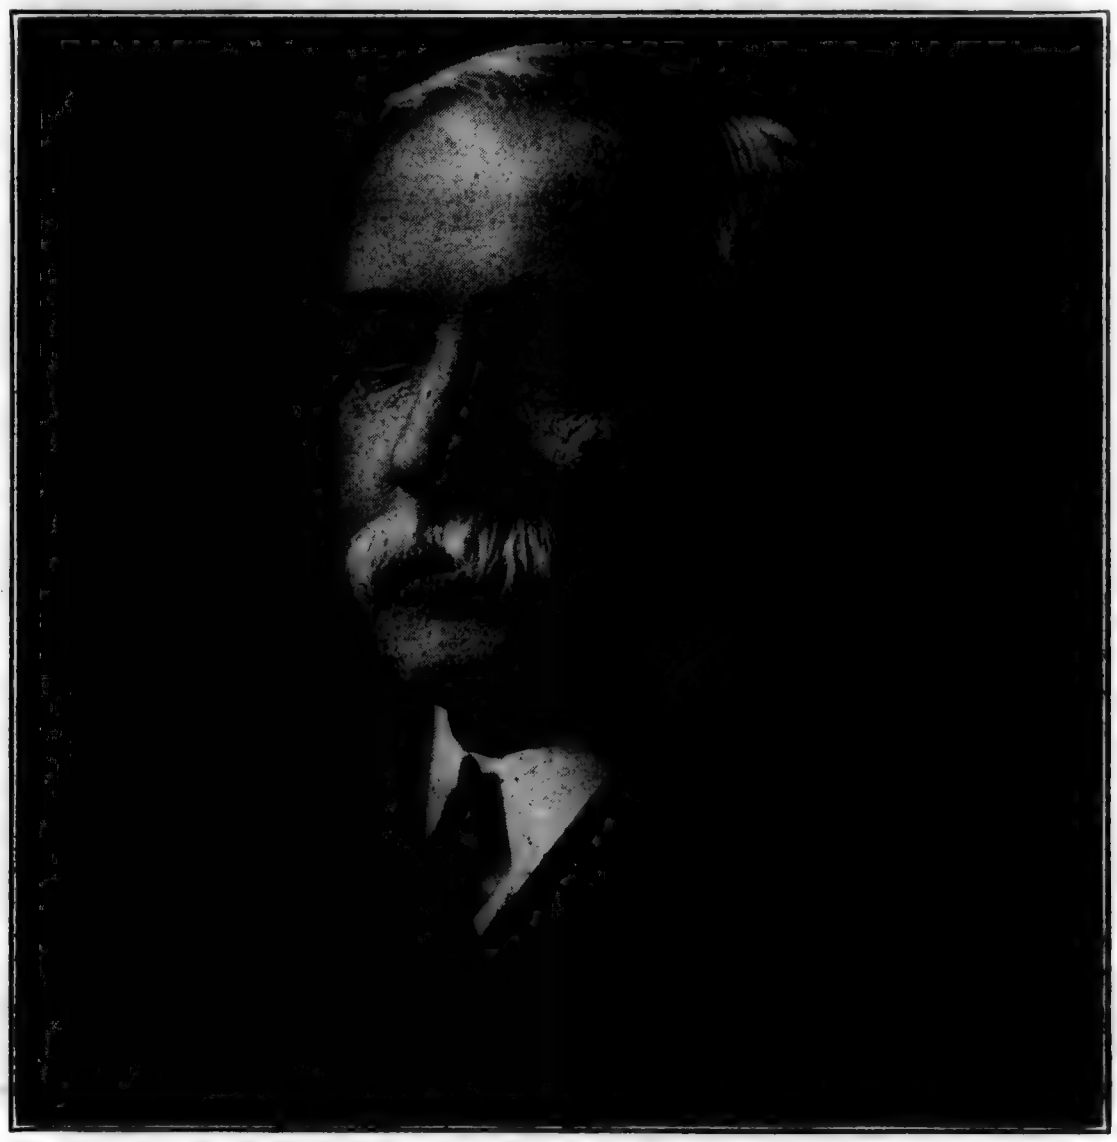
William A. Eagleson, for many years secretary of the American Institute, died at his summer home in Spring Lake last week. He will be remembered by the trade as prominent in connection with the many flower shows held in the Institute building. J. H. P.

PITTSBURGH FIELD DAY.

Visit to Secwickley Estates.

The annual field day of the Pittsburgh Florists' and Gardeners' Club Wednesday, August 11, will linger long in the memory of the members and friends who attended. It was a great success in every way. Promptly at 10:30 a. m. the long line of automobiles left Sewickley Station to visit the beautiful estates of Sewickley Heights.

The first stop was made at the estate of Mrs. J. B. Oliver, where F. B. Rieg is gardener; everything showed good care and the walled garden was excellent. Effective planting of shrubs and evergreens was noted at E. H. Woods' estate, of which A. Etherington is gardener. The excellent care of George Shaw at R. H. Boggs' estate and John Carman at Colonel Schoonmaker's estate was then noted. Next in order came the estate of J. F. Beyers, where A. E. Bonsey is gardener; the grounds of the Country Club, where J. Pressler is in charge, and the Van Voorhis estate, of which H. A. Baumgarten is gardener.



The noon stop for lunch was made at the estate of J. D. Lyon, where John Barnet, the genial president of the club, holds sway. There everything was in tiptop shape. Much credit was due the lunch committee, consisting of John Barnet, Manus Curran, R. Boxell and William Thompson, for the bounteous repast. The lunch was followed by a few speeches; especially noteworthy was the one by Mr. Cook, of Cleveland, inviting the members of the club to Cleveland, not only for the convention, but at any time.

Care and Skill Shown

The first visit of the afternoon was to W. B. Schiller's estate, of which E. E. Norton is gardener and which was found to be in great shape. W. P. Snyder's estate was found to be a magnificent place and well taken care of; William Thompson is the gardener here. Especially noteworthy were two specimen stag-horn ferns, Platycerium alcicorne, and the formal garden planted solidly with pink geraniums. At W. R. Willock's estate, where R. Boxell is gardener, a fine vegetable garden greeted the visitors and everything else was in good shape, showing good attention. The estate of Mrs. E. M. Stone, where Manus Curran is gardener, gave evidences of creditable management; in particular, the onions were some onions.

Next came the estates of H. B. Dalington, Jr., whose gardener is Robert Clark; of Alex. M. Laughlin, whose gardener is Thomas Sturgis; of Mrs. W. Thaw, Jr., whose gardener is John M. Jones, and of H. L. Mason, whose gardener is James Murphy. All these places showed skillful care and attention. The annual and perennial gardens on the Laughlin estate, the rockery and fine lawn on the Thaw place and the greenhouse grapes on the Mason place were well worth mentioning. The last stop of the afternoon was made at the summer home of Mrs. H. H. Rea, where Alex. Davidson is gardener. The evergreens and perennial borders were well worth seeing; Mr. Davidson deserves great credit for his able and efficient management.

INSECTS ON FOLIAGE.

I am sending you some linden foliage infected with a disease. I should like to know what to do to remedy this condition. J. B. D.—Ill.

This is not a disease, but is due to the attacks of an insect. As a preventive, spray with arsenate of lead early in the season, as soon as the foliage is fairly well expanded, using paste lead at the rate of four pounds to fifty gallons of water, or dry lead half this strength. A little soap added will make it even more adhesive. Use a fine spray nozzle and always select a clear, dry day for the operation. A spraying given at once will probably help your trees. C. W.

THERE will be a ready market next winter for all the plants the trade can produce.

POINSETTIA plants are scarce; growers who have a surplus will sell out quickly if they let the fact be known.

SHORTAGE of help will decrease the supply and increase the prices on many lines of plants for next season.

WHERE is the next generation of florists coming from? The number of young heads and hands in the trade is dangerously few.

TWENTIETH century progress has wrought no revised version of the Golden Rule. It is still the most successful rule of business.

UNLESS a trade paper prints news without bias or prejudice it loses the esteem of its readers. When a paper ceases to be read, it has lost all its value.

IF the retail florists of the United States want a supply of stock in the season of 1921-22 they must pay the producers a living price in the season of 1920-21.

BECAUSE so many forget, to receive an answer it is necessary that full name and address appear on letters of inquiry. Anonymous communications of whatever character go into the wastebasket.

PROSPECTS of good profits for growers were never better and opportunities for acquiring money-making greenhouse properties are numerous, as one may note in the For Sale offers in The Review.

INCREASES in freight rates in conformity with those granted by the interstate commerce commission have been given to United States railroads in Canada by the Dominion board of railway commissioners.

EASTERN florists who have surplus stock or who seek to build up a wholesale mail-order plant trade are using the Classified section of The Review in rapidly increasing numbers. There are several reasons why the little liners are specially useful for them, but the best exposition of them is like "the proof of the pudding." Try them when orders are wanted.

OHIO POTTERIES CLOSE.

All of the potteries at Zanesville, South Zanesville, Logan and other places in Ohio from which florists obtain flower pots and fancy pottery are closed on account of labor difficulties. A week ago the men presented demands for increased pay which the heads of the potteries declared were exorbitant and unwarranted. For instance, molders who had been receiving $12 for an 8-hour day asked a twenty-five per cent increase, or $15 a day. In the face of such demands the pottery firms, which are well organized in an association, declared they would close their factories completely. This they have done and they are determined to remain so until the labor men recede from their unreasonable requests.

MOVIE MEN GOOD FRIENDS.

A few florists have already discovered that among the best friends the trade has are the makers of moving pictures. The best cinema producers have recognized more and more the value of flowers in the silent drama. As a stimulant of sentiment they are as potent at times as the graces of the feminine star and do not cost, even at holiday prices, nearly so much. Flowers are necessary in many settings and add beauty to many others.

Their extensive use in the movies is an asset to the trade. When a florist has the opportunity to furnish them for a cinema production, whatever extra effort he gives in arranging them or suggesting how they may be used will redound to the advantage of him and his fellow tradesmen. He will be contributing quite decidedly to one form of national publicity, for the productions of even the less advertised artists are so widely distributed and are seen by so many thousands, if not millions, of persons that a single florist's efforts may arouse admiration and desire for flowers in great numbers of possible customers.

Moreover, the moving picture men have shown themselves generous with photographs of scenes where flowers were used to florists who gave assistance. These are basis for good window displays. Yes, some florists have found good friends in the movie men. Here's a tip for more to do so.

COAL OUTLOOK BETTER.

Though there have been no recessions yet in the prices asked for coal, the prospects of a supply large enough to relieve greenhouse men of anxiety have been materially bettered in the last week. The car supply, which the mine operators blamed for most of the trouble, has improved. It seems as though the railroads, now that they have been assured higher rates and the men have been awarded increased pay, are speeding up traffic. Complaints regarding freight transportation are not nearly so numerous as they were, and railroad officials declare movement is more nearly normal.

The priority orders have resulted in New England's receiving the full amount of shipments estimated as necessary and the situation is easing there. Movement to the Great Lakes region is not so near to requirements, but improvement is looked for. As the weekly tonnage from the mines increases, the betterment will be, perhaps, more noticeable, though the needs of all industries to replenish the low storage stocks will provide strong demand for all the coal that is to be had from now till snow flies.

More reasonable prices are hoped for as soon as speculation in coal has been halted. During the railroad tie-up cars of coal changed hands many times between the mines and the consumer and each transfer represented an added profit to be paid by the ultimate purchaser. Efforts are being made to curb these operations. The fact that consumers are not so panicky as they were will also curtail speculators' activities. More coal will be delivered, it is expected, on the dealers' contracts, enabling them to supply greenhouse men at somewhere near a reasonable figure.

Upon the ability of their dealers to get coal has depended the size of the growers' storage stocks so far this season. Some growers have been able to fill their bins because their dealers were getting delivery on their contracts. Neighbors of these same growers have no fuel because their dealers were forced to buy in the open market and quoted prices the former did not wish to pay. Every florist who has not his coal now should increase his efforts to obtain it. Persistence and vigilance are required, but the certain profits next winter will reward the grower for energetic striving now.

EXPRESS RATES GO UP.

Some comfort amid rising costs can be had from the decision of the interstate commerce commission, August 13, to authorize an increase in express rates of only twelve and one-half per cent instead of the twenty-five per cent requested. Instead of being raised one-quarter, the cost of florists' shipments by express will be augmented only one-eighth.

The additional gross revenue that the increases asked would have yielded was estimated by the American Railway Express Co. at $71,929,392. The company, under the award, will get approximately $35,964,696.

The report of the commission did not take into consideration the award of the United States railroad labor board increasing the pay of express company employees. The express company estimates that this award will increase operating expenses by $43,800,805. Application has been made for another increase to cover the added wages.

The commission further held that no adequate ground was disclosed to support the request of the shippers for the exception of certain commodities from the application of increased rates and that a prescription of "terminal to terminal" rates, to apply in the absence of pick-up and delivery service, or deductions from the published rates where either service is not rendered, was not deemed warranted by the record.

The express company under the decision will be permitted to make increased rates effective upon not less than one day's notice, and is further authorized to file special blanket supplements to its current commodity tariffs to make up the approved commodity rates, but within ninety days after the first date, unless otherwise stated, the tariffs must be reissued.

Relative to the application for approval of the consolidation effected under federal control and also to the new contract to be entered into between the railroads and the express company, the commission said "Nothing said herein is to be taken as prejudicing or forecasting the decision in either of these proceedings."

OUTINGS IN MINNESOTA.

Trip to Red Wing.

The Minnesota State Florists' Association and the Minneapolis Florists' Club together had two good outings recently.

The first was a trip to Red Wing to visit the Red Wing Union Stoneware Co. About fifty-five made this trip in automobiles and thoroughly enjoyed the visit to the pottery works, the dinner and the visit to the boys' reform school. At noon they were the guests of the company at a chicken dinner served at one of the hotels. Wildwood Picnic.

The state association and the Minneapolis club had a picnic at Wildwood, White Bear Lake, August 10. Between 200 and 300 enjoyed this picnic. Games, bowling, launch rides and bathing were indulged in. The day was ideal, though hot. A great deal of credit is due the committee that put this picnic through. It consisted of Messrs. Ruedlinger, Kaiser, Rosacker, Nyloff, Lindsay and F. W. Topel. About $400 was contributed from local sources and some handsome donations were made by out-of-town florists.

About fourteen sporting events were pulled off. The tug of war was won by St. Paul, as was also the bowling match. While the tug of war was easy for St. Paul, the Minneapolis team lost the bowling by only thirteen points. St. Paul's score was 1,363 and that of Minneapolis 1,350. The Minneapolis team won the baseball game. In the men's individual bowling, E. Meyer, Minneapolis, stood first; R. Topel, St. Paul, second; Julius Vasatka, St. Paul, third; T. Peterson, fourth; Ed. Puvogel, St. Paul, fifth, and F. G. Schugard, sixth. Highest number of strikes, Ekel; highest number of spares, Julius Vasatka; highest number of railroads, J. Belsky.

The ladies' individual records were: Miss H. Metzdorf, first; Mrs. E. Franson, second; Mrs. O. Schugard, third; Mrs. Theo. Wirth, fourth, and Mrs. A. Otting, fifth. Highest number of strikes, Miss H. Metzdorf; highest number of spares, Mrs. E. Franson, and highest number of railroads, Miss N. Puvogel.

The Market.

Old-timers in the market will tell you that August always is the dullest month of the year and that convention week is the dullest week of August. While not undertaking to say which is cause and which is effect, convention week is running true to form; it is the dullest week in the dullest month this market has had in a long, long time. There are those who go so far as to say business is not now as good as it was at this time last year. If this is true in an individual case it undoubtedly is the result of increased competition. There are far more flowers on the market than at this date last year and the man whose sales are falling down no doubt is suffering because there are so many other places where flowers may be obtained.

There is considerable difference in reports as to roses. These are the principal greenhouse flowers now in the market. Some growers are cutting heavily, but many are cutting nothing at all. Thus it happens that some houses are heavily supplied while others are doing their principal business with garden flowers. There probably are more Columbia in the market this week than of any other one rose. At least three-quarters of all the roses are pink, of the three leading varieties. While the shipping trade takes a considerable part of the best grades, there is a lot of stock which can be moved only through channels outside the trade.

Gladioli are extremely plentiful. It is not possible to move them all. The best stock still commands fair prices, but the old and poorly handled spikes are being jobbed off at rather ridiculous figures. Asters have been so overabundant that many wholesalers have notified some of their growers to stop shipping. Naturally, the rejected stock was of the poorer grades, so that there has been an improvement in the average quality as a result of this undesirable method of reducing supply. Lightening the load on the market has had some effect on the prices, more on the average than on the regular price.

New carnations from indoors have made their appearance considerably earlier than usual. Many growers planted carnations directly in the bench early in spring, because of the labor shortage. They are now cutting some quite fair flowers, as the weather has been unusually favorable for that method of growing.

Valley is about the only scarce item for which there is any special call. There are not many orchids, but not much demand. Easter lilies continue abundant. There are considerable quantities of rubrum and a few album.

There continue to be large supplies of garden flowers of all seasonable kinds. These sell quite well to the local trade, but they do not cut much figure in the shipping business.

Greens of most kinds are plentiful, but adiantum continues short.

The Review brings results.

THERE will be a ready market next winter for all the plants the trade can produce.

POINSETTIA plants are scarce; growers who have a surplus will sell out quickly if they let the fact be known.

SHORTAGE of help will decrease the supply and increase the prices on many lines of plants for next season.

WHERE is the next generation of florists coming from? The number of young heads and hands in the trade is dangerously few.

TWENTIETH century progress has wrought no revised version of the Golden Rule. It is still the most successful rule of business.

UNLESS a trade paper prints news without bias or prejudice it loses the esteem of its readers. When a paper ceases to be read, it has lost all its value.

IF the retail florists of the United States want a supply of stock in the season of 1921-22 they must pay the producers a living price in the season of 1920-21.

BECAUSE so many forget, to receive an answer it is necessary that full name and address appear on letters of inquiry. Anonymous communications of whatever character go into the wastebasket.

PROSPECTS of good profits for growers were never better and opportunities for acquiring money-making greenhouse properties are numerous, as one may note in the For Sale offers in The Review.

INCREASES in freight rates in conformity with those granted by the interstate commerce commission have been given to United States railroads in Canada by the Dominion board of railway commissioners.

EASTERN florists who have surplus stock or who seek to build up a wholesale mail-order plant trade are using the Classified section of The Review in rapidly increasing numbers. There are several reasons why the little liners are specially useful for them, but the best exposition of them is like "the proof of the pudding." Try them when orders are wanted.

OHIO POTTERIES CLOSE.

All of the potteries at Zanesville, South Zanesville, Logan and other places in Ohio from which florists obtain flower pots and fancy pottery are closed on account of labor difficulties. A week ago the men presented demands for increased pay which the heads of the potteries declared were exorbitant and unwarranted. For instance, molders who had been receiving $12 for an 8-hour day asked a twenty-five per cent increase, or $15 a day. In the face of such demands the pottery firms, which are well organized in an association, declared they would close their factories completely. This they have done and they are determined to remain so until the labor men recede from their unreasonable requests.

MOVIE MEN GOOD FRIENDS.

A few florists have already discovered that among the best friends the trade has are the makers of moving pictures. The best cinema producers have recognized more and more the value of flowers in the silent drama. As a stimulant of sentiment they are as potent at times as the graces of the feminine star and do not cost, even at holiday prices, nearly so much. Flowers are necessary in many settings and add beauty to many others.

Their extensive use in the movies is an asset to the trade. When a florist has the opportunity to furnish them for a cinema production, whatever extra effort he gives in arranging them or suggesting how they may be used will redound to the advantage of him and his fellow tradesmen. He will be contributing quite decidedly to one form of national publicity, for the productions of even the less advertised artists are so widely distributed and are seen by so many thousands, if not millions, of persons that a single florist's efforts may arouse admiration and desire for flowers in great numbers of possible customers.

Moreover, the moving picture men have shown themselves generous with photographs of scenes where flowers were used to florists who gave assistance. These are basis for good window displays. Yes, some florists have found good friends in the movie men. Here's a tip for more to do so.

COAL OUTLOOK BETTER.

Though there have been no recessions yet in the prices asked for coal, the prospects of a supply large enough to relieve greenhouse men of anxiety have been materially bettered in the last week. The car supply, which the mine operators blamed for most of the trouble, has improved. It seems as though the railroads, now that they have been assured higher rates and the men have been awarded increased pay, are speeding up traffic. Complaints regarding freight transportation are not nearly so numerous as they were, and railroad officials declare movement is more nearly normal.

The priority orders have resulted in New England's receiving the full amount of shipments estimated as necessary and the situation is easing there. Movement to the Great Lakes region is not so near to requirements, but improvement is looked for. As the weekly tonnage from the mines increases, the betterment will be, perhaps, more noticeable, though the needs of all industries to replenish the low storage stocks will provide strong demand for all the coal that is to be had from now till snow flies.

More reasonable prices are hoped for as soon as speculation in coal has been halted. During the railroad tie-up cars of coal changed hands many times between the mines and the consumer and each transfer represented an added profit to be paid by the ultimate purchaser. Efforts are being made to curb these operations. The fact that consumers are not so panicky as they were will also curtail speculators' activities. More coal will be delivered, it is expected, on the dealers' contracts, enabling them to supply greenhouse men at somewhere near a reasonable figure.

Upon the ability of their dealers to get coal has depended the size of the growers' storage stocks so far this season. Some growers have been able to fill their bins because their dealers were getting delivery on their contracts. Neighbors of these same growers have no fuel because their dealers were forced to buy in the open market and quoted prices the former did not wish to pay. Every florist who has not his coal now should increase his efforts to obtain it. Persistence and vigilance are required, but the certain profits next winter will reward the grower for energetic striving now.

EXPRESS RATES GO UP.

Some comfort amid rising costs can be had from the decision of the interstate commerce commission, August 13, to authorize an increase in express rates of only twelve and one-half per cent instead of the twenty-five per cent requested. Instead of being raised one-quarter, the cost of florists' shipments by express will be augmented only one-eighth.

The additional gross revenue that the increases asked would have yielded was estimated by the American Railway Express Co. at $71,929,392. The company, under the award, will get approximately $35,964,696.

The report of the commission did not take into consideration the award of the United States railroad labor board increasing the pay of express company employees. The express company estimates that this award will increase operating expenses by $43,800,805. Application has been made for another increase to cover the added wages.

The commission further held that no adequate ground was disclosed to support the request of the shippers for the exception of certain commodities from the application of increased rates and that a prescription of "terminal to terminal" rates, to apply in the absence of pick-up and delivery service, or deductions from the published rates where either service is not rendered, was not deemed warranted by the record.

The express company under the decision will be permitted to make increased rates effective upon not less than one day's notice, and is further authorized to file special blanket supplements to its current commodity tariffs to make up the approved commodity rates, but within ninety days after the first date, unless otherwise stated, the tariffs must be reissued.

Relative to the application for approval of the consolidation effected under federal control and also to the new contract to be entered into between the railroads and the express company, the commission said "Nothing said herein is to be taken as prejudicing or forecasting the decision in either of these proceedings."

OUTINGS IN MINNESOTA.

Trip to Red Wing.

The Minnesota State Florists' Association and the Minneapolis Florists' Club together had two good outings recently.

The first was a trip to Red Wing to visit the Red Wing Union Stoneware Co. About fifty-five made this trip in automobiles and thoroughly enjoyed the visit to the pottery works, the dinner and the visit to the boys' reform school. At noon they were the guests of the company at a chicken dinner served at one of the hotels. After a trip over the reform school grounds and buildings a game of baseball was played between the visitors and the school, in which the school came out ahead. Visits were made to the greenhouse of John E. Sten and to other points about Red Wing. The accompanying illustration shows the members of the Red Wing party.

Games, bowling, launch rides and bathing were indulged in. The day was ideal, though hot. A great deal of credit is due the committee that put this picnic through. It consisted of Messrs. Ruedlinger, Kaiser, Rosacker, Nyloff, Lindsay and F. W. Topel. About $400 was contributed from local sources and some handsome donations were made by out-of-town florists.

florists' sons not following in their fathers' footsteps; we are told the boys prefer the automobile business, the coal trade, moving pictures, or some of the newer pursuits. But there's nothing like that at Poehlmann's. The corporation was organized by three brothers. Now they have four sons in the business and a fifth member of the second generation will take hold next year. John Poehlmann assumed his father's place in charge of the city store interests. August F. Poehlmann's sons, Roland and Earl, have come into the business. Roland completed the course in floriculture at the University of Illinois last June. At present he is getting the point of view at the store, but soon he will join the other boys at the greenhouses. Of Adolph Poehlmann's sons, Walter is assisting his father. Morton is working in the store this summer, but has still another year to spend at Western Military Academy, Alton, Ill., after which he also will put his shoulder to the wheel at Morton Grove.

Morton Grove began cutting indoor carnations August 5 this year, the new crop coming on before the last of the old crop was thrown out.

Jottings at Randall's.

Edward Galavan, sales manager of the A. L. Randall Co., devoted a large share of last week to a school for salesmen. Twelve graduates were added to the road staff this week. The week before, eight new men completed the course of instruction and went out after orders. Mr. Galavan now has forty-five salesmen on the road.

The company has opened a new salesroom in the basement of the Lemoyne building.

F. M. Johnson returned August 16, after spending a week with the Johnson-Randall interests at Traverse City, Mich., and a few days motoring for pleasure.

Arthur M. Anderson has just completed and occupied a 9-room residence in Rogers Park, only a couple of doors from A. L. Randall and F. M. Johnson.

office last week. Each envelope carried a special delivery stamp.

This is the season when many florists spend a good share of their time on the road in their cars. Dozens have driven to Cleveland this week, some making it in two days, some in three. But listen to what Floren Cipar did. Last Friday morning at 7:30 he left St. Louis. At 11 p. m. he walked into his flower store at 7121 South Halsted street. The speedometer showed 355 miles covered in fifteen and one-half hours. That's going some, especially with a Dodge car and one's wife and three children.

Bassett & Washburn report that the demand for Russell rose plants on the coast has not abated; they have shipped to growers near San Francisco all the stock they could spare.

John P. Degnan is back at his desk at Henderson's Seed Store.

John T. Muir says he has discovered a value in telegraph delivery orders he has not heard anybody mention. This is it: When an order comes from a distant city, as like as not it calls for delivery to someone who never has bought flowers at Muir's, for Chicago is a big town and there are many places where flowers may be had. In such a case Mr. Muir sees his opportunity and does his best. It frequently results in gaining a good new customer. "We feel that not only our reputation is at stake, but that of our correspondent as well," says he; "hence the importance of executing these orders in a manner that will reflect credit on all."

Edward Goldenstein is receiving congratulations from his many friends on his election to a vice-presidency at Vaughan's Seed Store.,

C. O. Wilcox, who travels in the southeast for Wood, Stubbs & Co., Louisville, has been at home for a few days.

P. C. Schupp spent the week end at Lake Geneva, where the Budlong and Schupp families have summer homes.

Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius van den Bos celebrated their golden wedding anniversary August 13, at 1212 West Sixty-Third street. Mr. van den Bos is rose gardener at Jackson park. He is 70 years of age. His wife is 73 and they are great-grandparents. They declare "early to bed and early to rise" is the system that prolongs life and makes old age happy.

Another New Orleans florist here last week was Miss Henderson, with the Metairie Ridge Nursery Co., who was on her way to Cleveland.

J. S. Wilson and wife, with their son, Charles, of Des Moines, drove to Chicago last week in their Cadillac and joined the party from the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, taking their daughter, who lives here, for the road trip to Cleveland. Mr. Wilson devoted August 14 to his fall shopping in the market, placing a big bulb order.

C. F. Kimmey, manager of the florist's department in the store of L. S. Donaldson Co., Minneapolis, was here last week on his way to Cleveland. Donaldson's is one of the few department stores which has made a success of a flower section conducted like a flower store.

J. A. Lambert passed through the city August 13 on his way from western territory to Laporte, Ind., where he intended to stop for material from the Ove Gnatt Co., to exhibit at Cleveland.

E. H. Kunze, of the Newton Floral Co., Newton, Kan., was here August 16, to join the Chicago party going to the convention. He is introducing a new geranium, named Kansas.

Otto Von Siebenthal, of Siebenthal & Nelson, Inc., Peoria, Ill., passed through Chicago last week on his way to New York on business for the fraternal order, the Eagles. He found time to spend a few hours in the market.

N. P. Lindberg, of Rugby, N. D., spent August 16 here, on his way to the convention.

I. L. Pillsbury, of Galesburg, was here August 16, to join the Chicago delegation for the trip to Cleveland.

D. C. Horgan, of the Idle Hour Nurseries, Macon, Ga., stopped in the market August 13 just long enough to receive a few welcoming handshakes and to get a check cashed. Like most southerners, Mr. Horgan always gets a warm greeting in Chicago.

Hillyard, Wash.—H. L. Foster is going into the business.

The Market.

Reports of the leading retailers indicate that business has been dull in all lines and that funeral work is all that keeps them busy some days; they buy sparingly during the summer months.

The wholesale market is quiet, with plenty of good stock on hand to fill any orders that come in, especially in the case of roses. The large coolers are filled with stock of excellent quality. Columbia, Premier, Russell and Ophelia are in the majority, the best coming in from outside points, as many of the local rose growers are not yet in crop with their young stock.

A few carnations are coming in, but have little call, as the many asters have taken their place for the present. Asters are plentiful and are in excellent demand.

Gladiolus spikes are in large supply and are cheap in large lots. Even the particularly choice flowers of America, Schwaben, Panama and Chicago White are down as low as $4 and $5 per hundred. The recent good rains have greatly revived them.

There is also a large lot of outdoor

Club Meeting.

The annual meeting of the St. Louis Florists' Club was held August 12 in Kirkwood, Mo., at the home of W. J. Edwards on Woodlawn avenue, and the members were entertained jointly by Mr. Edwards and W. C. Smith.

The election of officers created special interest this year among the members and the attendance, consequently, was the largest of the year. When President Hummert called the meeting to order at 2:30 p. m., seventy-three members were present; a few coming later brought the total up to eighty.

The trustees reported on the recent florists' picnic, which was one of the most successful ever given by the club. The publicity committee reported through Chairman Bourdet. In the absence of W. J. Pilcher, state vice-president of the S. A. F., Chairman Hummert read his report, in which he stated that thirty-eight reservations had been made for the trip to Cleveland.

Anton Horn was elected to membership and applications were presented by the following: Alexander Johnson, J. Wies, Roland Hoerr, Claude Wisley, Frank Hespen, Fred Michel, W. Blair Impson, S. F. Leyser and Mrs. Frank Riechard. Several communications were read and ordered filed for further consideration at the next meeting.

The following officers were then elected: President, W. A. Rowe; vice-president, William H. Ossick; secretary, J. J. Beneke; treasurer, W. C. Smith; 3-year term trustee, L. Baumann. W. A. Rowe and L. Baumann, having no opposition, were elected by acclamation. There were three candidates for the office of vice-president and William H. Ossick was the choice of the members.

For secretary there were two candidates, Geo. H. Pring and J. J. Beneke. The real interest seemed to center on this office and excitement ran high when the ballots were being counted; the result showed that J. J. Beneke had been reëlected. The office of treasurer, as usual, had no opposition and the ever faithful W. C. Smith was reëlected for the thirteenth time.

The treasurer's report showed a healthy balance. The trustees were ordered to audit the books of the secretary and treasurer and report at the next meeting.

A. S. Cerny reported that the county growers' annual picnic would take place at Little Creve Coeur lake September 2 and invited all to attend. The club donated a special prize of $10.

A rising vote of thanks was extended to W. J. Edwards and W. C. Smith for the enjoyable afternoon.

The next meeting will take place September 9, when the new officers will be installed.

After the meeting adjourned, the members were invited to partake of refreshments, which included a dozen of the largest watermelons; these were donated by Thomas C. Carr and were a real treat. Before leaving, the members gave three cheers for their hosts.

Publicity Committee Meets.

A special meeting of the publicity committee was held August 12 at headquarters, 1316 Pine street. Chairman Bourdet presided over the meeting; there was a good attendance and much special business was transacted.

present and talked advertising to the members, giving them valuable advice and telling them how the publicity plan was working out in Chicago. His remarks, as well as those of the members of the committee, were fully discussed. Mr. Swenson promised the committee to be present at the next meeting of the committee, September 14.

Various Notes.

Geo. H. Pring, of the Missouri Botanical Garden, reports that the recent hail storm caused the loss of 500 feet of glass and that three ventilators were blown away. This is the only loss reported from this storm.

Hugo Gross, of Kirkwood, Mo., who recently sold his range to John and Nick Himmer, has not as yet made known his plans for the future, but evidently will not engage in the florists' business, as he has resigned from the St. Louis Florists' Club.

Edwin Denker, St. Charles, Mo., is on a western trip for the summer. In a letter received last week he says that he is enjoying a week's stay at Yellowstone park.

Julius Dilloff, representing Wertheimer Bros., New York, spent a few days with the trade on his way to Cleveland.

Frank Hespen, who will open the Carlton Flower Shop September 6 at 1123 Union avenue, reports that everything will be ready for the opening. The fixtures are now being installed. F. and H. T. Hespen are the proprietors of the store.

The members of the Lady Florists' Home Circle were entertained by Mrs. John L. Koenig at her home on Clarence avenue and the ladies spent a most enjoyable afternoon.

W. A. Rowe, president-elect of the St. Louis Florists' Club, returned from a successful fishing trip in time to attend the club meeting, while State Vice-president Pilcher missed train connections and had to miss the meeting.

Short fishing trips seem all the go with members in the trade this year.

LINDLEY FLORIST BOX CO., QUALITY BOX MAKERS Marion, Ind.

Martin Seeger and Al Artmann, of Mullanphy Florists, recently returned from a trip with a big string of fish.

Frank X. Gorly, who is out in California for the summer, writes to friends in the trade of the splendid time he is having.

Word was received from Julius Schaeffer, Edward Steitz and F. C. Weber, who are summering up among the northern lakes, that they were having a great time and would meet the St. Louis party at Cleveland for the S. A. F. convention.

Andrew Hoffman, Jr., and Adolph Steidle will be in charge of F. H. Weber's store while the latter is attending the S. A. F. convention.

Arthur Beyer, who is in charge of F. C. Weber's store in the latter's absence, says that the summer business has been excellent so far.

John Boerm is having a vacation. His store at Delmar and Euclid avenues is being wrecked to give place to a more modern building. Mr. Boerm has not announced his plans for the coming season.

The St. Louis party bound for the S. A. F. convention at Cleveland was one of the largest that ever attended a convention. The party numbered thirty-eight and was to be joined at Cleveland by four others, making a total of forty-two. State Vice-president W. J. Pilcher, who had charge of the transportation, was obliged to engage two special cars for the party, which left Monday, August 16, over the Big Four route in time to arrive at Cleveland at 7 a. m. August 17. Among those who secured reservations were W. J. Pilcher, Charles Ostertag, Fred Michel, Martin Seeger, N. Kingsley, Henri Durenberg, C. E. De Wever, F. H. Weber, W. H. Ossick, A. H. Hummert, Carl Beyer, Gust Grossart, L. J. Bourdet, W. A. Rowe and Mrs. Rowe, O. C. May and Mrs. May, J. F. Ammann, Mrs. Ammann and their daughter; A. G. Fehr and Mrs. Fehr, D. S. Geddis and two friends, H. G. Berning and Mrs. Berning, Mrs. T. Diemer and two friends, Mrs. J. W. Bruenig and two daughters, Walter Amling and Mrs. Amling, L. Baumann and two friends and George Deutschmann. These were joined at Cleveland by F. C. Weber, Jr., Mrs. Weber, Mrs. F. C. Weber, Sr., Julius Schaeffer, Edward Steitz and Vincent J. Gorly. J. J. B.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The second week in August brought disaster. There was more business than usual, with many times the usual amount of flowers. The reasons for this unfortunate condition are clear: Favorable growing conditions, heavy planting of gladioli and the effect of the two combined; that is, in a season so unusually favorable to growth outside that the timing of the planting of bulbs is upset. They start, mature and bloom so quickly that the bulbs intended for flowering in the middle of September are in bloom now. The sales of gladioli have been disheartening, little better than the waste. Both bad sales and waste have been common. There has been business at fair prices, but it is overshadowed by the sacrifice sales and the losses. Asters suffered from the frequent rains as they came into bloom. The flowers shipped when not perfectly dry are apt to develop brown tips, which affect their value.

Roses have been extremely plentiful in the shorter grades. Variety seems less important now; length of stem is more so. Of course there are few long-stemmed roses; most of them are shorts, some are medium. It is the medium-stemmed roses that are wanted.

Easter lilies have declined in sympathy with the general market.

A Defense of the P. H. S.

By J. Otto Thilow, August 14, 1920: "I do not think that the policy of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society is generally understood. While it is true that the original hall and the site on which it stood were left to the society by Miss Shaeffer as a home, it was not the society's fault that the hall burned down or that the new horticultural hall, which was erected on its site, should have been supplanted in favor by the Bellevue-Stratford. Under these conditions it was best for the society to sell the site—the hall was not its property—and obtain money to carry on its work.

"The reason that the plan of making a garden in Fairmount park has not been carried out is that there has been a difference of opinion between James Boyd, president of the society, and Theodore Justice, an influential member of the park commission. Mr. Boyd wished to fence in the society's garden in the park and charge admission to it at certain times. Mr. Justice opposed the fence and the admission as undemocratic and unsuitable in the park, the people's playground.

"The society has adopted one of the plans for the garden in Fairmount park. One thousand dollars was paid for this successful plan. It may be seen at the society's office in the Finance building. It includes a rose garden, an iris garden, a peony garden and so forth, with Horticultural hall in the center, and calls for an expenditure of $200,000. The idea seems good, but it should be modified; it is too expensive."

At Neshaminy.

The Review is indebted to Albert Swan, of the S. S. Pennock Co., for the following delightful description of the outing at Neshaminy August 7.

An outing was given by Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Ross at their country home to Mr. Ross's friends in business. Only a few were present, on account of the threatening weather. There was a ball game between two teams which were picked from the guests. They named themselves E. De Gour's Professionals and Lilly's Babies. The game was stopped at the beginning of the fourth inning by the rain. The score thus far was 5 to 3 in favor of Lilly's Babies. The feature of the game was the sensational fielding and batting of Babe Faust, who held down the second sack in fine style. The pitching of Lilly also needs watching, as Connie Mack at present could use him. The line-up for both teams follows:

The swimming race of fifty yards was won by Frank Ross; E. Bernheimer, second, and Babe Faust, third. The contest in remaining under the water the longest was won by E. Bernheimer. Unfortunately, no one had a watch to keep the time, as they were all in bathing suits.

Race for fat men—Babe Faust, first; Sam Lilly, second; E. Bernheimer, third.

After the sports were over, all kept step to the march played by Mrs. Ross on the piano and marched into the dining room. No one was hungry when

The Market.

Market conditions are about the same as last week, with business consisting mostly of funeral work. The florists were piled up with orders for the funeral of Major General Gorgas, which was held in this city August 16. Some extra fine Easter lilies were on the market and they cleaned up well, with the demand in excess of the supply throughout the week. Calendulas were good in quality as well as quantity. Some nice dahlias made their appearance. Gladioli and asters continued to arrive in large quantities. The shortage of greens was relieved by several timely shipments.

The Market.

Last week the market was one of the slowest of the summer, there being little stirring in the business line outside of Saturday, August 14, when stocks cleaned up nicely. The crop of gladioli is gradually diminishing and they have been cleaned up well. The market is at present flooded with asters and it seems a shame to see so many thousands of really prize-taking blooms simply thrown out, because the demand for them is not large enough. Japanese lilies are still arriving in a goodly supply. Ophelia roses are arriving in a good supply at present, while pink roses of all kinds seem to be scarce, especially those with long stems. A few carnations are still drifting into the market and usually clean up fairly well in spite of their poor quality.

The Market.

Business on the whole showed improvement last week and signs indicated that if more good shipping stock had been in the market there would have been little trouble in disposing of it. Asters, gladioli and other stock which will stand the racket of shipping clean up finely, but soft summer carnations are not presentable after a 24-hour or 48-hour trip; consequently out-of-town retailers are cutting them out of their requisitions. Good, clean statice is away below the demand and good strawflowers are also needed in larger quantities. Roses are improving, but growers are bending their energies more toward a good fall and winter crop than toward getting good stock now.

Greens are fairly plentiful, but the shipping qualities are not of the best. The comparatively new evergreen honeysuckle is going to be a winner for long-distance shipments; this green keeps for several weeks in first-class shape, while its attractive appearance and deep green color are other points in its favor. An improved demand is noted for palms and ferns.

Retailers generally are well satisfied, considering the season. Funeral work still constitutes the biggest part of the business.

Various Notes.

J. W. Wolters and E. L. (Jim) Hardy, of the Dostal-Wolters Flower Shop, have recently returned from a three weeks' trip to the north, taking in Seattle, Portland and British Columbian points and returning by way of Salt Lake City. They report a most enjoyable time. Fred Dostal says that business has kept up well during their absence, especially funeral work.

The summer booklet or bulletin of the H. N. Gage Co. shows that this firm is going into an increasing number of specialties in both the bulb and the plant line. Some excellent gladioli are being sent from the Baldwin Park nursery of this company, and Mr. Gage reports progress quite satisfactory at the new ranch at Rivera.

W. B. Clark, of San Jose, sales manager of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, Eureka, called on the trade last week.

E. M. Hall, of Geo. Hall & Co., figures on a vacation trip this week, but he says that it is difficult to get away, even at this season of the year, as they are wisely keeping their help down to the lowest possible point now.

S. Purdie, of Purdie & Co., has just returned from a two weeks' vacation at Laguna Beach, looking tanned and happy and reporting a high time.

Friends of Tom Wright, of Wright's Flower Shop, were sorry to hear of the illness of Mrs. Wright; at the beginning of this week it was thought that a minor operation might be necessary. Fred Westrom recently returned from the wilds of the San Diego back country, where there is some of the finest scenery in the state, but where the roads are not all boulevards. Mr. Westrom looks as if the change had benefited him.

George Eischen, manager at the store of the Alexandria Florist, reports a good deal of out-of-town work, as well as a busy time in the store.

Carl Brose, of Lichtenberg's force, has left for a vacation trip to Humboldt county and, in a letter received by George Eischen, says that it is a little cool in the northern part of the state. But one of those five-pointers will probably make up for any inconvenience in the matter of climate.

Albert Goldenson, of Wolfskills' & Morris Goldenson, is tearing out the interior of the store, removing a good deal of the rockwork put in some time ago and remodeling for the coming season. A direct staircase from the store to the office, to prevent customers from having to go to the rear, is also projected. A busy time with funeral work is the report here.

E. D. Sturtevant, of Hollywood, the veteran grower of water lilies and other aquatics, is running true to form. Some fine hybrids between Nymphæa zanzi-

The Market.

Business is reported fair, with a slight inclination toward dullness. Carnations are scarce, on account of the growers changing their plants. At present there are not enough carnations to take care of the local market. Roses also are scarce. Some firms report all their roses sold early in the day. Few firms have many carnations on hand, but some have enough roses to fall back upon, especially of certain varieties.

Asters are plentiful and of fine variety. Numerous shipments of asters are now being made, not only to coast points, but to cities as far east as Omaha and New Orleans. In some cases, information is still lacking as to how the asters stood the trip. In other cases, however, word has been received that the asters stood the journey excellently. This is undoubtedly an aster year in California, as the quality of these early fall flowers seems on a par with their abundance.

Gladioli are now seen in all their richness of color. Interest in them has been stimulated by the recent exhibition held in this city. They are in good demand, especially for decorative purposes. There are about enough on hand to take care of the local market. It is somewhat early for shipping chrysanthemums, but it is expected that large quantities of these flowers will be sent out early next month.

Dahlias seem to have more devotees every year. Various retail firms had dahlia windows last week. They are full of color and the many varieties on display continually attract little knots of admirers, who gather on the sidewalk and comment on the great diversity of the dahlias, both in color and form. Dahlias are becoming such a fad that not only do growers talk about their collections, but their friends also boost their displays and to be a successful amateur grower of dahlias is now quite a distinction in social circles.

Refrigerator Service.

Local florists are much gratified at the promised resumption of the pre-war refrigerator service. When the government took over the railroads the cars were used for necessities and war needs and the refrigerator service east became practically a thing of the past. J. A. Axell has been an enthusiast for the resumption of this service. He outlined a petition which the other florists readily signed.

This movement on behalf of the resumption of refrigerator service has brought relief in sight. The vice-president of the express companies has promised the shippers of cut flowers that, by September, they shall have a biweekly service. This is for a refrigerator car which will carry partial shipments. The car will run to New York and will be opened at Ogden, Omaha and Chicago. Speaking of this, Mr. Axell said: "If the shippers of the middle west will respond, so that we can make a good showing, the service can be put upon a permanent basis. The express companies will take our flowers from here in less than carload lots, but we must depend on the shippers of the middle west to coöperate with us, in order to make it worth while for the express companies to run these cars. It is to the interest of the shippers of the middle west to have these refrigerator cars, as well as to our interest, and we are all hoping that they will coöperate with us."

Various Notes.

After spending ten days in San Francisco, Mr. and Mrs. Frank X. Gorly, of St. Louis, left for Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Clarke, of Portland, Ore., have been in this city and have left for the south. Mr. Clarke is a member of the firm of Clarke Bros., Portland.

Dahlias are in all their glory now, according to Frank Pelicano, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., 123 Kearny street, who has a dahlia farm. Robert Newcomb, a popular salesman, who has been enjoying a vacation here, paid a visit to this farm just before his departure for the north. P. Rosaia, flower artist for this firm, has just returned from a vacation trip to southern California. His mother, Mrs. E. Rosaia, has sold out her interests here and is visiting her three sons, who are florists in Seattle. They are

The Market.

Better sales along nearly all lines have been noticed. The recent rush of funeral work cleaned out most stores. For several weeks there has been an especially good telegraph business in flowers to be delivered to vacation parties bound for Alaska.

The first local chrysanthemums of the season have arrived, but this stock was hardly marketable and served only as a novel window display. Asters are now being offered in profusion and the prices named by the growers allow the trade to sell stock quickly at a good profit.

Everywhere the cut of roses is increasing and a number of new varieties will be offered by local growers this season. A plentiful supply of orchids is still to be had, although the cut has lessened a little and fewer shipping orders are being attended to. The local growers are again able to take care of the demand for gardenias.

Among the long-stemmed flowers, gladioli and snapdragons continue to be the leaders. Scotch broom of the second growth is also being offered. Several growers are offering some unusually long-stemmed Shasta daisies, which are used freely in baskets.

Carnations show some improvement, but still leave much to be desired as to keeping qualities; the reds are especially liable to wilt early. Sweet peas hold up fairly well and some new cream shades have been featured in several of the stores.

Water lilies continue to be in favor for decorations and the heavy cut is moving out nicely at present prices. Lilium rubrum has also been popular and has been used in some of the more elaborate funeral pieces.

Ferns, geraniums, asters and a few fuchsias have formed the main items in recent sales of potted plants, although several stores have good-sized stocks of cockscomb as well. The asters are the newest on this list and for this reason have caught the buyers' eyes most, but Francis Boddy is showing some freak geraniums secured by treating Wonder and Flora Hill by a secret process of his own. These plants produce blooms which grow from the center of the bloom below and a complete flower forms as the petals are dropping from the lower blooms. These plants have kept up this process ever since spring.

President, H. G. Hastings, Atlanta, Ga.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

ED. GOLDENSTEIN has been elected second vice-president of Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago and New York.

JOE COLEMAN, the well known gladiolian, has the California fever. He plans to sell out at Ravenna, O., and spend the next year on the coast.

ANY seedsman who did not write his inventory down to current values when closing his books for the 1919-20 season was only kidding himself at the expense of needless income taxes.

AT the annual election of officers of the Albert Dickinson Co., Chicago, Charles D. Boyles was chosen to succeed Charles Dickinson, who, it is reported, has retired from the business. The other officers elected are: Vice-president, Gilbert M. Davis; secretary, Homer R. Blodgett; treasurer, W. K. Palmer.

THE excessively dry season has had a bad influence on sweet pea crops in California. H. E. Hallawell, of the Hallawell Seed Co., San Francisco, states that it is understood that only thirty per cent of a seed crop will be harvested. Peas are being threshed, but it will be a week or two before the actual yield of seed peas per acre is positively known.

FARMERS ORGANIZE COMPANY.

A number of farmers of Henry county, Illinois, halted their work Saturday afternoon, July 31, to organize a company to take care of the seed business of the county. It was originally intended to establish a $50,000 corporation, but at the meeting it was voted to increase the capital stock to $75,000, divided into 750 shares of $100 each. The object of the company will be to deal in both a wholesale and retail way in the purchase, sale and production of all kinds of seed, fertilizers and feeds.

From $30,000 to $40,000 of the capital will be expended in building at Cambridge, Ill., a modern seed house. The plans as they are now being considered will call for a 3-story building and basement 50x80 feet, and the installation of cleaning, grading and treating machinery and seed testing and inspecting laboratories.

The board of directors for the company comprises C. D. Ford, Geneseo; Edward Hulting, Geneseo; Perry Westerlund, Orion; Frank Martin, Kewanee; Thomas McConnell, Woodhull; A. E. Quaife, Anawan; D. O. Hinman, Cambridge, and J. T. Montgomery.

FORECAST OF SEED CROPS.

Government Expects Reduction.

Shorter vegetable seed crops are forecast by the report of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, published August 14, in the Weekly Market Reporter. Numerous tables give the acreage and average condition as of July 1.

"The total acreage of commercial vegetable seed crops planted for harvest in 1920, together with the average growing condition July 1," says the Bureau of Markets, "indicates that the commercial production of small vegetable seeds will be considerably less this year than in 1919 or 1918. This is doubtless the result of reaction from the inflated production and accumulated stocks during the war period. Unfavorable growing conditions on the Pacific coast throughout the planting and growing season are also largely responsible for the present prospective low production.

"The heaviest reductions from last year's acreage are as follows: Spinach, 88 per cent; garden beet and carrot, 85 per cent; mangel beet, 80 per cent; English turnip, 72 per cent, and onion seed and radish, 65 per cent; followed by cabbage, 45 per cent; Swede turnip, 36 per cent; tomato and winter squash, 25 per cent; lettuce, 12 per cent, and summer squash, 10 per cent. While the acreage of dwarf snap beans is about 38 per cent less than last year and 57 per cent less than in 1918, the production, based on present growing conditions of this crop, promises to be about 80 per cent of that of 1919.

Pole Beans an Exception.

"The acreage of garden pole beans (not including limas) is the largest on record, marked increases being reported in Idaho and California. Among the vine crops pumpkin shows the largest increase, 90 per cent, followed by a 33 per cent and 11 per cent increase in the acreage of muskmelon and watermelon, respectively. The cucumber acreage is reported about the same as last year. Growing conditions of all vine crops are favorable for a normal yield per acre.

"The production of onion sets in Illinois promises to exceed the large 1918 production, because of the increased acreage. The total garden pea acreage is slightly larger than for the past two years, Idaho and California reporting appreciable increases, while a few other states show small reductions. Most growers report that their individual acreages are in good condition and the indications are that the yield per acre will be larger than last year and equal to that of 1918."

LAW IN SEED COMPLAINTS.

Experience of Others as Proof.

When controversy arises on a point as to whether a seller of seed has furnished sound goods, there is a natural tendency on the part of each disputant to resort to the experience of other buyers who have bought the same article. Many a wrangle occurs between lawyers over the admissibility of evidence concerning such experience. It seems that where the growing quality of a thing is in controversy the experience of others is ordinarily germane provided that it appears that planting, cultivation and growing conditions have been substantially the same.

A case in point came up before the Oregon Supreme court recently (Horn vs. Elgin Warehouse Co., 190 Pacific Reporter, 151). In this case the defendant defeated the plaintiff's suit to recover damages for claimed delivery to him of winter wheat on an order for spring wheat.

At the trial, the plaintiff's attorney attempted to show that one Smith had bought seed wheat of the same kind as that delivered to the plaintiff, that he sowed it, but that it died after sprouting above ground. But the trial judge ruled this evidence out. On the other hand, the defendant was permitted to show that other buyers of the same kind of seed as that delivered to the plaintiff sowed it and produced crops of wheat of the variety it was said to be when sold to plaintiff.

Conditions Must Be Similar.

Reconciling the correctness of the trial judge's rulings in rejecting one line of testimony and accepting the other, the Supreme court says:

"All these matters about planting wheat were in the nature of proof of experiments. . . The offer made by the plaintiff in reference to the Smith seeding does not show that the conditions under which the experiment was made were the same as those affecting the planting made by the plaintiff. Necessarily the growth of seed is influenced by the nature and moisture of the soil and climatic conditions, as well as by cultivation. In the offer of proof by plaintiff nothing is stated except that Smith ordered Red Chaff club wheat from the defendant, sowed it as such and failed to produce a crop. All other ingredient conditions are omitted from the proposal. It is essential to its admissibility in evidence that the experiment relied upon be substantially similar to the one in issue. At first blush, one would say that the court did not hold the scale of justice at even balance in refusing the plaintiff's offer of proof and at the same time allowing the defendant to show that the same kind of wheat sown by other parties produced a crop of Red Chaff wheat. It is a law of nature that men do not gather grapes of thorns, or figs of thistles. Hence, when it appears that planting the wheat obtained from the defendant produced Red Chaff club wheat, all conditions of soil, climate and cultivation are merged into the ultimate result. The court was well within its discretion in allowing the result of the experiments offered in proof by the defendant and in excluding the negative experiment offered by the plaintiff. The former savored of demonstration, while the latter did not show that it was grounded on the same or similar conditions that spelled failure for the plaintiff." S.

NEW EARLY-FLOWERING or WINTER-BLOOMING

Giant Pansies

An entirely new and distinct strain of Pansies. The main advantage of these new Pansies over all hitherto existing Pansies is the extreme earliness of flowering and its unusual hardiness, which enables them to withstand quite severe winters, and to bloom right on into the summer. Sown at the same time as other Pansies, they begin flowering the early part of March, or as soon as the snow is off the ground, many times having four or five large flowers to a plant, when all other Pansies are only showing buds. The flowers are large, well formed and fragrant. They are highly recommended for Autumn planting on graves, and for very early bedding, as well as for early cut flowers.

are both arriving in unwieldy numbers, especially the latter, and great numbers remain unsold even with values as low as $1 per hundred. Some specially good colors realize $3 to $4 per hundred, but they are the exception. Asters range from 50 cents per hundred upward and are of extremely good quality for the season. Carnations are about done. Morning Glow still comes in. It is a great hot-weather sort and brings $2 per hundred. Roses are rather small and realize 50 cents per hundred upward.

A good many peas still come in, but they are short-stemmed and many are wasted this weather. Lilies drag; so do the miscellaneous outdoor flowers, such as cosmos, dahlias, helichrysum, bachelor's buttons, sweet sultans, pink mallows, etc. There is little call for orchids and practically none for valley. Asparagus is also in the doldrums. A spell of clearer and cooler weather is needed to galvanize business into activity.

Various Notes.

The Gardeners' and Florists' Club will hold a field day at North Abington Saturday afternoon, August 28, and will inspect the nurseries of Littlefield & Wyman and of W. H. Wyman, of the Bay State Nurseries. For those not going by automobiles a train leaves South Station at 1:34. The running time to North Abington is only thirty minutes and several hundreds of acres of splendid trees, shrubs, perennials, etc., await inspection. W. H. Wyman has kindly volunteered to send motor trucks to haul around those who come on the steam railroad. A large attendance is hoped for.

Herman H. Bartsch and W. E. Cahill made the trip to the Canadian convention at Hamilton by automobile and later went on to the S. A. F. convention at Cleveland. Others going from here are S. J. Goddard, E. A. Peirce; W. D. Howard, by automobile; L. J. Reuter, and Thomas Roland. The extreme heat has frightened some from attempting a journey inland.

F. E. Palmer and Miss Ella Palmer are camping out on the White mountains, N. H., for three weeks. Mr. Palmer's bookkeeper, who was dangerously injured by an automobile and who lay unconscious for several weeks, is improving.

J. S. Manter, of the Flower Exchange, left for Farmington, Me., August 14 for his annual vacation.

William Penn, who is in charge at Penn's, reports a satisfactory volume of business for such torrid weather.

Mr. Saunders, of the Symphony Flower Store, on Huntington avenue, has just joined the F. T. D. Great improvements have been made in the store and business is coming their way quite satisfactorily.

Professor C. S. Sargent is on the sick list. He returned from a visit to Maine this week and had to be taken from the train at South Station in an ambulance, as he had lost all use of his legs, and he still remains in bed. His many friends trust that he will have a speedy recovery.

Letters received from E. H. Wilson indicate that he is making a tour of points of horticultural interest in Great Britain ere leaving on his three years' tour of the world.

W. N. Craig is spending a few days at Bar Harbor and Dark Harbor, Me., with his wife.

A good many visitors came here for the big gladiolus show in spite of the heat and humidity. The gladiolus specialists surely are a wide-awake and enthusiastic lot. Some who were noted are: W. A. Sperling, New York; Madison C. Cooper, Calcium, N. Y.; T. A. Havemeyer and Albert Lahodney, Brookville, L. I.; Professor A. C. Beal, Ithaca, N. Y.; A. Gilchrist, West Toronto, Ont.; H. E. Meader, Dover, N. H., and many others.

The exhibition of children's garden products at Horticultural hall comes September 4 and 5 and promises to be an unusually large one. W. N. C.

tree in the state. John Dunbar says that Rochester has big elms that will not be overlooked. The "Big Tree" of California was introduced here in 1854 by the Ellwanger & Barry Nursery Co. The largest here is seven and three-quarters feet in circumference and fifty-five feet in height.

The trial grounds of James Vick's Sons, at Ogden, N. Y., are now at their best. The annuals have bloomed profusely this year and the perennials are exceptionally fine. The asters are in splendid condition and within two or three weeks they will be at their best. A great many acres are planted in asters and this year's is expected to be the most spectacular display of asters ever seen on the grounds.

Arrangements are now considerably under way for the Rochester exposition, horse and flower show, to be held early in September. The building assigned for the flower show this year is No. 3. This will give more space than there has been during the last few years for display purposes and will lend itself better for decorative purposes.

"SOME MAN"

"He may wear a last year's straw hat; his finger nails may need manicuring; his vest may hang a little loose and his pants may bag at the knees; his face may show signs of a second day's growth, and the tin dinner bucket that he carries may be full of dents and doughnuts; but don't you call him 'the old man.' He's your father.

"For years and years he has been rustling around to get things together. Never once has he failed to do the right thing by you. He thinks you are the greatest boy on earth, bar none, even though you plaster your hair back, wear smart clothes, smoke cigarettes and fail to bring home a cent. He is the man who won the love and life partnership of the greatest woman on earth—your mother. He is SOME MAN and not 'the old man.'

"If you win as good a wife as he did, you will have to go some."

"Say It with Flowers"

RETAIL STORE MANAGEMENT

WHAT THE LEADERS IN THE TRADE ARE DOING

ON THE SEVENTH DAY.

Why the Florist Labored.

There was a time, not so long ago, when the rest of the business world did not take the florist seriously. This state of affairs arose from the fact that in nearly every instance the persons who laid the foundation of the business as it exists today started in a humble way. They did not have much capital to invest and in most cases were lacking in business methods. To be frank, there was not much business dignity about the start of this industry on the part of the florists themselves.

On the other hand, the public was not educated in the use of flowers. About the only patrons of the florists in those days were the natural lovers of flowers. Did you ever stop to consider that in all of the arts there is a small percentage of the public who can be compared to these natural flower lovers? Take music, for instance; occasionally you hear of persons who have never had a lesson and perhaps do not know one written note from another, yet can sing or play some instrument like an expert. Nature has endowed them with special talent in this line. The same proportion occurs in any field of activity. But when you are considering this phase of the question, don't fail to remember what a small percentage are the number of people so gifted. And yet this small percentage was all our forefathers had to depend upon to lay the foundation of a business that today stands as a monument to their skill and perseverance, more enduring than a granite shaft.

But I spoke of business dignity, and when I speak of this I do not want to be construed to mean that the founders of the trade were in any way lacking in personal dignity or in sterling honesty, but that because they did not possess the necessary financial resources, they felt that they were at the beck and call of everyone.

Reversing the Situation.

In those days it was seldom that a florist, if he had an opportunity to make a profitable deal, could go to his bank and have his note discounted. It would be necessary for him to put his little establishment up as collateral, if this was clear. Then, perhaps, on Sunday morning this same banker would call at his store and tell him he wanted a few plants to plant about his home, that he was a busy man and did not have time to attend to such matters during the week. This brings us to the subject of this article; namely, Sunday closing in the florists' business.

After studying this question for a long time, I feel thoroughly convinced that the reason the florist feels that he is obliged to do business on the first day of the week is the narrow and provincial manner in which he has conducted his business. Let us take the florist and the banker referred to above. Let us reverse their positions on the Sunday mentioned. Suppose that the florist went to the banker and told him he was a busy man and did not have time to attend to such trifles as negotiating a loan during the week. Why, that banker would just humor him while some other member of the family got in touch with the police; they would think they had a maniac to deal with, who might become dangerous at any minute. Yet one proposition is just as sane as the other. It has not been so long since, whenever it was possible, funerals were put off until Sunday, in order that those attending might not lose any time. No thought was given to the undertaker, the livery men, the grave diggers and the florist. These classes did not come under the operation of the Fourth Commandment, but these men, through their various organizations, have been the means of reducing the number of Sunday funerals to a minimum.

Reasons for Sunday Closing.

I have read with a great deal of interest the reasons that many give for joining the Sunday closing movement, why the florist should have one day of rest in seven. Some speak of the dignity that it adds to the business, and there is no doubt of that. Others speak of the need of one day's rest in seven and the better results obtained from labor during the six remaining days, and this assertion cannot be gainsaid. There is no doubt that the morale of employees is better when they have a day to themselves at the end of the week to look forward to, and not the same continuous grind to confront them. Then there is the man who will tell you that Sunday should be observed because it gives the florist an opportunity to get better acquainted with his family, to spend one day in seven with them. Every reason that is advanced is a good one.

But, to go a step farther in this subject, I have not read of a single instance where the reason given for Sunday closing was the Fourth Commandment. The nature of the business in which he is engaged keeps the florist's eyes ever on his Creator, and He, away back in the beginning, saw fit to institute this day. This brings us to the final analysis of the whole question: Is it right or wrong to do business on the Sabbath? And I am firmly convinced that underlying all of the reasons stated is the fundamental one that it is wrong. Close on Sunday, because it is right to close, and you cannot but reap all of the other benefits. Tate.

MARRY HER WITH FLOWERS.

An Example of Trade Growth.

If a florist took on and developed all the side lines and allied businesses that his trade might lead him into, there is no telling where he would stop, for this business of growing and selling flowers touches industry as a whole and society as a whole at many different points. Just as the United States Steel Corporation has acquired coal and iron mines, so certain large growers during the recent coal shortage developed coal mines on their own lands. Certain of the large meat packers have inaugurated subsidiary industries to give more nearly constant employment to their refrigerator cars and distributive machinery; in somewhat similar fashion, some growers have added stock farms to their ranges to supply the necessary manure. The examples could be multiplied indefinitely.

The Is That Wasn't Becomes The Was That Is

Today I stepped back into three thousand six hundred and fifty yesterdays.

Which is the same as 10 years ago.

There I found a lot of wise ones shaking their heads and looking as if someone had tried to work off a gold brick on them.

They couldn't see that, instead of a gold brick, it was a brick of gold.

They admitted the idea was O. K., but they couldn't see how its workings would ever work up any worth-while business for them.

That idea, friends, was the F. T. D.

Ten years ago it could scarce walk, even when Daddy Pochelon held its hand.

Now it's a husky youngster wearing long pants; calling on the girls; and with muscle enough to take Dad over his knee.

The is that wasn't, is the was that now is.

June showed a 50% increase in F. T. D. orders.

More than half of it, was for steamer deliveries.

The orders came from 40 states, and two foreign countries.

Evidently, when they thought of the F. T. D. they thought of Stumpp's.

Which may or may not hold a suggestion.

Passing to the retail type of business, we find that the various appendices are either plain side lines, such as goldfish, canaries or pottery, or else form what is known as consumers' service. Examples of this outside the trade are the rest rooms in department stores, the "readers' service" of magazines and the chapels of undertaking establishments.

An interesting instance of consumers' service within the trade is the marriage shop, as he calls it, which W. A. Bo-linger, of the Rosery, Topeka, Kan., has recently instituted in connection with his new store at 118 East Seventh street. Anyone who decides to be married to the accompaniment of Mr. Bolinger's flowers needs only to bring his lady, the license and the minister; for those coming from out of town the particular convenience of this plan and the superiority of such a wedding over a ceremony performed in a bare room or an empty church are manifest. For in this marriage shop the bride and groom can walk down an aisle of palms and stand before an embankment of ferns, with large baskets of American Beauty roses on either side and sheltering trellises of twining clematis. Mr. Bolinger has offered a complete service for the first couple using his marriage shop; invitations may be issued for twenty-five or more guests.

SUMMER DISPLAY WINDOWS.

During the midsummer it is most desirable that the florist's display window have that attractive, cool appearance, so refreshing on a sultry day, in the opinion of W. S. Wells, of the Blu-Maize Blossom Shop, Ann Arbor, Mich. He suggests that all florists, when considering staging the summer window, take into consideration the possibilities of combining miniature landscape display, including a scenic effect, with some definite floral article, and above all to remember that window display is only a good form of advertising and that advertising without some definite point to be conveyed to the public might be considered as time and money wasted. Therefore in designing all window displays, whether in summer or winter, it is desirable that some definite feature be brought to the public's attention.

Too often, thinks Mr. Wells, we see elaborate window displays, marvels so far as creation is concerned, which have no individual points other than attractiveness. A display of this sort might as well be staged in a grocery store as in a florist's establishment. Often we see the florist's window filled with a miscellaneous assortment of baskets, pottery, ferns and what not during the dull season. This is a time when florists actually need business and it is marvelous how a series of cleverly designed windows, displaying some special feature, will stimulate the interest of

We Thank You

The members of the F. T. D. and the trade in general have been giving us a generous share of their orders for delivery in Chicago. We are appreciative. We have seen to it that these orders were filled in such a manner as to give satisfaction, as we regard many of them as an opportunity to advertise our work and our service. But we want to say "Thank you!" Also we want to say during the coming season. In the past we have been able to send out to other cities a goodly number of telegraph or mail orders, but we shall push this part of the business much harder the coming season and shall, of course, wherever possible send our orders to those who have sent us orders for delivery in Chicago.

advance the general good, I submit to your judgment. We have the material; all we need is the means, and success is yours.

Make the florists' campaign a real one and the result will be the best paying dividend you ever received.

Many of you, no doubt, know of the old story of the Indian who heard the white folks slept on feathers. So he got himself a feather and, after attempting a siesta, said, "White men all damn liars." Doesn't this designate the attitude of some of the men in our craft who start an advertising campaign with the idea of immediate results and, not getting quick benefits, say that advertising is a waste? Common sense must be used in this direction as in all movements. Did your business grow overnight or did you wait somewhat patiently for your success day by day until you reached your present status? So with advertising; it must be worked at patiently and then by persistent effort will it merit its own reward.

Today advertising is synonymous with marketing and many a national advertiser, at the recent Indianapolis convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, said that the sooner we call advertising the means of marketing, the sooner we shall give it its rightful power, when it will receive its fullest benefits. We as florists, having had only two years of its experience nationally, have a great deal to be thank-

Advertising Adds to Value.

Don Francisco, who spoke at the ad men's convention, told in a most eloquent manner of the progress he had been able to show as advertising manager of the California Fruit Growers' Association, which, at a recent meeting, decided in less than three minutes to expend $500,000 for an advertising plan, so enthusiastic were they over advertising. And yet, some members of the same committee would go outside of the committee room and argue for hours over the purchase of a Ford car, merely showing how well they were sold on advertising. One of the principal facts that stood out in his talk was this, that, in the old days of orange growing, the land value was about $350 per acre, but today, on account of the success of their marketing plan, by coöperative advertising and the increase in the consumption of oranges, they held their land at a value of from $750 to $1,200 per acre. Is this not food for thought for the greenhouse man who, when he can see his business developing to the station to which it is entitled—and our coöperative advertising campaign will do it—can look forward to the day when his land and greenhouses will have the value commensurate with the energy and labor which he has put into them?

We have the material and the money, but we lack the foresight to go into this publicity campaign in the proper way. We should spend and receive at least three times the amount we have, to show you returns adequate to prove the worth of advertising.

Doing a National Job.

To do a national job we must think nationally, not locally; therefore the fundamental principle of our campaign is wrong, as we have too little money to prove the benefits which will accrue when our campaign reaches its proper proportion. And since we are optimistic about the future of our glorious country, now is the time and this is the place to start this big movement on its way, so that, to "Say It with Flowers," we shall get the proper support from our own field. Then will our business reach the importance it is justly entitled to, backed up by everyone connected with the trade, and the results—well, the rest we shall leave to your own imagination and it is bound to prove itself, that the more you invest in your campaign, the greater your returns. The proof is the number of advertising campaigns now going on all over the country. The florists were among the first in the field. It is up to us to keep moving; as Bonaparte said, "improve your opportunities; every hour lost now is a chance of future misfortune."

I should like to pay tribute to the members of the publicity committee for their untiring interest in everything pertaining to the campaign and especially to the vast amount of good work being continually done by George Asmus and Fred Ammann in going to other cities to talk on this vital subject, which interests us all. I want to pay tribute also to our secretary, John Young, who has seen the light of advertising, but

A Business Well Worth While.

And last, but not least, who among us will not say that since we have begun a national campaign other lines of big business have had a higher regard for the florist, both as a bigger business man and as being better known? When it comes to being known, take an unknown concern and one that is well advertised—which of the two will attract you? In the same way, who of us, after seeing and hearing of the S. A. F. and its "Say It with Flowers" program, would like to see it discontinued? Hasn't it given you genuine pleasure and pride to know that you are a contributor towards making it a success and that you are going to keep it moving?

Get all to support a movement which has a real mission for its basis and you will have loyalty that will be true. But you who are here present must see to it and do your part, so that all will see

The Market.

The market has kept at the same level; in a word, the supply is greater than the demand. All first-class stock cleans up well each day, except gladioli. There is not much inferior stock of these to be seen, but there are too many gladioli of fine quality to supply the demand. The reason for this is that, in addition to the men who have always grown gladioli for cut flowers, there are several firms now growing them for bulbs, to which the flowers are a sort of by-product. These men are in the business to produce the finest bulbs, of course, and their cut flowers are all of the best quality.

Roses are still holding up wonderfully well for this season of the year. More fine ones might be handled. Asters do not show the same tendencies to glut as in former years and those that are to be had are of good quality and the colors are right.

While there is an oversupply of stock on the market, the retail stores report business above normal for the middle of August. There is no great rush, except perhaps when there is some prominent person's funeral, but everyone is doing a steady, healthy business.

Disposing of Surplus.

The Flower Growers of Maryland got together August 12, when there was a big oversupply of cut stock on the market, and made a fine exhibition on one of the most prominent thoroughfares in the city, in front of the Walters Art building. A photograph was taken of it by the daily papers; then the stock was distributed to the various hospitals. The plan advocated by The Review was also tried out; that is, sending the surplus to the large department stores for their windows. This whole thing was arranged on the spur of the moment, but it speaks well for the flower growers' association. Much favorable comment has already been heard, but it was done so quickly that we have not as yet had an opportunity to know how it has worked out.

Maryland Flower Growers.

As the writer was leaving the Hotel Rennert after the meeting of the Maryland Flower Growers, reported last week, President James Hamilton asked what I thought of it. My reply to him was, "You men have started something here tonight that you do not yet realize the possibilities of." He said, "Yes, if we can put it over."

As I looked over that assemblage of growers, including such men as James Hamilton himself, who started out some years ago with a few hotbeds; Isaac H. Moss, with one lean-to, 18x50 feet, and Robert L. Graham, with one small house, the greater part of which he built himself, my reply to him was, "You men can put over anything you make up your minds to." As we sat in that meeting my mind went back about thirty years to a like meeting, when the old Baltimore Florists' Exchange was formed. Shares of stock were issued with a par value of $5. When the exchange was sold, this stock brought $500 a share. Put it over? Why, a betting man would lay big odds that it will be put over. The charter members are all the guarantee one wants for this, and let me say right here, though I have known them all my life, I have never seen this same set of men more in earnest than they are over the Maryland Flower Growers.

An Up-to-the-Minute Range.

Last week I took an afternoon off and paid a visit to the range of our fellow member, Fred G. Bauer. My first impression as I entered the range was that there must be an awful lot of help here, or someone does an awful lot of work, but as Mr. Bauer and I went over the place I found out the reason why everything looks so spick-and-span. It is system. As Mr. Bauer and I walked through the nurseries and he noticed some trifling thing that needed attention, he made a note of it and when we got back to the office it was entered in a work book. It is someone's business to go to that book each morning and see that such notes are attended to. Another thing that struck my attention was that there is not an idle foot of ground on the place; even the frames, which we are so accustomed to see idle at this

Club Meeting.

The Florists' Club held its meeting August 9. A heavy thunder storm just before the meeting hurt the attendance somewhat, but there was a good crowd, at that. Since Wm. F. Ekas, the president, who represents the club on the board of directors of the S. A. F., on account of a business engagement, was unable to attend the convention, the club elected the treasurer, Albert G. Fiedler, to go in his place. The next meeting of the club will be held Monday, September 13, when the election of officers for 1921 will be held.

The Market.

There was a slight increase in business last week, due mostly to funeral work. The weather was much warmer than during the previous weeks of the summer, but the heat has not been sufficient to cause any deterioration in the quality of the outdoor stock. Some extra fine asters were on the market and met with a ready sale at $4 and $5 per hundred; those not so large brought only $2 and $3 per hundred. Especially large gladioli in the more choice varieties are bringing $4 and $5 per hundred. Pendleton and White Giant were conspicuous on the market last week. The more common varieties do not sell at any price, as too many of these are available in the public vegetable market three mornings each week, for a mere song. All kinds of outdoor flowers are retailed there at low prices, often

The supply of roses is about equal to the demand, with a shortage in the long-stemmed grades. There is a good call for red roses, but no supply of anything nearer red than Premier and Russell. Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Shive entertained Edward P. Davies, of Santa Fe, N. M., who was on his way home from West Point and New York city, where he attended the national convention of the Knights of Columbus. Mr. and Mrs. Shive left August 18 for an eastern trip, planning to include the S. A. F. convention at Cleveland.

The representative of the Cleveland-McCallum Co., Cleveland, O., called on the trade last week. This enterprising salesman does his traveling in a Ford automobile, carrying his supplies for exhibition in a trunk on the rear of the car. He reports an encouraging season, with many advance orders taken for fall delivery.

Renovations and repairs are being made in the store of the Blossom Floral Co. A large private office is being put in and enlargements in the rear of the store are nearly completed. This firm is much pleased with its year's business. Mr. and Mrs. Richard Blossom and their sons, Flick and George, motored to Lake James, Angola, Ind., where they spent the week-end.

Miss Katherine Crawford, of John Breitmeyer's Sons, Detroit, Mich., is spending two weeks in this city visiting Mrs. Ruth Flick-Blossom and Miss Alice Flick.

no inducement to the buyer. Buyers were scarce. Roses, asters and the many outdoor blooms fared no better. Weather conditions seemed to have a tendency to lessen the public's interest in flowers.

Various Notes.

The A. W. Smith Flower Stores Co. obtained a favorable decision in the Common Pleas court. This company was one of the first tenants of the Kennan building and held a long lease. The ownership of the building changed hands recently and the new owner attempted to double the amount of rent which their lease called for. The purchaser of the building knew of this lease before the transfer was brought to a close and on this account could not legally evict the A. W. Smith Co.

SAN FRANCISCO NOTES.

Marin county, won the first prize for the largest collection. His nursery is at present the attraction of motorists who drive along the highway in that section of Marin county. John Carbone won the first prize for the best vase of fifty spikes. Cypress Lawn Cemetery won three prizes; one was for the best seedling and another was for the largest seedling. On all hands, the show was voted to be a good one and it has undoubtedly had an excellent effect in stimulating interest in gladioli. Many of the florists' stores featured masses of gladioli last week, both in their windows and on their counters.

The C. Kooyman Co. reports that carnations are good but scarce just at present. Roses are also a little scarce. Mr. Kooyman states that the bulb industry in California is growing rapidly. Freesias, Paper White narcissi and dahlias are the bulbs most grown at present.

Domoto Bros. are successfully shipping asters as far east as Denver and other Rocky mountain states. Several shipments of asters have also been made to Detroit, Toledo and points farther east. These lots have not been heard from as yet, but satisfactory results are anticipated. Many local shipments of asters are being made and other coast states are taking good quantities of asters. Chrysanthemums are coming along nicely.

The United Flower & Supply Co. finds it too early yet to ship chrysanthemums to distant points. This crop is coming along nicely and many for local shipment are being satisfactorily sent out. This company anticipates that, by the first week in September, chrysanthemums will be ready for shipment east. Carnations are scarce; few people have any crop on hand. Big shipments of strawflowers are in demand all over the east.

Domoto Bros. state that auratum and rubrum lilies are arriving plentifully. They are shipping these flowers to coast points and have a fine display of them in their store. Good roses are greatly in demand and are hard to get. They have some attractive begonias on display.

Enomoto & Co. are shipping asters to New Orleans, Omaha and Oklahoma, as well as to a number of other places on this side of Chicago. These shipments are arriving in good condition. The crop of asters this year is unusually fine and plentiful. A splendid crop of chrysanthemums is coming along and the firm will start shipping them early in September. "Carnations and roses are scarce, but asters are plentiful," is Mr. Enomoto's summary of the market. The abundant supply of good asters has resulted in their being cheap. Numerous orders are arriving for strawflowers. This company received a large shipment of mats from Japan. A number of freesias of different sizes and colors have also arrived from Japan.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

LACK of help to get the roots out of the ground will cut many nurserymen's offers of peonies.

THE annual picnic of the D. Hill Nursery Co., Dundee, Ill., and its employees was held at Wing park, Elgin, Ill., Saturday, August 14.

COST finding was sidetracked when nurserymen became so busy getting stock to fill orders they had time for nothing else, but it will be greatly desired at a not far distant date.

FRENCH stocks are being quoted at prices that many nurserymen in this country consider prohibitive. Is this an answer to Quarantine No. 37 or part payment of the cost of the war?

JOHN DAWE, at one time Chicago sales agent for the Perry Nursery Co., Rochester, N. Y., died last week at his home in Chicago. Fuller notice appears in this week's obituary column.

THE Federal Horticultural Board has issued rules and regulations governing (1) entry for immediate export, (2) entry for immediate transportation and exportation in bond, and (3) safeguarding the arrival at a port where entry or landing is not intended of prohibited plants and plant products. These rules and regulations are a revision of and supersede the rules and regulations governing the entry for immediate export of prohibited plants and plant products promulgated October 20, 1917, effective December 1, 1917. They apply principally to the forwarders who handle shipments through New York for Canada.

AT Springwood Farms, York, Pa., were held Wednesday, August 18, the dedicatory exercises for a monument erected by the State Horticultural Association of Pennsylvania to commemorate the site of origin of the York Imperial apple. John C. Schmidt, owner of Springwood Farms, was one of the speakers at the luncheon on that occasion. The York Imperial was originated by Jonathan Jessop in 1820 on this land, which was then called Springwood Nurseries. This apple, which is noted both for flavor and for keeping qualities, received its present name in 1855 from Charles Downing, a pomologist of New York state.

REORGANIZATION of the Poughkeepsie Nursery Co., College avenue, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., in which Albert Tersteeg and William Godding formerly were partners, has been effected by the incorporation of the firm with William Godding as president, E. J. Daniels, of New York city, as vice-president and Peter J. Van Melle as secretary and treasurer. This company was established in 1903 by Frank B. Brown. William Godding has been connected with it for seven years. Mr. Van Melle is an expert landscape artist and recently laid out several large estates in New York and New Jersey. The new company will retain its old location and will specialize in landscape gardening.

CONNECTICUT ASSOCIATION.

The Connecticut Nurserymen's Association held its summer outing at Lake Compounce August 11. Owing to the inclemency of the weather the attendance was not so large as usual, but those present enjoyed the outing.

It seemed to be the opinion of all attending that the other nurserymen and florists of the state, not members of the association, were not aware of the benefits they could derive from attending the meetings and outings of this association, or they would make more of an effort to accept the cordial invitations sent them, to convene with the association.

These get-together meetings certainly make for the betterment of any line of business. They are educators; they are friend-makers, not only in the line of business, but socially as well, and the short loss of time spent in attending is
